Fulbright Vows Delay In Nuclear Treaty OK

Approval Will Wait For Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson's one-time base of power—the Senate—has provided him a last and bitter disappointment in the final moments of his public career.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Foreign Relations Committee made official Tuesday what had long been suspected: Despite presidential urgings there will be no immediate action on the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Thus the pact, a New Frontier legacy that became for Johnson something of a personal crusade, probably will bear the signature of a Republican president.

There was no immediate comment from the White House. Nor in the waning days of the delicate transition period to a new administration was one expected.

But for Johnson, a wartime leader who had sought to leave this lasting imprint on efforts to ensure peace, there was ample cause for disappointment.

For one thing, there was his personal devotion to getting it through.

This last satisfaction, ironically, was denied him by a Democratic-controlled Senate where less than a decade ago he gained legendary power as majority leader he faced as President some of the bitterest opposition to his Vietnam war policies.

Challenges to Job

It also was a Senate that turned in four short years from helping him pass a flood of Great Society social legislation to spawning serious challengers from his own party for a job he finally gave up voluntarily.

The treaty that falls to the Nixon administration to ramrod through the Senate would bar signers from sharing nuclear weaponry and know-how with countries lacking them. It would prohibit have-not nations from

Feb. 28 Set for Apollo 9 Launch

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space agency has set Feb. 28 as the date for the next major step toward its goal of landing an American on the moon this summer.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Tuesday officially announced 10 a.m. CST the last day of February as the "go" time for Apollo 9, a 10-day Earth orbit mission to test the complete three-part space craft designed for the moon mission.

If all goes well on Apollo 9, in the spring Apollo 10 will orbit the moon at low altitude. Then, in mid-summer, two Apollo 11 astronauts could be the first men to set foot on the Earth's satellite.

Judge Asked to Quash Indictment Sirhan Trial Under Way

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defense attorneys asked for a closed session to set aside Sirhan's indictment and his plea of innocent come today as his trial resumes on charges of murdering Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The motion to withdraw the plea of innocent is a legal technicality. Under California law, an indictment cannot be quashed while a plea stands. After an hour of discussion, four motions were introduced in open court and turned, the original plea may be withdrawn—after ruling against re-entry.

The motion attacking Sirhan's indictment is based on a contention the grand jury which indicted him was not composed of a proper cross-section of the community, said Russell Parsons, one of three defense lawyers.

Parsons said such juries frequently exclude women, members of minority groups and people of various professions. Sirhan is charged with shooting Kennedy to death and wounding five bystanders just after the New York senator proclaimed victory in California's Democratic presidential primary. Bystanders seized Sirhan after shots rang out as Kennedy walked through a crowded kitchen site of the victory rally.

"Bang! Bang!" she said. The man fled.

Another of the defense attorneys, Grant B. Cooper, told his successor by the Democrat-controlled General Assembly was Marvin Mandel, 48, speaker of the House of Delegates.

Agnew said in a television interview he could do nothing consciously to alter his image, adding: "I think the worst mistake I could make would be to attempt to placate and satisfy my critics."

Agnew declared it is "a fiction" to say he was "jerked" from a zoning board into the vice presidency.

Noting his experience as governor and county executive, he continued, "I don't think it's fair to say that suddenly a yokel has descended upon the national government."

At one point in the campaign, the vice president-elect said, he was so "depressed" by criticism that he wondered if he could get up the next day and go through with it. But, he said, he was neatly dressed in a gray suit, white, buttoned-down shirt and blue tie. He waved to his attorneys as he entered the heavily guarded, 73-seat courtroom. He sat next to them at the left end of the long counsel table but made no public statements.

Agnew Confident U.S. Will Come to Realize He's 'Not Neanderthal'

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew decided he had to "develop a little skin" and had no trouble admitting he had been hurt during the presidential campaign by what he said, "I think," he went on, "that I can tell them what kind of person I am."

Agnew said, "I fully feel," Agnew said, "that by the time a year has gone by, and I'll have been functioning in this expanded vice president's role that's been given me, and particularly in regard to intergovernmental relations with the cities, that what I do and what I stand for is going to be so obvious that it's going to be very difficult for the people who are attempting to cast me in the role of the Neanderthal man to continue to think that way."

Maryland's resigned Tuesday as his successor by the Democrat-controlled General Assembly was Marvin Mandel, 48, speaker of the House of Delegates.

Saigon Anxious to Start?

Talks Still Mired

PARIS (AP) — A South Vietnamese delegate newly back from Saigon insisted today his government is anxious for peace talks to begin, but he rejected any idea of equality for the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

This appeared to be the latest word from Saigon on the deadlock of the Paris talks, and to quash any American hopes that the conference can get started before the Jan. 20 inauguration of Richard M. Nixon as president of the United States.

The U.S. side, for the record, clung to a hope that something positive might happen before said. "But certain principles

O'Brien Might Run Ted's '72 Campaign

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A close friend of Lawrence F. O'Brien says the former postmaster general will return to politics within four years to head a presidential campaign for U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

O'Brien announced Tuesday that he would resign as chairman of the Democratic National Committee to take an industrial job.

The prediction of his return to politics by 1972 came from Matthew J. Ryan Jr., district attorney for Hampden and Berkshire counties, who also is a friend of the Kennedy family.

O'Brien, a former Springfield resident, was an aide to the late President John F. Kennedy.

City Councilor Armando G. Dimauro, who also is chairman of the Springfield Democratic Committee, commented on the O'Brien resignation announcement by saying it would be "awkward for him (O'Brien) to handle a presidential campaign for Sen. Kennedy if he had remained chairman of the national party."

There has been speculation that the last surviving Kennedy brother will bid for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972.

Many American girls shared her antiruling sentiment. "As long as they're wearing a bikini why not go all the way?" asked Margi Vogel, 30, a switchboard operator in Albany, N.Y. "What difference does the two inches make?"

Gail Burns, 23, a very slender, leggy 5-foot-8 Miami girl, said she would stick with the smaller bikinis, adding,

"If they would arrest me for that, I'd have to be a test case."

"If you have the figure for a bikini," said shapely Judi Daniel, 22, a reporter in Dallas, "I don't think the size should make any difference."

"I think a two-inch bikini is too much for a 4-year-old girl and may not be enough for some 24-year-old girls," said Vicki L. Roberts, 22, a nurse in Phoenix.

"It all depends on the size of your hip and the effect you want to create," said Ann Hodgson, 26, a curvaceous computer programmer in New York. "I would certainly want a great deal more than two inches on my hips."

"Like a string."

Ingrid Meyer, 25, a Chicago secretary, agreed: "Two inches at the hips? You know that's pretty small. That's like a string! Let me measure.... That's too small. It has to be three inches."

One male was dubious about the whole controversy. "It's pretty small," said Dennis Gardner, 22, a San Jose State College student. "I'd be embarrassed for the girl. I think more of a girl who doesn't wear a bikini. Two inches or a string, it's still too small."

And the Aussie girls, crowding the summertime beaches, were also dismayed. "I think it is dreadful," said Marijka Vos, 20, a 36-24-36 model. "There is no freedom left in the world."

Quiet Day Reported In Vietnamese War

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands today reported only two small skirmishes and two shelling in what appeared to be one of the Vietnam war's quietest days since the Paris negotiations began.

The U.S. Command also reported a battle-damaged Air Force Phantom jet crashed into an American artillery camp Tuesday, killing two U.S. soldiers and a Vietnamese civilian in the camp.

The Command also reported two helicopters shot down earlier this week, with one crewman killed and two wounded. U.S. troops were involved in only one of the two fights Tuesday, a clash about 70 miles north of Saigon. Artillery and helicopter gunship crews of the 1st Air Cavalry Division sprayed a small enemy band with rockets and machine-gun fire, and 16 enemy bodies were found. There were no American casualties.

In the other action, a South Vietnamese militia force reported it killed 14 guerrillas during a patrol in the Mekong Delta.

Nuclear Treaty Okay to Await Inauguration seeking nuclear arms or help developing them.

It passed the U.N. General Assembly last June, and was signed by 62 nations including the United States, the Soviet Union and Great Britain July 1. The treaty, however, does not become effective until ratified by 40 nations including those three powers.

The other two nuclear powers, Red China and France, have refused to sign or follow the treaty.

Although first suggested to the Geneva disarmament conference in 1962 by the administration of John F. Kennedy, it met with little Soviet enthusiasm.

In January 1964, Johnson, who had succeeded the assassinated Kennedy, made a strong pitch for the treaty in a message to the Geneva conference.

"Carte Blanche" "He gave us carte blanche to negotiate entirely on it," said a source in the U.S. delegation Tuesday night. "In that sense it was his treaty. He put the drive on it."

The treaty, reported to the Senate last year, must be reported again to the new Congress by a slightly changed Foreign Relations Committee.

Fulbright said no action would be taken until after the inauguration Jan. 20 and that the committee probably would hold one or two days of new hearings.

The Senate had appeared on the verge of acting last August but held back after the Russian-led invasion of Czechoslovakia.

A continued delay was bolstered by the support of the then-campaigning Nixon.

As late as early December Johnson was reportedly still considering calling the Senate into special session to consider the treaty—a move many senators publicly opposed.

Tribes Plan Dances Asking for Snowfall

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — It hasn't snowed in normally snowy northern Nevada for two weeks and this city's first-ever winter carnival is just around the corner. So about 40 high school students—members of the Hopi, Shoshone, Pima and Apache Indian tribes—plan to perform a "snow dance" Friday. The dance is similar to those used to ask the gods for rain.

Proxmire Reveals Official Probe Of Navy's Action Against Civilian

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy has agreed to a Civil Service Commission review of disciplinary action taken against a civilian employee who triggered public disclosure of massive thefts of U.S. military fuel supplies in Thailand.

Sen. William Proxmire, who earlier asked for such a review, announced the Navy's action today. He had complained that the service had retaliated against John McGee, the civilian inspector who first tipped him to the thefts of the oil supplies.

Proxmire also said he will insist the civilian heads of the Navy and Air Force give close personal consideration to the cases of McGee and A. E. Fitzgerald, an Air Force management expert who testified that production of an Air Force management systems, said.

The South Vietnamese reported only two small skirmishes and two shelling in what appeared to be one of the Vietnam war's quietest days since the Paris negotiations began.

Ten rounds also hit a Special Forces camp at Thanh Tri, 43 miles west of Saigon, inflicting "light casualties."

The Phantom downed Tuesday was one of two jets hit by intensive machine-gun fire on a mission about 30 miles north of Saigon in War Zone D.

Attempting to nurse his stricken plane back to Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport for a landing, the pilot was warned by the second plane: "You're on fire."

An Air Force spokesman said the two crewmen stuck with the burning plane until it was clear of a heavily populated area north of Saigon's suburban area, then ejected.

The two fliers landed unhurt, but the plane crashed into an artillery base of the 82nd Airborne Division, destroying two frame barracks buildings as well as killing the two Americans and a South Vietnamese.

It was the 328th plane lost in combat in South Vietnam. The helicopter losses announced today brought the total of that type of aircraft lost to 985.

The allies acknowledged that action reports were unusually light Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces have withdrawn into jungle hideouts, and the enemy command is evidently weighing its next major move while trying to keep its forces out of the way of allied troops engaged in more than 50 sweep operations up and down the country.

American spokesmen questioned whether the enemy can mount another sustained offensive. One reason for their doubt is the large amount of war booty found by patrolling American and South Vietnamese forces.

The generally small caches have added up to an impressive haul of arms and ammunition.

On Tuesday troops of the U.S. 4th Division found a base camp area in the central highlands near Kontum. It contained 4,500 rounds of small arms ammunition, 17 weapons, 50 hand grenades, 300 pounds of rice and fuses, uniforms and medical supplies.

Agnew Says He's Confident About His Role

"I am in a different way, a more careful way, a less frank way. I don't like to use that word but I guess it has to be true in politics, so they will see the important things about me. I want them to see but not leave me vulnerable to the oversimplifications that really hurt me during the campaign."

"Total frankness in politics," he said, "is dangerous because a flick of a picture and a part of a statement without the modifications that go with it can be terribly damaging."

In answer to a question, Agnew said he contributed little to recent foreign policy discussions with President-elect Nixon and his top aides gathered at Key Biscayne, Fla.

"I don't think I made too much of a contribution," Agnew said. "I'm no expert on foreign policy, but I've read a lot recently on it."

"I was there to learn and I learned quite a bit," Agnew was asked if he might feel at all like former President Harry S. Truman at the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt that "the sun and moon and stars had fallen on him."

"I'd like to say—I'd like to appear supermodest and say yes," Agnew replied, "but I can't in good conscience."

Slain at Harvard

Police Hunt Coed's Killer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Investigators searched today for the slayer of Jane Samans, 23, who was stabbed to death five years ago. The weapon used to kill Jane was a Harvard graduate during a wave of 13 killings in eastern Massachusetts. The student whose body was found near the Boston Strangler, knew anything about it.

A medical examiner said the daughter of the administrative vice president of Radcliffe College had been struck a massive blow on the left side of the head behind the ear by a sharp weapon. Investigators theorized a hatchet or a cleaver was used.

Dr. Arthur McGovern of Cambridge, who ruled the death a homicide, said the shape of the wound indicated that the girl was facing her assailant when struck. He said she had been dead 10 to 12 hours when her body, clad in a disarrayed nightgown, was found at 12:40 p.m. Tuesday.

An autopsy performed Tuesday night by McGovern disclosed that the girl had also been struck at least twice in the face with the weapon.

Authorities said the autopsy revealed no evidence of sexual attack.

Police said they were without a suspect. They said there was no evidence of a struggle or of robbery.

Miss Britton failed to appear in a class Tuesday morning, police said. The body was found by James H. Humphries, 27, a fellow anthropology student whom they described as a steady boy friend, and by Mr. and Mrs. Don Mitchell, the girl's fourth floor neighbors in the apartment house near Harvard University.

Detective Leo Davenport, head of an 18-man investigating team, pieced together this account of the events of the previous night:

Humphries and Miss Britton went out to dinner Monday night, then went skating on Cambridge Common, returning to her fourth floor apartment at about 10:30 p.m. Humphries left at about 11:45 p.m., and the girl went across the hall and visited for a while with the Mitchells. She seemed cheerful, discussed an exam she had coming up, then retired to her own apartment at about 12:30 a.m.

Failed to Appear

The girl failed to appear in class Tuesday, and Humphries came to the apartment house shortly after noon, after which he and the Mitchells made the discovery.

'I'm an Anarchist,' Admits Top Writer for Goldwater

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL WASHINGTON (AP) — Barry Goldwater's chief speechwriter in the 1964 presidential campaign—the man who wrote the famed "extremism" speech—now speaks approvingly of the New Left. "Technically," says Karl Hess, "I am an anarchist." Hess, who helped draft both the 1960 and 1964 Republican Party platforms, said in an interview that, "I take my stand with the anti-authoritarians, and so does the New Left."

"I'm opposed to authority, to state authority at every level and in every area," he said. "I think people should have the absolute right to their own lives and the control of them and I thought this is what the Republican Party stood for. I think it's a turning out not to be the case."

"Defense of Liberty" As Goldwater's No. 1 speechwriter, Hess was assigned to draft the Arizona senator's speech accepting the GOP nomination. The final version contained a phrase—"extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice; moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue"—that was widely interpreted as a challenge to Republican moderates who opposed Goldwater's conservative views, and had fought to deny him the nomination.

Hess said he still regards Goldwater as "the greatest full American political figure," and home indeed he was back in Arizona this year helping his old boss to regain a seat in the U.S. Senate.

He also insisted that his thinking on extremism hasn't changed, and that his progression from the political Right to the New Left involved merely a reversion to his basic philosophical position—"libertarianism." "That's why I'm rather fond of the New Left," said Hess. "This is one of the reasons I find many of the statements and actions of SDS (Students for a Democratic Society) very satisfying. Because they're following the precept of the Declaration of Independence."

That precept, said Hess, is that if the government steadily encroaches on the freedom of the individual ... that it's the people to overthrow the government. "I don't think it's the responsibility of the people to overthrow the government," he said. "I don't think it's the responsibility of the people to overthrow the government."

He granted the interview in old colleague in the cause of conservative politics, columnist Ralph de Toledano, put out a Washington news letter. It should be noted that de Toledano, who wasn't present, has shown no sign in his writings that his convictions have altered.

Elaborating upon his own viewpoint, Hess said: "There used to be a very strong libertarian tradition on the right" even to opposing imperial foreign policies on the ground that "you can't have a state so powerful that it can go rampaging around the world without having a state so powerful that it can coerce people at will."

"The rise of the Soviet Union, however, introduced this really fanatic anticommunism," Hess said. "A lot of people, including myself, said: 'Look, because of the threat of Soviet Communism we've got to forget all of this individual rights are the only ones worth worrying about.'" a very powerful state now to combat this monster. That's where conservatism grew up to what we now know as the conservative position."

"How can it?" Hess cried. "How possibly can it? That is not my position. My pendulum is all the way over there. I think this individual rights are the only ones worth worrying about."

This position, said Hess, "says that it opposes the state and it does, theoretically, but ... when it comes to anticommunism, the conservative position is that the state should have every power in the world, up to and including the right to execute people."

Hess said he began to change his position when he became convinced "that the United States has supported the most aggressive part of Communism, the Soviet Union, all along and that the interests of the security managers of the Soviet Union and the United States more and more seem to be identical to divide the world up between the two superpowers."

"Doesn't Mean Chaos" This conviction, said Hess, drove him back to libertarianism and thence to anarchy. "People misunderstand the position," he said. "It doesn't mean chaos. It doesn't mean mob rule—it simply means no state ... no constituted state which could perpetuate itself by a monopoly on violence."

With exasperation in his voice he repeated a statement of one of President-elect Nixon's advisers that the pendulum has swung too far to the side of individual rights.

North Vietnam to Get Ultimatum on Fighting

If Communists Refuse to Compromise, Nixon Warns That Full-Scale Bombing May Resume

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — President-elect Nixon is now planning to issue this private warning to the North Vietnamese in Paris: if Hanoi's negotiators refuse to compromise, they run the risk of a U.S. military reaction — possibly including a resumption of full-scale bombing of the North.

That is part of a hard-line stand which the Nixon foreign policy team will assume when they take over the Paris negotiations on Jan. 21 in an attempt to get down to serious business. Although the word "ultimatum" is not being used in discussions by Mr. Nixon and his foreign policy consultants, the effect of the present plan is not far from it. But absolutely ruled out is any implication to Hanoi that U.S. action might include the use of nuclear weapons.

Evans Novak

That's what distinguishes Mr. Nixon's Vietnam scenario from Gen. Eisenhower's Korean ploy in 1953. The Eisenhower warning carried the specific implication that nuclear weapons might be employed. Partly as a result, the Nixon administration has been skeptical about Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford's strong words against stalling at Paris by the Saigon regime. Keeping Bunker on the job should give the South Vietnamese new heart and reduce the possibility that panic in Saigon could lead to a government crisis.

Also likely to mollify Saigon is Mr. Nixon's designation of Henry Cabot Lodge to succeed Averell Harriman as top U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks. However, while Lodge was well-loved in Saigon during two terms as ambassador, he may turn out to be less to Saigon's liking in Paris than President Thieu and Vice President Ky think. Before Lodge went to Bonn as Ambassador last year, he confessed to friends a subtle change of heart about long-range U.S. prospects, ruled out is any implication to Hanoi that U.S. action might include the use of nuclear weapons.

Franchett Taking Course in Urban Transit Planning

Eugene E. Franchett, executive director of the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG), is attending a short course this week for those concerned with administering urban transportation planning programs.

The course, running Tuesday through Friday, was arranged and financed by the Chicago regional office of the Federal Highway Administration. Meetings are at Champaign, Ill.

COG is cooperating with the State Department of Transportation in a major two-year comprehensive analysis of transportation in the Fox Cities area. The $400,000 study is being financed by 85 per cent federal and state funds.

A major focus of the analysis will be future needs in all streets and roads, plus a look at the route for the planned 32 miles of expressway to entwine the Fox Cities.

Father Will Retain Custody of Children, High Court Decides

MADISON — The State Supreme Court has refused to change the divorce judgment which awarded custody of three minor children to their father, after their mother went to California for a month with the man who lived next door to their Green Bay home.

Circuit Judge James A. Martineau of Oconto County did not abuse his discretion in refusing the request to deny custody of the three children to Kay Fongler of Green Bay, former wife of Norman Koslowsky of rural Oconto County.

Martineau recognized that Mrs. Fongler had improved her moral conduct since marrying the man with whom she left her home, and that Koslowsky's parents, who help care for the children, are aging, but the circuit court was correct in deciding that the best interests of the children would not be served in shifting custody from Koslowsky to the Fonglers.

Mrs. Fongler is the wife of Roland Fongler. They work as television and nightclub entertainers in the Green Bay area.

Illinois Pair Found Innocent of Shining Deer in 1967 Incident

Two Illinois men Monday afternoon were found innocent of game violation charges brought in October 1967 by state conservation wardens.

Robert Mull, 36, Lake Zurich, Ill., and DeWayne Gardner, 45, Forest Park, Ill., were charged with shining deer while in possession of bows and arrows Oct. 27, 1967. They pleaded innocent in November, 1967.

Wardens said the men were shining deer along Outagamie County Trunk M, near Old Highway 54, southwest of Shiocton, about 11:30 p.m. The warden said that when he stopped the truck the men were in, they found two bows and a quiver of arrows behind the front seat.

A 12-member jury heard nearly a full day of testimony Monday, but deliberated less than a half hour before finding the men innocent.

Youth Found Guilty On Morals Charges Involving Two Sisters

Gary Meiers, 18, 832 W. Oklahoma St., pleaded no contest and was found guilty Tuesday afternoon of two morals offenses involving 13 and 15-year-old Appleton sisters.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer ordered a pre-sentence investigation and sentencing for Jan. 21. Meiers remains free on a signature bond.

Thomas Van Denzen, 22, of the same address, pleaded guilty last week to the same two morals offenses involving the same girls. He is free on a signature bond pending sentencing Jan. 14.

Appleton police allege the pair was involved with the girls Nov. 6 and Nov. 9.

Menasha Youth Jailed After He Loses Probation

An 18-year-old Menasha youth who was placed on probation Oct. 2 for the theft of a coat from the H. C. Prange Co in Appleton, began serving a 30-day jail sentence Tuesday after his probation was revoked.

An agent for the State Department of Health and Social Services recommended that Timothy Westenberg's probation be revoked because he lost his job, failed to appear for consultations, and went to California without permission of his agent.

Westenberg, of 1780 Oakridge Court, was taken into custody Monday. His agent said that there could be "nothing constructive" by allowing Westenberg to remain on probation.

Kimberly Ordinance Change Parking Fines Altered, Tow-Away Authorized

KIMBERLY — The village board Monday night approved changes in the parking ordinance to increase the amount of fines for more than one violation and also permit the police department to have vehicles removed at the owner's expense.

The amended ordinance places a fine of not less than $10 or more than $25 for the first violation, not less than $8 and more than $25 for the second violation and thereafter not less than $10 or more than $25 for other violations.

It also provides that cars remaining more than one hour after being tagged may be towed to a public parking lot and the vehicle impounded until the owner pays towing charges at the village police station.

Members voted not to fill the unexpired term of Trustee Albert Vander Wielen who died recently. The post will be open for election April 1.

A resolution was adopted praising Vander Wielen as a "conscientious and dedicated citizen, setting an example to all who knew him best." It also extended encouragement and sympathy to his family.

Donald Valentyne was appointed to serve on the administrative committee formerly handled by Vander Wielen. Village President Albert Fulcer was authorized to have city owned land, bordered by Kimberly Avenue, Maes Avenue and Clark Street, appraised if an offer to purchase is received. The area comprises about two acres.

Five bids were received for a new dump truck with low bid of $4174 by Fox Valley Truck Service, Appleton, accepted. The maintenance committee was authorized to advertise for bulk gasoline bids for the coming year.

DE PERE — Herbert Aptheker, Communist Party historian and founder of the American Institute for Marxist Studies, will speak at St. Norbert College at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the Hall of Fine Arts.

Long associated with left-wing causes in the United States and abroad, he most recently was in the news when he and two others visited North Vietnam in 1965 on a "fact-finding" mission. Their purpose was to negotiate with its leaders during one of the U.S. bombing pauses and to bring the terms back to the states for ratification.

A Fountain of Snow appears to greet the sun as Robert Barnes, 425 E. Pacific St., who is hidden by the snow banks lining the curb, operates his snow blower. Makes Dull Conversation

It's Snowing Again... So Is Anything Else News?

BY CHUCK DILDAY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"It's snowing," I said when I looked out of the window this morning.

"No kidding," my wife replied. "What else do you know in the way of earth-shaking news? When doesn't it snow?"

I couldn't reply to that because I can't remember when we haven't had a white blanket covering the ground. I know that it was sometime last year.

"You know," I said as I looked at the drifts blocking my driveway, if someone could only think of a way of packaging that, there is a great market for it in South Africa."

That Cold Look

My wife didn't reply. She just gave me a look that must have sent the temperature down another five degrees outside.

"Well," said I, trying to regain the gaiety of our conversation, "the Fox Cities weather forecast says there will be one or two inches of new snow tonight and it's going to get colder. The temperature tonight will be around 15 and it may get colder with snow flurries on Thursday. The winds will be blowing about 25 miles per hour later tonight, too."

The silence that greeted this remark was explosive.

So I made a supreme effort to inject a cheerful note. "The precipitation probabilities are 80 per cent tonight, but they are only 60 per cent tomorrow."

"Goody, goody!" she said.

I checked with the weather station at Wisconsin Michigan Power Company when I got to the office and learned that the first snow of the winter fell on Dec. 9, 1968, and that 28.1 inches fell in December. Another five inches has fallen in January, a total of 33.1 inches for the winter.

Last winter we had 2.4 inches in December and 7.8 inches in January for a total of 18.1 inches for the entire year.

I was recounting these vital statistics to my cohorts in the newsroom when our city hall reporter said, "Well, you may be right and you may be wrong, but the city's weather service is predicting another five inches tonight."

Then the wire editor entered the conversation with an Associated Press release warning highway travelers of snow and drifting snow and difficult driving conditions. Wisconsin State Patrol cars reported similar conditions, saying that all roads are snow covered and slippery.

I decided the weather was not too popular a subject and retreated to my desk, remembering Mark Twain's comment: "Everyone talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it."

And it doesn't look like we will, either — except shovel."

Flu in City But Not New Virus Strain

There has been no positive identification of Hong Kong flu in Appleton as of today. Health Commissioner James Laird told the board of health this morning.

Dr. Laird said, however, many residents have caught various varieties of flu.

Dr. Laird reported he personally sent 15 cultures to the state board of health laboratory at Madison to determine if Hong Kong flu virus was here, but tests were negative.

However, the health department's monthly report showed five deaths due to pneumonia, an above average total.

A wounded Vietnam war veteran was charged Tuesday afternoon with possession of marijuana for smoking purposes.

Robert G. VandenWildenberg, 19, 1424 N. Richmond St., is in the Outagamie County Jail under $1,500 bond awaiting a second court appearance this afternoon.

Outagamie County Judge Nick F. Schaefer continued the case Tuesday to allow VandenWildenberg time to consult an attorney.

The youth, a private first class in the Army, told the court he is unemployed "pending a medical discharge" from military service. He reportedly suffered severe abdominal

Parking Ramp Rate Is Reduced by City

Soldiers Square Facility Also Will Have Lawrence Street Exit

It's going to be easier on the pocketbook and nerves of motorists using Appleton's Soldiers Square Ramp as result of action taken by the city council this week.

Aldermen went along with the recommendation of the city parking commission and lowered the hourly parking rate, along with directing the Lawrence Street exit be opened as originally planned.

City officials indicated they were giving the year-old ramp a new lease on life and would continue the cashier parking system for another six months.

However, should the lowering of the parking fee and change in the interior traffic pattern fail to produce more use of the 450-car facility, the plan is to install parking meters.

Disorderly Conduct Involving Minor Brings Fine for Appleton Man

Charged following investigation by Appleton police, John Van Straten, 26, 217 W. Summer St., Tuesday afternoon was fined $75 and costs or 18 days in jail for disorderly conduct.

Van Straten, who pleaded guilty in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, reportedly made indecent advances toward and spoke in an obscene manner to a 14-year-old girl who was babysitting at his home Dec. 31.

Babysitter Recalls Family Tragedy

It's All a New Year's Nightmare to Sue

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Fifteen-year-old Sue Seely can't remember when the nightmare began.

But Tuesday afternoon, from her bed at Appleton Memorial Hospital, the slender, blue-eyed girl vividly recalled the good times she had with the Robert Christensens before four members of the Appleton family succumbed to a mysterious death leaving her and Mrs. Christensen the only survivors in a post New Year's Eve tragedy.

As the sunshine streamed into her hospital room touching upon flowers from friends and large basket of fruit from Mrs. Dolores Seely, her mother, Sue talked about last summer, when she spent a month babysitting for the Christensens at their Menominee County home on the shore of Lake Moshawquit.

The Christensen children, Jeffrey, 8, Lori, 7, and Jeannie, 4, were more than just familiar faces to Sue, who had been employed as their babysitter for about a year, taking up where her older sister had left off. As for Mr. and Mrs. Christensen, Sue and her mother agreed that they treated their babysitter as a member of the family. During those days at the lake, the couple included Sue in every activity, but best of all — and Sue's face lit up as she remembered — they taught her to water-ski.

Family Invitation

In autumn, there were more requests from the Christensens for Sue's services. Then, in early December, she was asked to accompany the family to the lake for New Year's Eve. Sue accepted, circling off Dec. 30, 31 and Jan. 1 on her calendar in an act that was to permanently and traumatically affect her life.

Ordinarily a 45-minute ride by car, the trip from Appleton to the lake home took two hours

Dec. 30, because of the wintery weather. After her arrival, Sue and the children took advantage of the snow by spending most of that afternoon saucerizing, making angels and building castles. By 8:30 p.m., Jeffrey, Lori and Jeannie had been tucked in their bunkbeds, all occupying the same room, and later, Sue was to climb into the bunk above Lori, where she had always slept.

The morning of Dec. 31, Sue recalls helping Mrs. Christensen with housecleaning, while the children played outdoors. The night before, the couple had toyed with the idea of having a New Year's party, but as far as Sue knew, nothing definite resulted until late Tuesday afternoon, when Mr. Christensen got into the snowmobile and drove around the lake inviting neighbors over for the evening.

New Years Party

The children once again in bed at 8:30 p.m., Sue helped

Mrs. Christensen prepare ham and eggrolls for the party which broke up shortly after seeing in the New Year.

Jan. 1, the last day Sue remembers before a tragedy struck, began for the babysitter at 1:30 p.m., when she arose, ate breakfast and in a moment of fun, she and Mrs. Christensen each took a few sips of champagne in a private celebration of the New Year.

Then Sue and the Christensens went snowmobiling, stopping at a neighbors to warm up before returning home for a snack of eggrolls. Half an hour later, Mrs. Christensen served supper consisting of steak, twice-baked potatoes and salad.

Earlier that afternoon — when, neither Sue nor Mrs. Christensen nor Mrs. Seely remembers — Mrs. Christensen telephoned Mrs. Seely to ask if her husband could drive Sue home the next morning rather

Fumes Again Considered as Death Cause

Officials Change Opinions After Quizzing Survivors

After questioning the two survivors of the lake home tragedy that took the lives of four members of an Appleton family, carbon monoxide has re-entered the picture as a possible death cause.

Menominee County authorities Tuesday took statements from Mrs. Robert Christensen, whose husband and three children were found dead Friday in the family's year-round recreation home on Lake Moshawquit, and the babysitter, Miss Sue Seely, 15, 1706 Rogers Ave. Miss Seely was questioned at Appleton Memorial Hospital, according to Chief Deputy Fred Miller, where she was reported in satisfactory condition.

Victims of the tragedy were Robert A. Christensen, 43, vice president of Tschank and Christensen, and his three children, Jeffrey, 8, Lori, 7, and Jeannie, 4.

Treated for Shock

Mrs. Christensen was treated for shock at Appleton Memorial Hospital and released Friday.

Re-establishing carbon monoxide as a possibility was a reversal of a statement Tuesday by the Menominee officials who at that time, said it had been all but ruled out as factor and food poisoning was strongly suspected.

The investigators are still awaiting word from Madison on tests being conducted at the State Laboratory of Hygiene on blood samples and food specimens taken before a final determination can be made.

Coroner Arnold Corn could not be reached for comment this morning. He said Monday he would continue his investigation after receiving reports from the hygiene lab, which he expected this week.

Corn said Monday that there were indications that food poisoning may have caused the deaths. He noted he did not believe the lake home's furnace was faulty.

Corn and Menominee Sheriff Wilmer Peters have conferred with Shawano County Dist. Atty. Daniel F. Aschenbrener. They will confer again after the state lab results are revealed.

Under the state law, the Shawano County district attorney also serves Menominee County.

Bowling Alley May be Built In Appleton

Appleton city officials have disclosed there is a "good possibility" a private developer may construct a major bowling alley-recreation complex on municipal land bank property.

A Sheboygan businessman has contacted the city council's commerce-industrial development committee and expressed interest in building here.

Because much of the land in the Northeast Industrial Park is already spoken for, and the city council has ruled it off-bounds for local commercial business, the city decided to purchase an additional 19 acres of land nearby. The acquisition was completed last week.

The commerce-industrial development committee, headed by Ald. Ralph Gertsch (19th), will meet soon with the interested developer and offer him approximately 10 acres at cost. Included in the offering price will be the cost of installing utilities, along with any other special assessments.

A meeting with the developer, a Sheboygan businessman, will be held at city hall Monday.

Safety Building Site Could Interfere With Water Main

Major Line Lies Under Elm Street

One of Appleton's major water lines may have to be relocated if the proposed construction of a city-county safety building becomes a reality.

The Appleton Water Commission — taking note of recent reports of a safety building site at the southwest side might prove to be extremely costly, according to water department estimates.

Letter to Broehm

Louis J. Schulze, assistant secretary of the water commission, has written City Clerk Elden Broehm and asked that the information be given to the board of public works of possible problems.

Relocation of the 16-inch cast iron pipe on the city's near, southwest side might prove to be extremely costly, according to water department estimates.

Major Main

This pipe is one of the largest leader mains in our distribution system and a very intricate part of that system."

Schulze said that should Elm Street be vacated, it would require relocating the pipe. The water commission says it would be "extremely expensive."

He said while no detailed costs for pipeline relocation are immediately available, the

Illinois Crash Kills Appleton Trucker, 58

An Appleton truck driver and a wrecker operator who came to his aid were killed early today as a result of an accident on Illinois Interstate 55, about 20 miles southwest of Chicago.

Illinois State Police said that Raymond J. Jones, 58, 2722 N. Richmond St., driver of a CW Transport, Inc., truck, was dead on arrival at a LaGrange, Ill., hospital.

Police said Jones, who was employed by the Menasha Trucking firm 22 years, was coming off an exit ramp about 35 miles per hour and was attempting to drive around a stalled vehicle parked in the middle of the roadway when the semi-trailer unit tilted and dropped off the edge of the Police said the truck, loaded with about 18,000 pounds of "general merchandise," dropped 45 feet into a sanitary canal covered with three inches of ice. There was six to 10 feet of water in the canal.

According to police, Jones was trapped in the cab of the semi for five hours. Workmen used cutting torches to free the body. An exact cause of death was not determined yet this morning.

Serafino Savaglio, 45, Summit, Ill., a wrecker operator, was killed instantly when the cable snapped between his unit and the semi. Police said he was struck in the head. Jones was still trapped in the cab of his semi when Savaglio was killed.

Police said Jones' truck rip-

Good Agreement

"I think we have a good agreement and will recommend its approval at next week's board of public works meeting," Buckley said.

The price was not disclosed. Originally, the city talked about leasing the building but because of the favorable sale price decided to investigate outright purchase.

The present police station at Morrison and Washington streets will be sold to the developer who has a contract for Gimbel's, Inc., of New York, to build a new department store in downtown Appleton.

At Monday night's city council meeting Ald. John Ayers (12th) said some problems had arisen regarding the Automotive building. He was referring to improvements.

Blind Woman, 84, Is Found Dead in Snow

OSHKOSH — The body of an elderly, blind woman was discovered at about 7:30 a.m. today near the mailbox in front of her rural town of Nepeuskun home by a Winnebago County Highway Department employee.

County Coroner Art C. Miller said Miss Nellie Morrissey, 84, Morrissey Road, died of exposure and he estimated the time of death at 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Miller said the blind woman who lived alone, was in the habit of checking the mailbox in front of her home.

Leonard Jeffers and William Lagerman, county employees who were operating a plow on Morrissey Road, found the snow-covered body and notified the sheriff's office.

The body was taken to Plan-sky Funeral Home, Oshkosh.

Vision Impaired

Outagamie County police said Weigandt was southbound on 41 in the right hand lane. His vision was impaired by a semi-trailer just to the left and ahead of him, throwing up snow.

Weigandt's car struck the rear of a stalled truck owned by Bark River Culvert and Equipment Co., Green Bay. The truck, which was on the roadway, was operated by Harold J. Peterson, 37, Green Bay, who told police he jumped to safety when he saw his truck would be struck.

The entire front of Weigandt's 1966 auto was shoved back, and there was damage to the rear and the frame of the pickup truck.

Most seriously injured was Herman Weigandt, 55, 1045 Van Buren Ave., Oshkosh, driver of the car, who suffered chest and abdominal injuries and head and face cuts.

His passengers and their injuries included Fred Toth, 32, Fond du Lac, with knee injuries; Carroll J. Jenks, 38, Fond du Lac, a sore neck; Quav F. Smith, 29, Fond du Lac, left side and thigh injuries; and Lawrence H. Hoffman, 45, 553 W. 17th St., Oshkosh, who had left knee, ankle, and back injuries.

Weigandt and Toth were taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital by Larry's Ambulance, while the other three were taken to the hospital by squad car.

School Remodeling Bids at $652,000

MENASHA — Low bids for the remodeling of Menasha High School totaled more than $8,000,000 added in the future; omitting an less than the estimated $600,000 elevator; adding vinyl fabric in for base construction costs.

School board members opened bids Tuesday night and tabulated the general construction, heating and ventilation, electrical and plumbing costs for the project scheduled to be completed by fall of 1969.

A low bid of $31,500 was submitted by Hietpas, Inc., of the Chute. Omission of the dressing room remodeling would decrease the firm's cost by more than $300.

Robert Paynter, architect for Sauter Scabone, the Appleton firm selected to design the remodeling, said the firm would recommend to the school board acceptance of three or four specific bidders next Monday.

Total cost of the project has been set at $825,000, which includes equipment and fees. Originally $600,000 was estimated for the base construction, but increased labor costs necessitated the boost to $660,000.

Total low bids for base construction amounted to more than $651,700, while the highest bid total reached more than $852,400.

Low bidder for the general construction was Hoffman Co., Appleton, which submitted a bid of $351,900. The firm stipulated it would complete the work by Oct. 1, 1969.

Other bids for the general work ranged upward as high as $487,700. The earliest date submitted for completion was Aug. 1.

Five alternates were also priced by bidders. They included remodeling of dressing rooms under the stage; providing a heavier roof structure.

Early Opening Sought for Court Branch

OSHKOSH — The operation of the second branch of the Third Judicial Circuit Court of Winnebago and Calumet counties could be a reality by July 1, six months earlier than expected.

Two formalities will be set in motion this month. Approval of a resolution to open the court by July 1 will be sought at the Jan. 20 county board meeting.

On the same day Assemblyman Jack D. Steinhilber, Oshkosh, will present the necessary resolution to change the state statutes to the assembly judiciary committee.

If the legislature advances the date six months and the courtroom is ready — the second branch will then be functioning.

The need for the second branch has been spelled out by present Circuit Judge William E. Crane.

"The heavy court load continues in spite of the fact that the calendar has been cleared of 65 cases in the past two and one-half months, but there are at least 50 new civil jury cases."

Heaviest in History He added that litigations in both Winnebago and Calumet counties, heavier than they have been in the history of the court, are steadily increasing.

The 90 cases involving students in the Nov. 21 demonstration at WSU-O are referred to Circuit Court.

Supporting Judge Crane in this evaluation today, Judge Edwin M. Wilkie, state court administrator, said, "It is still one of the busiest circuits in the state, second only to Milwaukee."

Stuffed Animals Cut In School Break-In

KAUKAUNA — Stuffed animals in a room at Holy Cross School were reported slashed by a sharp instrument sometime after Saturday afternoon, according to a complaint filed by Sister Shirley, principal.

Police could find no sign of forced entry into the building and nothing could be found missing, although entry also was gained into the school office.

School Board Precedent

Bonding Asked for Repairs

A frustrated Appleton Board of Education set a precedent Monday night when it unanimously agreed to ask for bonding of over $100,000 for building and site improvements.

The move comes on the heels of a $500,000 fiscal control board out of requested 1969 school district funds which threatens to once again force deferring of past repairs and improvements.

Buchanan was directed to prepare a letter for the fiscal board, asking for action on the bonding request. He said the board hoped for immediate action by the fiscal board, whether approval or rejection.

Major items included are Einstein Junior High, concrete pavement, $17,000; Johnston Elementary, concrete pavement, $13,367; Franklin Elementary, conversion of heating system, $7,500. Several blacktopping projects, mainly playgrounds, also are being sought.

Spears said the blacktopping for several outlying schools was essential. Some schools have no physical education facilities other than an outside playground, he said.

Kenneth Sager, a board member, questioned why instructional items should not be bonded and also the advisability of items being cut out of the budget and then put in a bond issue.

The bonding would provide $39,951 for site improvements and $34,980 for building improvements, besides the adding ton, other schools have used machine.

Nurseryman Named To Forester's Job

MENASHA — A 28-year-old landscape nurseryman has been chosen to fill the vacant park superintendent and city forester job.

The appointment by the park board was revealed as the common council acted to fill vacancies in the Menasha Redevelopment Authority (MRA) and the park board, and accepted a resignation from the plans commission.

Thomas D. Van Buskirk, 609 School Court, of Van Buskirk & Sons Nursery, will be hired to succeed the late Harry Kargus. He was chosen by the park board from 20 applicants for the job.

OK Part-Time Help

Feud Over Assistance For Schaefer Settled

The dispute between the Outagamie County Board's personnel committee and County Court Judge Nick Schaefer over additional help in his office apparently has been settled.

The personnel committee reported authorizing Schaefer to hire a second court reporter half-time at an annual salary of $3,000 with the agreement that no other special help would be required in the judge's office.

County Board Chairman Sylvester Esler, Appleton, told the executive committee Tuesday that while Schaefer had not formally replied to the personnel committee's action, he understood the judge was satisfied.

Unresolved Salary

Still to be resolved is the salary for special help Schaefer employed in his office for one week in November. Schaefer had submitted a pay voucher for $150 for the salary but the county, by board action which set the salary for such help at $80 per week, issued a check for the smaller amount.

The judge returned the check and asked for the full amount. The county, in turn, reissued the same check for $80.

Supv. Eugene Kloes, Appleton, a member of the executive committee and chairman of the courts and justice committee, objected to the entire proceedings because his committee had not been involved.

Committee Ignored

"The committee has been run over," Kloes said. He added that if the committee was going to be bypassed, its jurisdiction over the court should be ended. The executive committee also recommended, by a 6-3 vote, to hire a deputy emergency government director (civil defense). The deputy would be responsible for the setting up of the county office of economic stabilization and then would assist Howard Rathbun, emergency government director, in year to soften the $11 billion annual loss of revenue he said operating his office.

A salary of $438 per month the bill would bring about.

was recommended for the deputy with federal funds paying half of the cost.

In other action, the executive committee, for the third time, rejected a request from the Office of Economic Opportunity for the county to participate in setting up a community action program involving antipoverty programs.

$1,000 Tax Exemption Proposed

WASHINGTON — Income tax exemptions for dependents would be raised to $1,000 by 1973 under a measure reintroduced by Rep. William A. Steiger, R-Oshkosh, today.

Steiger had sought passage of the bill during the 90th Congress, but the measure failed.

At present, $600 in income for each dependent is tax-exempt. Steiger proposed raising the sum by $100 each year until the $1,000 level is reached.

Set in 1947

The Sixth District representative said raising the personal exemption should be "one of the first orders of business for reforming the tax structure. The present exemption of $600 was established in 1947 and a change in that level is long overdue. One of the best ways of assisting our heavily burdened wage earners is to provide for an increase" in the exemption level, he said.

Steiger explained he was calling for spreading the increases stabilization and then would assist Howard Rathbun, emergency government director, in year to soften the $11 billion annual loss of revenue he said operating his office.

Dance Hall Denied Bar License Again

Grand Chute Chairman Objects To Applicant; Bid Loses 2-1

A heated exchange of words between Grand Chute officials and parties interested in re-opening the Rainbow Gardens tavern ended, at least temporarily, when the town board Tuesday night voted 2-1 to deny granting a liquor license for the property.

The license was denied to Edward Baumgarten, 500 Hartjes St., Combined Locks, who is seeking the license to operate the tavern formerly owned by Sylvester Esler, 416 W. Park way Blvd., Appleton. The tavern is located at 3501 W. Wisconsin Ave.

Baumgarten, his attorney, Daniel Burns of Kimberly, and Esler attended Tuesday's meeting.

Last month the board voted 3-0 to deny granting the license to Baumgarten after property owners in the area objected.

The new debate was touched off on Tuesday when Burns pressed Town Board Chairman Tom Thorson for reasons why he opposed the license application.

"I don't want that man (Baumgarten) to have a liquor license in this town," Thorson retorted. Burns maintained the board has no grounds for refusal of the license and wanted a written opinion from the board on why members denied the license.

Don Herrling, town attorney, pointed out that the statutes give the board the right to use its own discretion in the matter. "The board is not obligated to give a written opinion," the attorney said.

Baumgarten said he has purchased the property from Esler, who for years held a liquor license on the bar. The Rainbow Gardens, once a popular dance hall and entertainment spot in Appleton, has been vacant for nearly 10 years.

'Picture Changed'
Esler noted he still holds the license and the title is in his name. After Tuesday night's action, Baumgarten explained, "Esler and I are going to incorporate under the Esler Amusement Corporation and we'll operate on that basis with Esler holding the license."

Those objecting to the granting of the license, Fox Point subdivision property owners, appeared at the December board session. Thorson said 15 residents object to granting the license. However, Baumgarten claims only five property owners objected.

On Tuesday night, Burns reiterated that the property is commercially zoned, and also emphasized that improvements to the property, septic tanks and the building itself have been or are being made.

Supv. Ira Livingston said the picture "out there has changed in the past 11 years. . . it's more residential now."

The town chairman and Livingston voted against issuing the water commission feels that the board of public works should be aware of the location of the water main.

(A committee comprised of Outagamie County and City of Appleton officials has been making an exploratory study of the feasibility of constructing a safety building. It has also studied sites which are in the present courthouse area. However, a safety building project has not been approved by the city and county, nor has there been an authorization to prepare construction plans.)

Informal Meeting
Members of the Outagamie County Board and Appleton City Council will hold an informal meeting at the courthouse soon to receive a complete report and recommendations from the safety building study committee.

Should there be a consensus that a safety building appears feasible, the city and county bodies will then be asked to formally approve such a project and hire an architect.

The study committee has sketches to show various locations advisable for such a facility to house city and county law enforcement agencies and other offices.

Chilton Man Dies Shoveling Snow

CHILTON — Illemaan Heinz, 48, route 3, died of an acute coronary attack Tuesday while shoveling snow at his home.

Calumet County Coroner Leroy Hughes said Illemaan was found by his wife after he collapsed.

Hughes said the attack came when Heinz started removing snow after he had eaten supper. He had been shoveling snow during the afternoon, according to Hughes.

Heinz was pronounced dead on arrival at Calumet Memorial Hospital about 7:30 p.m.

The body was taken to the Wendler Funeral Home, Milwaukee.

Funeral services will be at 10 p.m. Saturday at the funeral home. Burial will be at Chilton

Payment for Paving Being Withheld

Outagamie County is withholding payment from the city of $34,000, representing the county's share of the cost when E. John Street was paved more than a year ago.

Sylvester Esler, Outagamie County Board chairman, has notified city officials the payment has not been made because the work by the city reportedly has not been completed.

A spokesman for the department of public works said today the project is finished, including grading and seeding of properties abutting the new roadway.

He said it appeared the county had $34,000 budgeted but was waiting until this spring "to see if the grass comes up" and would then probably make the payment.

The county was charged for part of the project because a portion of the street within the city falls within the jurisdiction of the county and represents a so-called "island."

New Year's Memories Are A Nightmare for Sue Seely

than that day as originally planned. The postponement of the trip would eliminate an extra drive for Mr. Christensen, explained his wife, who also promised Sue would be home by 6:45 a.m. in time for the resumption of her ninth grade classes at Wilson Junior High School.

Since her mother had agreed to the change in plans Sue spent the evening packing and for a final time, prepared the children for bed at 8:30 p.m.

No Memory
Sue went to bed at about 10 p.m. Of one point she is certain: she felt well in every respect and as far as she was able to ascertain, none of the Christensens was ill.

Sue has no memory of Thursday morning, afternoon or evening nor does she know when she first fell out of her upper bunk and vomited on the bedroom floor. She does remember Mr. and Mrs. Christensen appearing in the bedroom, but whatever they might have said to the babysitter fell on deaf ears. For Sue had completely lost her hearing only to have it replaced by a buzzing that lasted throughout the long nightmare.

She remembers struggling to the bathroom for a drink of water to satisfy the great thirst that accompanied the buzzing. But without Mrs. Christensen's help, she found herself running into walls as "she went one way and her body went the other."

Screams Continue
Meanwhile, Mr. Christensen had seated himself on Jeannie's bed. Sue believes, he, too, was ill. As for the children, none of the three awoke at the sound of Sue's fall or her screams indicating she was ill. Sue recalls only one sign of life in the three: Lori rolled over during her first spell.

After getting a drink for Sue, Mrs. Christensen helped her unsolved mystery. Of the an- into Lori's bunk, where Sue was awoken two more times before Friday morning. During each of the total of three spells, Sue felt neither nausea, fever nor headache. Her vision was unblurred so that she could clearly see Mr. Christensen asleep beside Jeannie, but her screams continued unabated as she tried to tell Mrs. Christensen something was wrong.

That something was indeed very wrong was soon to be a matter of public knowledge when Mr. Christensen, Lori, Jeffrey and Jeannie were found dead Friday morning.

Sue's first memories of that day were the buzzing in her head and the appearance of Mr. Christensen's brother, William, and "a lady," not Mrs. Christensen. Then, says Sue, "They took Lori away and soon I was on a stretcher in the living room. Mrs. Christensen was crying."

Soon to be released from Appleton Memorial Hospital, Sue will take with her the knowledge that she is part of an unsolved mystery. Of the an- only know what I read in the paper."

the ramp but never had occasion to use it because no one parks there," Heinritz said.

East Ramp Addition
On a related matter, the council also gave the green light to planning a two-story addition to the East Ramp on Washington Street, with construction expected to start June 1.

The ramp expansion is expected to tie in with plans of Gimbel's, Inc. of New York to build a downtown department store. The new retail outlet is expected to generate considerable traffic and increase the need for municipal parking in the downtown area.

In addition, the city will also construct an overhead pedestrian walk from the East Ramp to the south side of the street where the new store will be located.

Paper Institute Fourth in Filling Executive Posts

The Institute of Paper Chemistry (IPC) ranks fourth in the nation among graduate schools in the number of alumni who are filling chief research and development executive posts in the nation's largest companies, a survey shows.

The statistics, compiled by Heidrick and Struggles, Inc., Chicago, were published in the December issue of "Scan," a periodical of IPC.

Tied with IPC are the universities of California, Michigan, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Princeton.

Leading in the rating was the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of Illinois and Harvard University.

The survey is titled "Profile of a Chief Research and Development Executive." It was compiled from a questionnaire sent to 540 of the nation's largest companies.

Soviets Find Big Problem In Bored Youth

Many Attempting To Move Westward,
But Unsuccessfully

ALMA ATA U.S.S.R. (AP) —
'Life out here is boring,' Yuri said. 'I want to go to the west —to Leningrad.'

In an unusually candid conversation with an American in this remote central Asian city, Yuri expressed the frustrations of a number of Soviet young people living in the provinces.

Baltic republics—Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania—the 19-year-old Russian college student said. 'Life is better there.'

'Once I visited East Germany. I'd like to visit Czechoslovakia and Austria, but right now it's not possible.'

Sipping a glass of wine at a restaurant, Yuri said he was now applying for a visa to try to get into a graduate school in the Soviet city of Leningrad, about 2,000 miles northwest of here.

A fan of Western music, he said local youths had had a hard time getting official approval to organize a jazz club.

Campaign Against West
A recently intensified campaign against Western influences such as jazz is one of the things young people complain about as contributing to the dullness of provincial life.

Grudging acceptance has been given by Communist officials only to certain kinds of jazz—those "based on folk melodies," as a local music school official puts it.

Western movies are rare.
'There will be less of them from now on and more films from Socialist countries,' says the head of Alma Ata's movie studio.

Minskirts are taboo. On a nearby collectivized state farm, a high school bulletin board has a satirical poem and crude sketch publicly humiliating one girl who dared to wear a mini.

Many Western shortwave broadcasts have been jammed since the August invasion of Czechoslovakia, but Yuri says that by careful tuning he can get the Voice of America's nightly jazz show.

Miss Cultural Life
Young people in the provinces also say they miss the cultural life of big Soviet cities. For example, Yuri complains that few copies of the liberal literary monthly Novy Mir—New World —reach Alma Ata from Moscow.

The Soviet press concedes the seriousness of the problem of bored youth in the provinces.

It has cited this as one reason for the hasty return to European Russia cities by volunteers who once came out to the dusty virgin lands, wheat fields northwest of this capital of Kazakhstan. Declining harvests plagued the project after this exodus.

While some youths are able to leave the provinces and move to big cities, most cannot pull the necessary strings to make the move. Such shifts in residence are officially discouraged because of housing shortages and other problems.

For those who stay behind in places like Alma Ata, Yuri says the limited outlets for cultural life and recreation lead to "a lot of drinking."

In contrast to local officials, Yuri showed no reluctance in discussing such problems. But he asked that his full name not be used.

$63,000 Not Enough for 50-Cent Vase

NILES, Mich. (AP) — Mrs.
Alan Martindale of Niles Township went to a garage sale in August and bought an oriental vase for 50 cents. The woman who had the sale then tried to buy it back the next day for $75, but Mrs. Martindale refused to sell it.

This week, a west coast art dealer offered her $63,000 for it on the belief it's a 15th century
Ming dynasty vase. She said the Chicago Art Institute wrote saying it is interested in examining the vase.

The vase is stored in a bank vault as Mrs. Martindale waits to see what the vase actually is.
She has sent colored photos of it to art institutes in Chicago and New York and so far has not accepted any financial offers for it.

Mrs. Martindale said she bought the vase because she liked it and "it was different."

She added her husband
"didn't admire it particularly, but if I liked it that was all that mattered."

Huge Volumes On Wall Street: Getting Serious

Public Confidence
Being Undermined
Due to Slowdowns

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Underlying many of the moves by both government and stock market officials to clear up the paper mess on Wall Street is a fear that the confidence of the public is being sorely, dangerously tried.

Should this confidence be lost the results would be disastrous for the exchange community and severely damaging to business, the dollar, the balance of payments and to American prestige in international finance.

The money that pours into the market from independent and institutional investors is offered with faith that their business will be transacted safely, efficiently and accurately. Much of this money comes from abroad.

However, the inability to handle commitments has resulted in a bookkeeping snafu at some brokerage houses that might be considered scandalous if it occurred in a related enterprise, such as commercial banking.

5-Day Delivery
That commitment is a tough one. As Robert Haack, New York Stock Exchange president, commented in a year-end meeting with newsmen, no other business promises five-day delivery on orders of such magnitude.

Because of antiquated work methods, a shortage of skilled clerical help and a desire to take on as much business as possible regardless of ability to handle it, some brokers have failed to deliver in five days.

Several have been forced to curtail business, some have been forced to close offices and dismiss workers, others have found it necessary to merge, and some are refusing the unprofitable orders of small investors.

On top of all these troubles have come serious problems with regulatory agencies of the government, particularly regarding the use and misuse of "inside" information.

Buried in Orders
The predicament of the Mates Mutual Fund, considered by some measures to be among the most successful of the past year, has helped undermine confidence. Mates has been forced to suspend redemptions of its shares.

Earlier in the year this fund's record was so good that it became buried in orders and was forced to decline new business. But now it is caught in a situation where it cannot assess the value of its own shares.

The stock exchange, seriously concerned about the paper jam, has taken an almost dictatorial stance in order to bring about remedies. Potentially one of its most successful moves has been the Central Certificate Service.

This service places in central depositories most of the stock held by member firms for their customers. Whereas once these certificates were raced about town by messengers whenever a sale was made, now they remain in vaults. Ownership changes are recorded by automated bookkeeping.

Time to Catch Up
The most noticeable of what the exchange says are 25 moves to correct the paper jam has been the elimination of Wednesday trading so as to give clerical help time to catch up on back work.

However, the exchange now feels that the value of Wednesday closings has become eroded and that the midweek break has come to be accepted as another holiday.

With the return to the five-day week, even though the daily gong will sound 90 minutes earlier than the old 3:30 p.m. closing, there are misgivings among securities men, including the Securities and Exchange Commission.

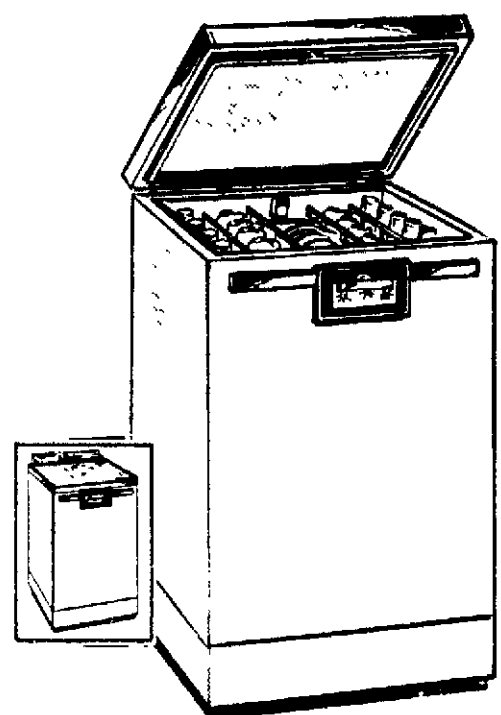

The big question is whether or not the brokerage firms have made enough headway in the past year, both in eliminating old work and in upgrading their facilities to handle larger volume, to resume a five-day week.

In a year-end statement, Haack concedes that record volume "will be felt in increasing measure on the New York Stock Exchange and other securities markets."

But Haack, who has devoted most of his first year in office to innovations and modernizing, also states that a solution to the problem of volume remains the primary task of the industry.

Whether or not the industry is up to the task may be answered in the next few weeks. The exchange is confident that it will be.

Czechs Trade Reformer for Liberal

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's Communist leaders tried to ease the blow of Josef Smrkovsky's demotion Monday night by naming another liberal to replace him.

The party's 21-member presidium recommended unanimously that Petr Colotka be appointed chairman of the nation's new Federal Assembly.

Smrkovsky, president of the old National Assembly until Czechoslovakia became a federation on Jan. 1, was named Colotka's deputy chairman.

Colotka, a deputy premier and until a month ago the nation's press chief, is generally regarded as a liberal. He is a Slovak and both the Czech and Slovak branches of the Communist Party.

Smrkovsky Colotka

He is a Slovak and both the Czech and Slovak branches of the Communist Party. The presidium nominations will go to the National Front made up of all political parties, which is expected to approve them and submit them to the assembly's two houses. The deputies will select the chairman and deputy by secret ballot later this month.

Smrkovsky accepted the party's decision in advance and urged that the public also accept it.

Workers and students had threatened demonstrations and strikes unless he got the top assembly post, claiming his demotion would symbolize a final turning away from the reforms embarked on before the Soviet invasion last August. But Smrkovsky's demotion had been certain since Monday night, and there was no adverse public reaction Tuesday.

The presidium's announcement said Smrkovsky, considered by the public the most reform-minded member left in the party leadership, would remain in the "inner leadership of the party."

Keeps Membership

He was also recommended for chairmanship of the House of Peoples, one of the houses in the new federal assembly. Evidently he will retain his membership on the party presidium.

As National Assembly president Smrkovsky was one of the "Big Four" with President Ludvik Svoboda, Premier Oldrich Cernik both Czechs also, and party chief Alexander Dubcek, a Slovak. As deputy chairman of the Federal Assembly, Smrkovsky would rank lower.

The Soviet occupiers have repeatedly snubbed him and wanted him removed.

The presidium announcement was coupled with a warning that the party would tolerate no more campaigns such as the public petitions and strike threats on Smrkovsky's behalf.

It said such activities are "phenomena which infringe the united procedure of the party and this is extremely harmful in the present difficult situation."

Press Management

Referring to press censorship imposed after the invasion, the presidium said it "discussed and approved the proposal for steps to be taken to improve party and press management of press, radio and television."

The presidium promised better party cooperation with the press and a freer flow of information to the public, apparently to stem criticism arising from the current crisis over Smrkovsky.

The leadership was accused of allowing the public to gain the impression that Smrkovsky was marked for ouster from all government and party posts, instead of saying at the outset that he would continue to hold leading jobs.

Chemical Developed To Fight Oil Slicks

BOSTON (AP) — Development of a new chemical mixture which makes it possible to destroy oil slicks at sea was announced Tuesday by the Cabot Corp. of Boston.

A Cabot spokesman said the chemical makes it possible to set fire to the slick and burn up to 98 per cent of the floating oil. The residue then coagulates into a floating solid which can be removed from the water, the firm said.

In recent years oil slicks from leaky or damaged tankers have caused heavy damage to beaches.

Editor Who Negotiated With Hanoi Dies at 48

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — William Calhoun Baggs, a newspaper editor nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize after acting as an intermediary in preliminary peace-talk negotiations between Hanoi and Washington, died Tuesday. He was 48.

Baggs, editor of the Miami News, was a persistent and articulate critic in his daily newspaper columns of President Johnson's Vietnam policy. A bomber pilot in World War II, he strenuously objected to American bombing of North Vietnam.

In January 1967 and in the spring of 1968 Baggs and Harry S. Ashmore, chairman of the executive committee of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, traveled to North Vietnam. Baggs was on the center's board.

He was the only American journalist known to have visited Hanoi twice. Last April 5 he and Ashmore returned from the North Vietnamese capital with a secret message from the Democratic Republic of Vietnam to the U.S. government.

The message said that nothing of substance would be discussed at peace talks until the United States met certain conditions including "cessation of U.S. bombing raids and all other acts of war," Baggs said later.

Baggs

Chronicle of Double-dealing in High Places," after they returned from Vietnam. The book contended double-dealing had come from the Johnson administration, not Hanoi.

Baggs was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize in 1968.

He was admitted to Miami Heart Institute on Dec. 29 suffering from pneumonia and influenza. He went into a coma after doctors performed a tracheotomy Sunday, and he never recovered. He died at 6:05 p.m.

Frisco State Stays Open

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco State College, rocked by a renewal of violence, moved into its third day of a teachers' strike today with several department heads saying they are uncertain how much longer they can operate with empty classes.

Picket line scuffles broke out Tuesday, involving members of the American Federation of Teachers and student militants who have been striking since last November.

Acting President S. I. Hayakawa has accused some teachers of "riding the coattails" of the students.

The rupture of cooperative efforts between the two groups led Tuesday to the first renewal of violence—and police arrests—since the 18,000 student school reopened Monday after a three-week Christmas recess.

Dwight Newell, dean of the Department of Education, said Tuesday's classroom attendance, both by faculty and students, was well below average. "If it continues," he said, "I don't see how we can conduct a useful academic program."

Hayakawa Differs

Hayakawa, in contrast, told a news conference Tuesday afternoon that despite the strike and violence, "classes were uninterrupted and people continued their serious business of studying and teaching."

A picket line in front of the administration building, ostensibly controlled by the AFT, grew by mid-afternoon Tuesday from 50 to 300 chanting marchers.

When college officials told marchers the chanting was illegal, AFT officials agreed to stop. Militant students greeted the order with obscene gestures.

The AFT withdrew its members from the line and later, when the union attempted to retrieve picket signs from the jeering students, shoving and pushing matches ensued.

Four persons were arrested by police.

The teachers union, claiming to represent one-quarter of the college's 1,100 faculty members, is demanding official recognition, more pay, lighter class loads and more voice in school policy.

The student strike began Nov. 6. The list of demands eventually grew to 15, including an autonomous black studies department, relaxed admission standards for minority applicants, firing of certain school officials and amnesty for demonstrators.

12 Saved After Ship Goes Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Twelve men from a research vessel that foundered in the North Atlantic were plucked from a liferaft today after spending 26 hours in the open sea, the Coast Guard said. The men were wet and cold but were otherwise unharmed.

The Essikristine, a Norwegian freighter, picked up the men at 2 a.m., a Coast Guard spokesman in New York said, after the deck officer spotted flashlight signals.

The 12 men huddled in the single liferaft after abandoning their ship, the Sea Surveyor of New London, Conn., at midnight Monday, 20 minutes before the vessel sank about 280 miles southeast of New York.

The Sea Surveyor, 118 feet long, was owned by the electric boat division of the General Dynamics Corp. An air-sea search was begun after the ship failed to report its position at noon Tuesday while on its way to a rendezvous with a U.S. Navy submarine.

Humphrey to Pick O'Brien Successor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional sources say the three leading contenders being considered by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to become the new Democratic National Chairman are Sen. Fred Harris, Rep. James G. O'Hara and former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford.

Lawrence F. O'Brien's resignation as chairman was announced Tuesday in a letter to Humphrey, titular head of the party. Both O'Brien's letter and Humphrey's acceptance were dated last Saturday.

In his letter, O'Brien, chairman since August, told Humphrey that "an outstanding opportunity has been presented to me in the business community. Both professional and personal reasons compel me to accept."

A close Humphrey associate said the vice president definitely plans to recommend a successor to the National Committee when it meets here next Tuesday in its first session since the Democratic defeat in November.

It is expected to ratify his choice.

Confer with Leaders

Before finally deciding, Humphrey plans to confer with such top party leaders as Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and O'Brien.

Richard C. Drayne, Kennedy's press secretary, said the senator is not backing any specific candidate but has no objections to any of those prominently mentioned.

Harris, of Oklahoma, issued a statement saying he expects to be involved in discussions on a new chairman but that "any speculation at this time that I myself might be a candidate for that position would be premature."

Harris, 38, co-chairman of the Citizens for Humphrey-Muskie and Sanford all were key figures in Humphrey's campaign. In Raleigh, Sanford said "I

Firebombs Thrown Into U. S. Library

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Two Molotov cocktails were thrown into the U.S. Information Service library early today, causing damage estimated at $1,500.

Police said unknown persons broke a windowpane in the center's reading room and tossed in the fire bombs. Book shelves were set ablaze, but firemen brought the fire under control within a short time.

Strong Pressure

O'Brien, who accepted the chairmanship at Humphrey's behest, was under strong pressure from many party leaders including the vice president to stay on. But he said all along he agreed to take the job for the campaign only.

"After having spent virtually all of my adult life in public affairs and public service," he said, "I do not intend to forsake my interest or involvement in this regard." He is considered a possible candidate for governor of Massachusetts in 1970.

O'Brien said he will forward to his successor his recommendations for two committees voted by the 1968 convention to reform party rules and procedures for selection of convention delegates.

A native of Springfield, Mass., the 51-year-old O'Brien directed the organization for both of John F. Kennedy's senatorial campaigns, his 1960 presidential success and President Johnson's 1964 campaign.

He served both Kennedy and Johnson as chief White House liaison man with Congress. He was postmaster general for 2½ years under Johnson before he resigned last April to aid Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's presidential campaign.

After Kennedy's assassination in June, he joined the Humphrey organization.

Not a Police Riot?

'Gentle' Violence Report Is Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy—the act that prompted Johnson to name it.

Contents of the report are being kept confidential until the White House releases it. But one source called it "gentle," and said it concentrates primarily on cataloging the commission's progress in various studies rather than on the underlying reasons for American violence.

A staff report, submitted last month to the full commission by Chicago lawyer Daniel Walker and released without comment, contended that a "police riot" figured in the bloody confrontations between police and anti-war demonstrators during the June slaying of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Johnson's violence commission will send him a report this week reportedly much milder than earlier staff findings. Chicago police for "rioting" against antiwar demonstrators during the Democratic National Convention.

The report, marking the halfway point in the commission's America, is a summary of progress made since Johnson appointed the panel last June.

It touches the full range of domestic violence, from assassinations to alley brawls, but makes no direct mention of the June slaying of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Avoiding Irritation Helps Relieve Gastritis

BY GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know what causes gastritis and how to get relief from it. — Mrs. A.O.H.

Gastritis is irritation or inflammation of the stomach lining. The term, I gather, is often used for gaseousness or flatulence, but it is not related to that.

Commonest irritants of the stomach are alcohol and highly seasoned foods. Just plain overeating can cause gastritis, and the correction for that is obvious. Don't overload the stomach.

Inflammation can result from contaminated foods (food poisoning). Virus infections also basically, the avoidance of known irritants. It is curious how often people shut their eyes to this. They don't want to change their accustomed ways. Yet they must. Only to a limited extent can treatment be very successful unless the irritants are avoided.

A bland type of diet (as with about two changes, either a thickening of the stomach lining or a thinning (atrophy). Ulcers frequently can be helpful. Anticid and bleeding can follow in chronic cases, as well as the more usual symptoms of stomachache, loss of appetite, vomiting, I suppose my next remark may seem pretty obvious, but treatment of gastritis involves, use of very diluted doses of the needed acid or in other medication. As with so many conditions that I discuss in this column, the correct treatment cannot be flatly prescribed. It can be chosen only after the precise form of the ailment has been determined. This is true of gastritis. It may be from irritation due to something that is being consumed or it may, as in the case of insufficient hydrochloric acid, be from a systematic change.

I wish I could give some answer to gastritis that would fit everybody — but that just isn't the way things are.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About 10 years ago I had a spur removed by surgery from the bottom of my heel. Now I have developed one on the other heel, so painful

Constellation Orion At Best in January

WASHINGTON — Orion, the most brilliant constellation in the northern skies, is best seen during January.

The bright cluster rises in the east each evening. It will reach its highest point — directly overhead — at 9 p.m. Eastern Standard Time on January 27, the National Geographic Society says.

Orion has more bright stars than any other constellation. Even beginners experience little difficulty in identifying the group.

Long ago the constellation suggested to the Greeks a giant hunter with an uplifted club, so they named it for a mighty hunter in their mythology.

Stripped of legend, Orion is simply nine bright stars and a nebula. Four of the stars form an irregular rectangle; in its center are three stars in a row (Orion's "belt"). Below the belt are two other stars and the Great Nebula, creating a total effect of a rectangle with a T in the center.

Orion's Great Nebula resembles a hazy star, but it actually is a huge cloud of gas and dust illuminated by hot stars embedded in it. Astronomers watch the Great Nebula closely, because they believe that it may be an area where new stars form through the accumulation and condensation of gas and dust.

Down through history, the constellation has served as a giant Rorschach inkblot into which the world's peoples have read many legends.

To the ancient Egyptians, the constellation represented the god Horus riding in a boat. The Hebrews knew Orion as Keshil, a giant tied to the heavens for impiety. The Australian Arunta tribe sees in the stars a group of young men dancing. Eskimos identified the belt with three hunters lost in the snow, while Nova Scotia's Micmac Indians believe the stars are three fishermen.

The brightest star in Orion is Alpha Orionis, or Betelgeuse, a corruption of an Arabic phrase meaning "the armpit of the white belted sheep." The ruddy-colored star is found in Orion's right shoulder. The bright blue star Rigel, seventh brightest in the heavens, gleams in his left leg.

Venus: This brilliant planet may be seen in the southwest at sunset and will reach its highest point above the western horizon January 25.

Mars: The red planet will be found in the constellation Virgo, rising in the east soon after midnight.

Jupiter: Like Mars, the large

Rudd Rejected By Army for Medical Reason

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Mark Rudd, the student rebel leader, has been permanently rejected by the Army after a recheck of his medical records.

"They don't want to take me," Rudd said recently at the Armed Forces Induction Center. "Any medical decision is prompted by political considerations."

"The Army is fragile and unstable. I question whether they want a well-known 'left' organizer who might bring together the disaffected in the Army," Rudd, 21, of Maplewood, N.J., lost his student deferment when he was expelled from Columbia University for his part in the student uprising last spring.

Maj. Clement St. Martin, chief processing officer at the induction center, said Rudd asked the Army not to disclose its reasons for rejection. He said Rudd probably will be classified 4-F by his draft board.

Discrimination Law Tested; Professor Is Rebuked by Landlord

NEW YORK (AP) — An associate college professor, blind from birth, has complained to the city's Human Rights Commission that a landlord refused him an apartment because of his lack of sight.

Edwin R. Lewinson, 38, made the charge recently in the first complaint to be filed with the commission under a new city law which bars discrimination against physically handicapped persons.

Lewinson, who teaches history at Seton Hall University in South Orange, N.J., said in the complaint that the landlord, not identified by the commission, insisted he feared liability for any mishap occurring because of Lewinson's handicap.

William H. Booth, commission chairman, said acceptance of the complaint would be deferred until it was "determined whether the case comes within the jurisdiction of this law." The law went into effect 20 days after Lewinson applied for the apartment.

Actor May Seek Laird's Post in 7th District

Dennis Morgan to Sound Out Chances On GOP Slate

Actor Dennis Morgan's name has been added to the list of possible candidates for Wisconsin's 7th District congressional seat being vacated by Defense Secretary-designate Melvin R. Laird, R-Marshfield.

The 58-year-old Prentice native reportedly will return from Los Angeles, Calif., to sound out his chances. Republicans reportedly are urging him to run.

His name brings the list of hopefuls to seven and some Republicans expect that number to more than double. Laird is expected to resign the post after the Senate confirms his appointment to the Nixon cabinet.

Morgan has a summer home at Lac du Flambeau in the neighboring 10th District. Prentice is in the 7th District.

Morgan, who is the former Stanley Morner, attended Marshfield High School, was graduated from Carroll College, Waukesha, and was an announcer-singer on a Milwaukee radio station in the early 1930s.

Although he has not sought public office before, Morgan campaigned for fellow actors Ronald Reagan, California governor, and George Murphy, California senator.

Like unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate Bronson LaFollette, who at one time considered running for Laird's post, Morgan may be subject to "carpetbagging" criticism.

The 7th District GOP executive committee reportedly will meet next week to decide whether to endorse a candidate. It has not done so in recent past primary battles.

Republicans eying the congressional post are Carl Dretzke, Manawa industrialist, Rick Murray, Fort Atkinson, unsuccessful 2nd District congressional candidate, and Hude H. Murray, Ogdensburg attorney.

Democrats include Assemblyman David Obey, Wausau; Will Sandstrom, a Wausau biochemist, and Robert Hack, Mosinee, a University of Wisconsin graduate student.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles is expected to call a special election after Laird resigns. The election must come between 55 and 70 days after his order, and a primary must precede this by four weeks.

Candidates will have nine to 24 days to gather enough signatures to get on the ballot.

versity faculty and school board member for the past three years, intends to run for a second term. Roberts, 37, resides at 216 N. Park Avenue. He lists his occupation as a coach and teacher.

Roberts has been a strong critic of Mayor George Buckley, who recently took out papers for school board also, claiming the time had come to "change the composition of the school board". Roberts charged the mayor with playing politics.

Ald. Ralph C. Gertsch, 47, of 1833 N. Mason St., announced his candidacy for re-election to the 19th Ward aldermanic position which he has held for the past two years. Gertsch, who is in the manufacturing business, is also a member of the park-recreation commission.

In another development, William F. Arnold, 39, of 114 W. Commercial St., started circulating papers for 1st Ward alderman. An employee of the Neenah-Menasha Sewage Division and a real estate broker, Arnold twice has been an unsuccessful candidate for city assessor.

Myse Returns As Spokesman For Teachers

Attorney to Have Familiar Role in New Contract Talks

Appleton teacher contract bargaining will resume next week but not with the spokesmen who opened the talks in late November.

Appleton attorney Gordon Myse will return as spokesman for the Appleton Education Association (AEA) after serving a short time as the AEA's at-the-table consultant.

Myse was spokesman last year, but the teachers named a teacher as spokesman last fall to, as they explained it, improve the bargaining communications.

However, the board of education several days ago hired a Milwaukee attorney to conduct its bargaining. The board claims it has been at a disadvantage because the AEA was represented by legal counsel.

Informal Meeting

The board's spokesman, Lawrence Gooding, met informally Monday afternoon with Supt. of Schools William Spears: Myse; Richard Pike, AEA negotiations committee chairman, and committee members.

Bargaining sessions were set for the nights of Jan. 15, 22 and 29. One session was held in late November when the sides exchanged proposals, and at the session, Pike and Kenneth Sager, chairman of the board's now dissolved professional improvement committee were spokesmen.

The AEA negotiating committee reinstated Myse as spokesman, but this is not hard and fast.

"AEA Flexible"

However, Myse noted, "the AEA is still flexible to respond to the circumstances as they present themselves."

He added the AEA has no objection to the board being represented by an attorney, except that it eliminates the "hoped-for" teacher-board member communications relationship.

"But our only concern is that we have some rapport so that we can discuss educationally-oriented items," Myse said.

At Disadvantage

The board hired Gooding after looking at three professional negotiators. It decided after months of study that it was at a disadvantage on legal and technical aspects of bargaining.

Last year's bargaining ended after 10 months and resulted in accepting a state-appointed fact-finder's report calling for more than $1.1 million in negotiated gains for teachers.

Equalization Practices To be Viewed at COG

OSHKOSH — A report on state equalization and local assessment practices will be presented tonight at the Fox Valley Council of Governments' (COG) first 1969 monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

Werner Doering, director of the State Bureau of Property Taxation, was asked to speak after COG official Leonard Wright, Oshkosh City Council president, posed questions about the city's rates.

Its mercantile rate is thought to be slightly high in relation to the state equalization, he said.

In other business, the preliminary proposed land use plan showing existing uses will be presented, with overlays and maps. The plan is subject to change, noted Arno Haering, COG regional planning director.

The plan is part of COG comprehensive sewer and water and solid wastes studies.

A report also will be given on COG Executive Director Eugene E. Franchett's recent meeting with state officials about law enforcement and crime prevention.

The state had indicated what it would like COG to do in planning for organizing and administering law enforcement in the area. This would entail looking at existing situations and then long-range planning.

County police said that his car collided with a car driven by Patricia M. Boyle, 24, 1468 Lakeview Lane, Menasha. The Ciszak auto was southbound on Barbara Avenue and the Boyle auto westbound on County Trunk P, police said.

Mrs. Boyle was advised to see a doctor for treatment of bruises and a chipped tooth.

Damage to each car was estimated at more than $200.

Best of the Old... Speed of the New

Lillian Mackesy POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

Family recipes that have years of tradition and use behind them have a special appeal. They become even better when teamed with the ease and speed of modern day cooking.

There are ways to apply short-cut methods to old favorites or dishes which have foreign origins and represent some very fine cooking. For instance, Shepherd's Pie is an English dish that has been on British supper tables for many years. The recipe for this meat and potato dish, which is not a pie at all, came over with the Colonists.

Nourishing, filling and a good way to use leftovers, Shepherd's Pie has a lot going for it as a low-budget food. It's not hard to prepare from scratch, but with a new beef flavored mushroom mix, it's even easier and faster. It can be made on top of the range and popped under the broiler to brown the mashed potato topping.

Then there's Yankee Cassoulet, adapted from its French original which took days to prepare. A stout bean-sausage-meat casserole, the Yankee version streamlines the cooking time by having tomato sauce with tomato bits in it on hand in canned form. Serve the delicious Yankee Cassoulet (which also can utilize leftovers) with a salad, the same kind of wine used in the cooking of the dish and fresh fruit for dessert.

Another great dish that's hearty, flavorful and economical is the German favorite of sauerkraut and frankfurters. The Kraut and Frank Supper is a skillet favorite that makes a meal-in-one dish that needs only thick slices of buttered bread and beverage to round out a wonderful meal.

When making the skillet dish, it's important to heat the vegetable shortening thoroughly before adding the finely chopped potatoes. Press the potatoes evenly over the bottom of the frying pan and let them brown without stirring. This is the way to get them to turn into a golden brown crust on top of which the kraut and franks are cooked.

For a hearty party meal or Sunday dinner we suggest a handsome Roast Pork with Fruit Filling. This recipe is a Danish favorite that has a superb flavor with the apples and prunes combining with a pork crown roast.

With the roast, serve Topsy Cake, another popular English dessert that's old in recipe. Serve the cake with a rich rum and orange sauce for an exciting touch. Hot Curried Slaw goes with the meat and the original recipe for this dish salad comes from Holland where it's traditional.

Then, for variation, there's the Cherry Cobbler that has been a popular farm kitchen concoction ever since the United States was young. Almost all European country folk have a variation of this one. But the modern adaptation uses a new sweet cream pancake and waffle mix along with canned prepared cherry filling. Cherry Cloud Cobbler will put all dinners right up on Cloud Nine!

YANKEE CASSOULET
2 cups dried pea beans or small navy beans, washed and drained

1 quart water
1 teaspoon salt
1 onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, crushed
1/2 teaspoon thyme
2 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce with tomato bits
1 cup dry white wine
1 pound bulk pork sausage
2 cups cubed cooked meat (ham, beef or chicken)
1 cup buttered fresh bread crumbs
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

In Dutch oven bring beans, water and salt to boil; cook two minutes.

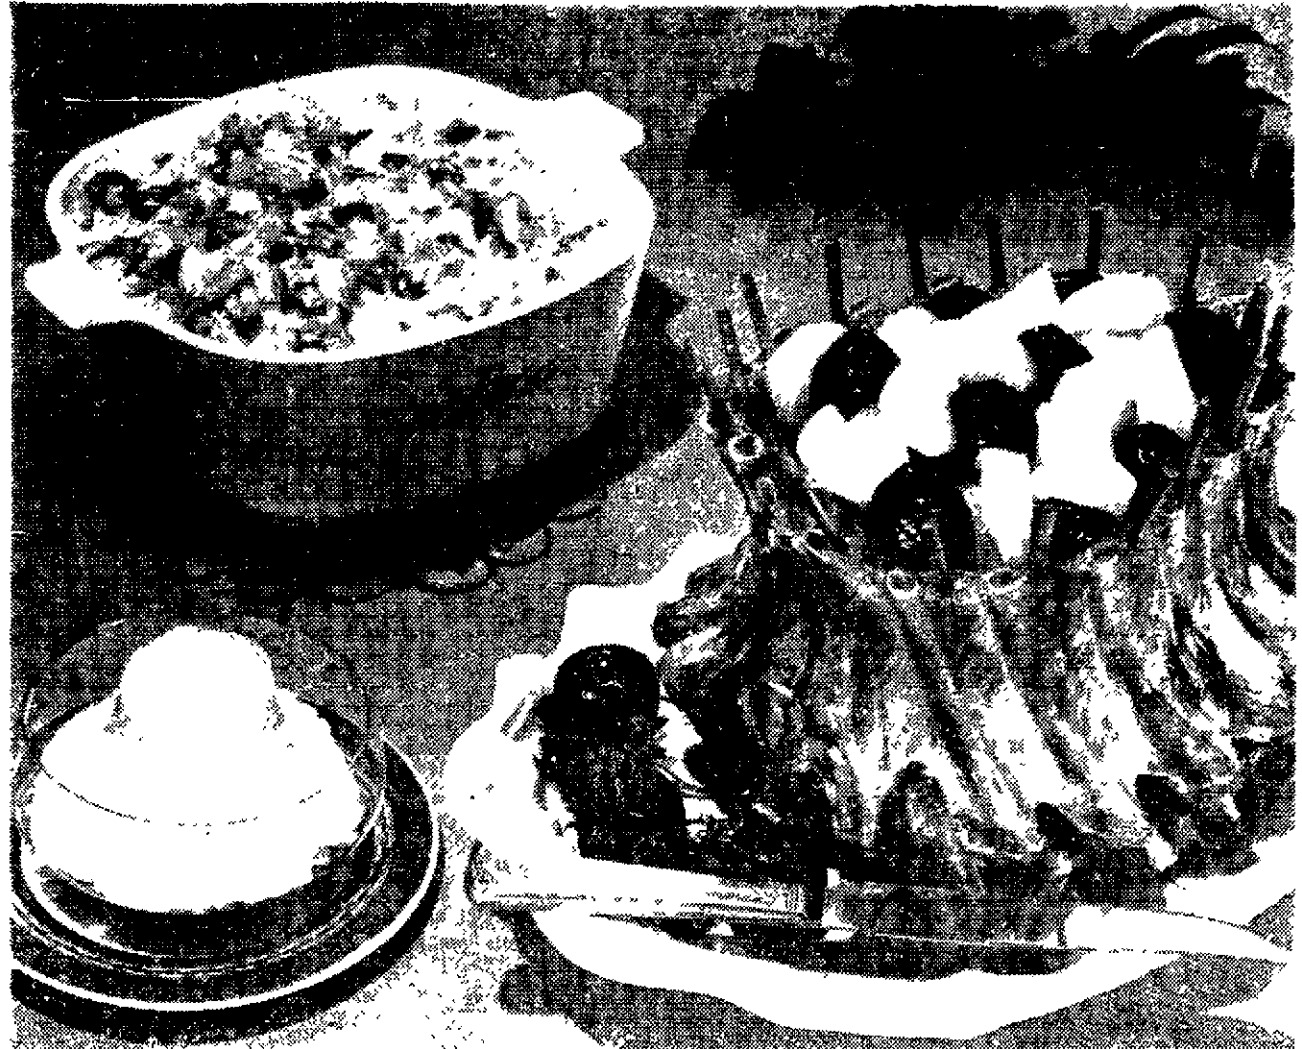

Remove from heat; let stand one hour.

Add onion, garlic and thyme; simmer, covered, one hour. Stir in tomato sauce with tomato bits and wine; simmer, covered, one hour.

Meanwhile, brown sausage; pour off fat. Add drained sausage and cubed meat to beans. Sprinkle crumbs and parsley over top.

Bake, uncovered, at 325 degrees for 45 to 50 minutes or until bubbly and browned on top. For a browner, crispier crumb topping broil a few minutes just before serving. Recipe makes six generous servings.

KRAUT AND FRANK SUPPER

1/2 cup finely chopped cooked potatoes

finely chopped
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
3/4 cups drained sauerkraut
1 pound frankfurters, sliced 1-inch thick
1/4 cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar
Prepared mustard

Heat shortening in a heavy 10- to 12-inch skillet. Combine potatoes, onion, salt and pepper; add to skillet. Press potato mixture firmly and evenly over bottom of skillet. Cook over medium high heat, without stirring, until a brown crust forms on the bottom, about 10 minutes.

Mix together kraut, frankfurters and sugar; spread evenly over potatoes in the skillet. Reduce heat; cover and cook 10 to 15 minutes, or until kraut is heated through. Run spatula around edge of skillet. Turn out onto large plate or serve from skillet. Serve with mustard. Recipe makes four servings.

SHEPHERD'S PIE
2 tablespoons butter
1 medium onion, chopped
1 package (10 oz.) frozen mixed vegetables
2 cups cut-up cooked beef
1 tablespoon flour
1 envelope (1 1/4 oz.) beef flavor mushroom mix
1 1/2 cups water
3 cups hot seasoned mashed potatoes

In large skillet, melt butter; saute onion until tender; add mixed vegetables and meat (separate vegetables with a fork).

Stir in flour, beef flavor mushroom mix and water; simmer, stirring occasionally, 10 minutes or until vegetables are tender.

Turn into 1 1/2-quart casserole; top with potatoes. Brown quickly under broiler. Recipe makes about six servings.

ROAST PORK WITH FRUIT FILLING
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
6 pound crown loin of pork
1 can or jar (16 oz.) cooked prunes
1 can (20 oz.) sliced apples

Combine salt and pepper; rub into crown pork roast, place in a shallow roasting pan, bone ends up. Wrap tips in foil to prevent excess browning. Roast in a slow oven (325 degrees) 35 to 40 minutes per pound (about 3 1/2-4 hours). About one hour before roast is done, combine drained pitted prunes and drained apples. Fill center of

Mrs. Consumer 1969 Described By Appleton's W. B. Murphy

BY W. B. MURPHY

In attempting to determine what foods will appeal most to Mrs. American Consumer during 1969, it is interesting to consider several statistics about today's average homemaker.

First of all, she is younger than the average homemaker of 10 years ago. In 1969, we will find 54 per cent of total United States population will be under age 30, compared to 49 per cent in 1950.

W. B. Murphy, born and educated in Appleton, and today the president of Campbell Soup Company, takes a statistical look at the American homemaker of today and compares her to those of yesterday. She comes up better educated, more urban and sophisticated, not to mention her shopping ability and interest in good food value for her money.

More Families

Those born in the late 1940s are now reaching the age for establishing homes of their own, and for the next several years new family formations are expected to be significantly higher than in the past decade.

The new homemakers are more urban. Since 1960, the population of metropolitan areas has grown at a rate nearly triple the rate of population growth in non-metropolitan areas.

The new homemakers are sampled more foreign foods, sophisticated. They have traveled in more restaurants, and, more widely and have had, above all, have grown up in an era of vast food industry innovation.

Better Educated

The new homemakers are better educated. Today, 54 per cent of those over 25 in the United States have completed high school, compared to only 42 per cent just 10 years ago. Increasing numbers today are attending college.

They are more discerning about food values, are better informed about home management, are more aware of inflation and its effect on their lives. They are very much concerned about the welfare of their children.

When shopping for food in 1969, it is likely that the new generation of homemakers will continue to desire greater variety, better quality, and more convenience, but increasingly, the food dollar.

1969 Food Prices to Stay Steady, Says Specialists

Food prices will remain about the same through the spring of 1969, reports Rosemary Stare, consumer marketing specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

Farmers' prices will be pushed down by the large supplies of farm products in prospect and a slow-down in consumer demand. However, prices for food served in restaurants probably will keep rising. There may be some small increase in food prices during the next six months.

But prices for most other consumer items will be rising at a greater rate.

About 17.2 per cent of family income after taxes was spent for food in 1968. This is down just slightly from 1967 levels. Spending trends are predicted to remain about the same this year.

Compared with a year earlier, retail food prices should rise at modified rates in the first six months of 1969 — if consumer demand slackens. Prices should be lower for pork fats and oils, fresh and processed vegetables and many fruit products.

Beef, cereal and bakery products, sugar, tea and coffee will be available at about the same price levels. The cost of eggs, turkey, dairy products, potatoes, candy and soft drinks is expected to go up.

Per capita consumption of red meat, broilers, fresh fruit and fresh and processed vegetables in the first half of 1969 is expected to reach higher levels than a year earlier. A decline in consumption is likely for turkey, veal, lamb and eggs.

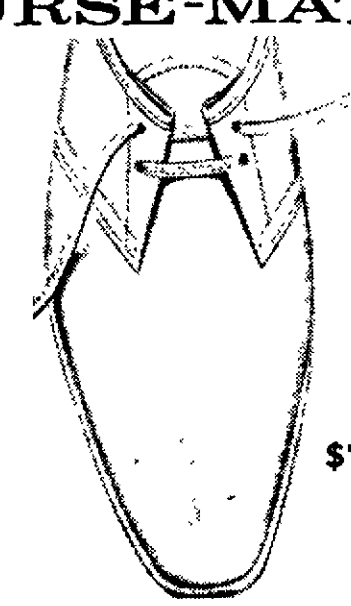

If these changes occur, the intake of Vitamin C, iron, and thiamine in the average diet will increase, but the level for calcium will go down.

Sheinwold Long Shot May Prove Disastrous

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
You can afford to laugh at South if you have never muffed a safety play. South played today's hand as millions of card pushers would. The odds were 40 to 1 that South's play would not cost him his contract, but unfortunately long shots sometimes come in.

South won the first trick in dummy with the king of clubs, and led dummy's queen of diamonds for a finesse. This "normal" play cost him his contract.

West won with the king of diamonds and returned a club to the ace. South took the ace of diamonds and gave West a diamond trick. West cashed his good club and got out with his last diamond to dummy's jack.

Declarer discarded a spade on the last diamond and then tried the heart finesse. On a good day this would work, getting South off the hook, but West won with the queen of hearts and got out safely with another heart.

South could win only eight tricks, winding up with a minus score and a red face.

Sure Play
South is sure of four diamond tricks if he plays the suit correctly. He should lead a heart to his hand and then lead a low diamond toward dummy.

If the diamonds break 2-2 or 3-1, South can easily win four diamond tricks. The only problem arises when one opponent has all of the missing diamonds.

If West has all of the diamonds, dummy's jack forces out East's king. East returns a club to the ace, and now declarer wins a finesse with the nine of diamonds. He continues with the ace and queen of diamonds, and then with dummy's last diamond.

Daily Question
Partner opens with 1-NT (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold: S-Q 9 2, H-Q 7 2, D-K 10 8 7, C-Q J 10. What do you say?

Answer: Bid 3-NT. Since you have 10 points in high cards you know that the combined count is 26 to 28 points. This should be enough to yield a reasonable play for game.

College People Answer 'Concerned Dad'

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please give me a chance to reply to "Concerned Dad" — the father who complained that today's colleges and universities are nothing more than open brothels supported by taxpayers. I could take his arguments apart sentence by sentence, but since space is limited, I'll stick to the central issues.

Dear Concerned Dad: You were correct when you said colleges aren't what they used to be. In some ways, perhaps, they are not as good, but in more ways they are better. It's harder to get into a good college than it was in your day, and harder to stay in.

You seem worried that your son will spend all his time making out, carrying signs with dirty words, and setting fire to the main buildings. Why? The percentage of kids who do this is small, and usually they don't last long.

The overwhelming majority of college students study longer and harder than you did. They must in order to survive. There is more to learn and the institutions for students. More to the point, if you and your wife failed to do your job as parents, don't expect us to salvage him. Sir John Wolfenden said, "Schoolmasters and parents exist to be grown out of."

Harvard Dean, Cambridge, Mass.

Dear Dad: Amen, brother, amen.

DEAR ANN: We waited eight weeks for good seats to a great musical — eighth row, center. Two minutes before the curtain went up, a lady seated herself directly in front of me. She had a two-story hairdo which stood mysteriously erect — 10 inches above her empty skull.

What would you have done, Ann Landers? — Judge G.L.Q.

Dear Judge: I would have tapped the lady on the shoulder, informed her that her hairdo was obstructing my view, and ask that she move her head about six inches to the side.

Fever: The Body's Early Warning System

Just what does a child's fever mean?

When the mouth temperature is taken and the thermometer's red line climbs above the 98.6 degree arrow, a mother may have cause for concern.

That's understandable, for the child's fevered brow and flushed face are signs that something could be wrong. Actually fever can be friend as well as foe. It's the body's early warning system. And, it is also one condition that can almost always be relieved.

The body's temperature is not constant. During any 24-hour period, it has several ups and downs from the 98.6 degree norm. It is generally at a low — usually 97 degrees or a bit lower — during the early morning hours. This is because the circulation of our blood slows down while we sleep. By late afternoon or early evening, with the day's activity, it may go up to about 99.5 degrees.

Similar to House

The body's heating system is very similar to that in your own home. The body, like a furnace, burns fuel which, in this case, is food that is burned primarily in muscle tissue. This generated heat is then distributed through a vast network of blood vessels in the same way the furnace's heat is sent out through the house through a system of pipes. Like a house, too, the body is insulated. The insulation is a layer of fat under the skin.

The body likewise has a "thermostat." It is located in the hypothalamus, a part of the brain. This thermostat goes into immediate action once there's an infection or outbreak of disease.

When a hand, for instance, becomes infected and inflamed, you will notice it gets quite hot at that place. This is a little localized fever. If this localized fever does not overcome the infection, then toxins known as pyrogens accumulate and go to the brain's thermostat. This signals an action that fires up the entire body to battle the invading germs. Body fever signifies that the infection isn't minor or limited to one area but is now serious enough to summon all the body's natural defenses.

When to Call Doctor

Babies and young children tend to get very high temperatures from only slight infections. A child's temperature can shoot up to 104 degrees for a few hours with just a simple sore throat. This is mainly because the thermostat in the child is not fully developed. Conversely, there are a number of serious ailments, such as appendicitis, that often produce only low fevers.

As a rule, when your child's temperature goes over 103 degrees you should summon the doctor. A fever of 103 degrees or more usually leads to excessive loss of water, known as dehydration. It is important that the water lost at this time be replaced.

High temperatures also burn up proteins, carbohydrates and fat at a rapid rate. This weakens the child at a time when reserves are so badly needed. That's why doctors suggest a balanced diet that is especially high in protein.

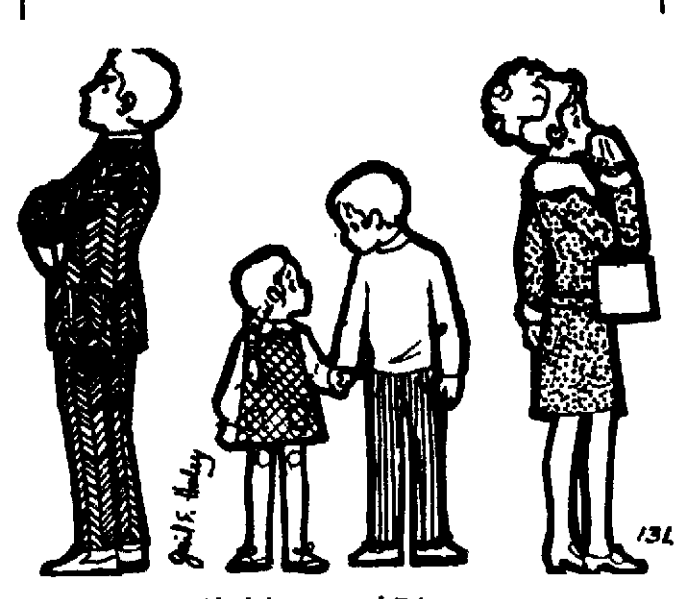

There was a time when fever was allowed to run its course on the theory that once it broke, recovery was imminent. Today, doctors believe in bringing the fever down as quickly as possible.

The most widely used method of bringing a child's temperature down is aspirin. How does this is still a mystery, but being probed intensively today by medical scientists. Until recently it was believed that aspirin acted directly on the body's thermostat in the brain. Now other studies point to the possibility that aspirin may work to inhibit formation of toxins in the body's white blood cells thus allowing the thermostat to start reducing the temperature by increasing sweating. Usually aspirin will start to bring a fever down within 30 minutes and will hold it at a lower level for as much as four hours. This should give you enough time to consult your physician, so he can determine the underlying cause of the fever.

But it, like death, can be explained to children so that potentially damaging psycholog-ical effects are minimized.

Dr. Westman recommends that parents spell out to each other, and to their children, the real reasons why they cannot continue to live together. Such explanations to children must, of course, be adapted to their ages and understanding. The truth, he feels, is better for kids than pretending that parents, though in the throes of divorce, are still "buddies." Such an explanation may be painful. Play It Safe at Home

Is your home a safe place to spend 10, 16 or 24 hours a day? Don't bet on it.

Recent statistics reported by the Health Insurance Institute indicate that no one should take the safety of his home for granted. It may be as hazardous as it is comfortable.

Consider these home accident figures from government sources:

Nineteen million Americans are injured in American homes each year. That means that 106 out of each 1,000 Americans is involved in a home mishap.

More than half the fatal non-transportation accidents in the country occur to people in or around their homes.

These figures tell the story: 85 per cent of all deaths from fires and explosions occur in the home; 85 per cent of the nation's poisoning deaths occur there; about 70 per cent of all deaths from poisonous fumes occur in homes; 65 per cent of all fatal falls occur in homes, and 56 per cent of the nation's fatal shootings occur at home — not on the range.

Who are the home accident victims? Generally, the people who stay home the most — namely elderly persons and children under the age of five. These two groups account for two-thirds of all the nation's fatal home accidents. In addition, more women than men are involved in fatal home mishaps.

All of these statistics point up the need for making your home as hazard-free as possible. Be sure all potentially dangerous equipment — stoves, heaters, electrical appliances — are in good working order. And, if repairs are needed, make sure they are done by someone qualified to do the work.

Many mishaps can be avoided through an awareness of the potential hazards. Nonetheless, there is the human factor that can trigger a disaster. Accidents can happen, despite ef-

How to Make or Break Your Husband's Career

Is 1969 going to be the year when you'll have to help your husband make an important decision about his career?

If you're the wife of an executive on the way up, you'll have to face one fact: In today's highly competitive business world, the wife has to play second fiddle to her husband's career.

That's the view of Dr. J. Martin Seidenfeld, of American Management Psychologists Inc., (AMP), a nationwide firm of clinical psychologists who utilize depth psychology to increase the productivity and career satisfaction of business executives.

In working with literally hundreds of executives, many referred by Frederick Chusid & Co., the nation's largest executive career counseling firm and an AMP client, Dr. Seidenfeld has encountered a pattern of wifely hang-ups that hinder, rather than help a man's career.

One of the most common problems involves relocating to another city when an executive is transferred. "to the wife," observes Dr. Seidenfeld, "relocation is often a trauma. She has a comfortable home, her local friends and community life. The children must switch schools and leave their friends behind. While few wives refuse outright to go along, many tend to resist. This resistance ranges all the way from self-sacrificing cooperation to threats of breaking up the marriage. The husband is thus torn between his career and his family."

How can such a situation be resolved? The psychologist recommends that first the couple must talk it out clearly and honestly, making their views known even if they hurt.

"A wife should also look at the pluses in making the move," says Dr. Seidenfeld. "Her husband will probably be earning more, so the family will be able to live in a better home and neighborhood. He'll be higher in the corporate pecking order and have more prestige, which rubs off on the wife and kids. The executive's spouse may have a chance to start a new style of life, perhaps changing from her local bridge club and the PTA to theatre groups, concerts and cocktail parties. Maybe the children will have a chance to take music or dance lessons which weren't possible before."

Long-Term View Best

"Essentially, the wife should take a long-term view. What's best for the family in the long run? A temporary, short-term loss should be weighed against the long-term gains."

Another hang-up of many an executive's wife is the feeling that her husband has outgrown her, socially and intellectually. Burdened with raising a family, while her mate is out in the world broadening his outlook and experiences, she feels left behind. Such a woman reacts by becoming overly-dependent or even 'sick'. She demands more of her man's attention — for herself, the children, for the PTA or their church.

"But the primary interest of an executive," contends Dr. Seidenfeld, "is his career. His life is centered and integrated in his business. For many, this is one kind of reasonably healthy adjustment to life."

Wifely Pressuring

Sometimes a dominating wife becomes a hindrance to her husband's career by pushing him too hard. He may be less ambitious than she would like, because he knows the realities of his particular situation. In his company, for instance, a man must first be a branch manager before he can be a regional manager. Yet his wife may pressure him to ask for a promotion long before it's appropriate. In other instances, an executive's wife meddles by inviting his boss's wife to tea or to join her bridge club — with disastrous consequences.

The decision to change his career must be made by the husband, says Dr. Seidenfeld, and it must be based primarily on his personal career needs, although of course his family's needs must be considered. However, if his wife is not convinced of the need for a switch, she can act as a

Wife's Proper Role

Should a woman try to influence her husband in his career?

"Respect his needs and help him to fulfill them," advises the psychologist. "If he is adventurous and likes to take risks, encourage him to take that new job with another company, or take on a new role in his present company. If his needs are for stability and security, respect them. In this way you'll be encouraging him to develop those personality characteristics which probably attracted you to him in the first place."

"A woman should try to help her husband to realize himself — not to influence him toward her own values. She can tell him, 'If you really want that job, if it will make you happy, go after it.' But if money is the only criterion used in evaluating it, rather than career satisfaction, a psychological conflict may arise which could affect both his business and his personal life."

The proper role of an executive's wife, according to Dr. Seidenfeld, is to retain her own sense of individuality. To be a successful executive, her husband must have certain characteristics: independence, sound judgment, the courage to face reality, imagination, objectivity and the ability to think in terms of long-term rewards. Ideally, she should have these same attributes.

"To the extent that she develops these qualities," says Dr. Seidenfeld, "and she and her husband come to think alike on career and home life, she becomes a real help-mate."

Miss Beryl Slocum, 26, of Newport, R.I. and New York City, confirmed Tuesday she and Adam Clayton Powell 3rd, son of Harlem congressman, are considering marriage. Photo was made at time of her debut in 1960. (AP Wirephoto)

Rub-a-Dub-Dub--a Brush in Every Tub

Quite literally, from head to toe, brushes play an important part in good grooming and comfort. Brushes, which apparently had their origin in cave-man efforts to scrub and scrape with twigs, have become quite scientific in design with a brush to fit every need. An average family may have two dozen or more grooming-related brushes — not including toothbrushes. Regardless of its purpose, a brush must be in good condition and be kept clean to perform effectively.

Examining the categories of a brush "wardrobe," those for the hair present the widest variety. Choices should be made according to hair length, style, and degree of coarseness of fineness. Usually, the heavier the hair, the stiffer the bristle should be. For most women, professional hairdressers recommend a minimum of three different types of brushes necessary for good hair grooming. These are either the professional or half-round brush for the still highly regarded 100-strokes-a-day, the back-brushing or styling brush, and the finishing or smoothing brush.

Stimulates Scalp

Daily brushing stimulates the scalp, improves circulation, polishes hair to a gloss and distributes natural oil throughout the hair between regular shampoos. Daily brushing does not take the set out of hair. On the contrary, brushing helps keep hair healthy and shining, healthy hair keeps its curl best. And for the long straight styles favored by teenagers, that brushed-in sheen is imperative to good looks. The styling brush usually has a rattail handle for sectioning hair. Bristles are very closely spaced and might feature a high and low arrangement. This type brush is most useful for back-brushing a hairdo for body and fullness. The smoothing brush has the softest filaments. It finishes a hair do with a soft, natural touch.

Men's Hair Brushes

In spite of the trend toward longer hairstyles, men's brushes still fall into two categories, club brush with short handle and military brush with no handle. Bristle length may vary — short bristles for crew-cuts, medium length for most styles, and longer bristles for thick, heavy hair. Both men and women benefit from shampoo brushes with plastic "fingers" to massage and cleanse the scalp thoroughly.

Hair care is for baby, too. Tender scalp and downy hair should be given gentle treatment with a very soft-bristled brush. Children's hair brushes might be described as scaled-down versions of those for grown-ups with the major difference being fewer and softer bristles. It is a good rule to wash brushes at the same time hair is shampooed.

For applying cosmetics there are many special-purpose brushes. Some are in every woman's brush wardrobe. Others should be tried, for with a little practice, a clean brush becomes the easiest make-up tool to use. And cleanliness is so important. It takes very little time and suds to swish the small brushes into fresh beauty aids.

Make-Up Face Brush

A thick, soft brush, available with a handle or in a lipstick-type case, fluffs on powder, blushes, and combination make-up and powder. An eyebrow brush is used to soften and to blend the strokes of an eyebrow pencil. It also helps to train and shape eyebrows. Specific brushes effectively apply lipstick, eye shadow, eye liner and mascara. Eye shadows come in palettes or compacts of several shades to be used separately or in combination to achieve different eye effects. Keeping several clean eye-shadow brushes handy makes it easy to blend the shades as desired without mixing up the colors in the "paint-box."

Facial brushes have many soft, closely-set bristles for gentle massage and for working cleansing lather into pores. This type is especially worthwhile for teens — boys included — with oily skin or minor blemishes.

Nail brushes come in several styles, all with stiff short bristles designed to work soap under and around nails. This is a must for both men and women, particularly after dirty work such as, gardening and car tinkering. Such a brush figures in pedicures also, not only to clean and condition toenails, but to help smooth small calluses. It is good to have a nail brush handy at the tubside for use on mudpie bakers, and for the knees of ballplayers and tree climbers.

Bath brushes, featuring long handles for reaching shoulders and back, not only help to clean the skin, but also to stimulate blood circulation. Children's styles have softer bristles and may well be used by the elderly and others with tender skin.

A shoe brush by every shoe bag or stand will encourage everyone to revive a shoeshine between polishing sessions. And finally, a good brush wardrobe includes a lint brush — the last grooming aid used before leaving the house. These, too, are available in several styles to suit every preference.

1/4 cup ground nuts or bread crumbs

Combine consomme, water, bay leaf, garlic, salt, pepper and shredded cabbage in a saucepan. Place cloves in the onion and add to the cabbage. Cook over medium heat for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Drain, discarding the bay leaf, garlic and onion.

Place cabbage in a buttered baking dish. Combine celery soup, cream and curry powder; heat. Pour over cabbage; sprinkle with nuts or bread crumbs. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) for 15 minutes. Recipe makes six servings.

ORANGE TIPS CAKE
1/2 cup sugar
4 eggs, beaten
1 cup sifted flour
Whipped cream
Orange Sauce

Gradually add sugar to beaten eggs, beating until thick and light. Add flour, mixing lightly until well blended. Pour into eight custard cups which have been buttered and dusted lightly with sugar. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 20 minutes or until set and lightly browned. Chill. Unmold unto serving dish. Garnish spoon orange sauce over cake. Recipe makes eight servings.

ORANGE SAUCE
1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Dash salt
Dash cinnamon
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup canned unsweetened orange juice
1/4 cup light rum

Combine sugar, cornstarch, salt and cinnamon. Slowly add water and cook over medium heat until thickened, stirring. Add remaining ingredients; heat until butter is melted. Serve warm or chilled over pudding.

NOTE: Imitation rum extract may be substituted for rum. Increase water to two-thirds cup; orange juice to one-third cup. Use one teaspoon rum extract.

CHERRY CLOUD COBBLER
1 can (1 lb. 5 oz.) prepared cherry pie filling
1/4 cup water
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 1/2 cups sweet cream

Cherry Cloud Cobbler is a surprise dessert made from a sweet cream pancake and waffle mix and prepared cherry pie filling that comes in a can. It's a cobbler, all right, but our grandmothers would be astonished at how it can be made today.

pancake mix
2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 cup solid vegetable shortening

of recipe. Heat until bubbly. Spoon into 9-inch square baking dish.

To make topping: Combine pancake mix and sugar. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add milk. Stir until well blended. 30 to 40 strokes. With two teaspoons, drop dough in 12 biscuits onto hot cherry mixture. Bake at 400 degrees for 18 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. Recipe makes 8 to 10 servings.

Back in the good old days, on today's textile market, for a happy and warm New Year!

Today, winter underwear is again becoming popular, says Joan Rolfs, home economist, University Extension.

Basically there are only two kinds of winter underwear: thermal and quilted. A thermal fabric is one that has been knitted to form pockets of air between the skin and the raised portions of the fabric. Warmth is provided by the body's own heat. Because it insulates by trapping air between skin and the next layer of clothing, the thermal knit is designed to be worn with other garments.

Precautionary Measures
Fire resistance has become a consideration in quilted and thermal underwear made of polyester and nylon fibers. Although they do not catch fire more quickly than others, when they start to burn, they form a molten, sticky mass that adheres to the skin, causing deep burns. As a precautionary measure, these garments should not be worn as outer wear or in a situation where there is fire danger. Fire-retardant winter underwear is not available on the market, so it is advisable to read the labels.

With the exception of the turtle-neck style and an outfit of red and white hounds-tooth checks, fashion seems to be a minor consideration among men's winter underwear manufacturers.

Women's Winter Wear
Winter wear for women shows a little more imagination, both in styling and color. Ski shirts and pants, petti-pants, one-piece jump suits, and knee-length and calf-length pants come in a variety of prints and solid colors.

Today, winter underwear is washable and dryable by machine. Garments may also be hand-washed, and line-dried. Two sets of underwear will be plenty to get through the bitterest winter.

For the 1969 winter season, consider the new winter wear.

Camouflage Eye Problems

A lovely writes: My eyes are too small for my face. The left lid droops a bit, too, and this makes my left eye seem even smaller. Would makeup of some kind help to even up appearances?

The Answer: It is a common practice to use makeup for increasing the apparent size of the eyes. The basic step is blending pale beige eyeshadow from lashes to eyebrow, from inner corners of eyes to temples. Edges at the browlines and sides are then feathered to nothingness. Based on an art principle, lightening the lids in this way causes the eyes to look much larger.

When any puffiness occurs directly under the eyebrows, soften it with the merest film of brown shadow. Be sure to place and confine the color on the bony area. Using dark shadow atop light may seem a contradiction, but it is not. It minimizes puffs which otherwise would dwarf the eyes.

In any case, a sooty eyeliner is called for. Draw the line close to the lashes from center of lids to one-quarter inch beyond outer corner. If you so desire, you may add to effects with fake eyelashes — a short strip designed for wear at the outer corners.

For irregularly sized eyes, the best camouflage is an off-balance hairstyle. Direct the hair up and away from the smaller side; let the larger side carry the weight of hair such as bangs and side fullness.

But beware, don't exaggerate in any way. For success, underplay.

You are not lost to youthful beauty because of dark circles, puffiness, or wrinkles around the eyes. These problems can be brought under control by proper skin care, cosmetic applications, health habits and facial expressions. Methods are detailed in my leaflet, The Eyes of Youth. To obtain your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing 15 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Copyright, 1969)

The Ailing House Flush Door Makes Great New Table

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN
Q: Where can I get some easy-to-follow plans for making a dining table? My family has outgrown the present one. — Columbus.

A: This is one of the easiest and most satisfactory projects one can take up. Buy a flush door at the lumber yard and let them show you the various finishing materials. Then, if they carry them you can also buy a set of good-looking brass-tipped legs, or wrought iron legs, all ready to fasten, using only a screwdriver.

A great percentage of flush doors wind up as handsome tables.

Q: Is it possible to silence a squeaky stair without first having to remove all the carpeting? — Baltimore.

A: Yes, and it's easy. At an angle, drive long finishing nails down through the carpeting and through the tread itself into the riser board, so you secure the squeaky boards firmly together. Use a nailset so the nailhead goes clear through the carpeting. The nap will close over again and you'll never see the slightest sign of the nails.

Annual Budget Would End Deficits, Democrats Claim

Huber, Obey Continue Attacks on Knowles' Political Estimating

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The Assembly Democratic leadership bravely Gov. Gaylord Nelson. The Democrats did not discuss the impact and challenged the "no tax pact of growing overall state increase" budget claims of Gov. Knowles on the growth of deficit Warren P. Knowles a day after sizes. a Republican sweep took over the statehouse.

Minority Leader Robert Huber of West Allis, and David R. Obey of Wausau, assistant Assembly minority leader, accused Knowles of "political estimating" in claiming throughout last fall's campaigns that the state has a balanced budget and demanded that state government shift to an annual budget cycle to prevent deficit financing in the future.

The charges came less than a week after state administrators revealed that the Wisconsin welfare operations are expected to run about $28 million in the red this fiscal year.

Claims Ignored
Democrats pointed to and accurately predicted growing deficits as long ago as last spring. Obey and Huber charged, but the claims were ignored as state administrators echoed Knowles "political" estimates the Democrats charged.

The press conference at which the charges were hurled came a day after Republican majorities took formal control of both houses of the Legislature and Republicans were sworn into all five partisan constitutional offices.

The Democratic lower house leadership accused Knowles of piling up the largest state deficit since 1951. They predicted that the deficits caused by welfare needs and school aid shortages this biennium, which ends on June 30, will reach $36.6 million.

They said that Knowles started the biennium with a $58.7 million surplus, meaning that committee on tourism will have really reached over $95 million because of his "no tax promotion and development increase" claim.

According to their figures, Assemblyman Wesley Packard, one of the three deficit budgets R-Lod-managed before the existing Democratic shortage were those of two-term Democratic leadership Gov. Gaylord Nelson. The Democrats did not discuss the impact and challenged the "no tax pact of growing overall state increase" budget claims of Gov. Knowles on the growth of deficit Warren P. Knowles a day after sizes. a Republican sweep took over the statehouse.

Huber claimed that Wilbur Schmidt, Secretary of the State Department of Health and Social Services, must have known about the $25.9 million welfare deficit during the past six months, but did not announce it because of Knowles' directives.

In response to the Schmidt revelation, Knowles has ordered a freeze on most state salaries, a halt to state hiring except in emergency situations, and a trimming of state travel budgets for the remainder of this fiscal year.

Until the Schmidt announcement, his budgeting office had maintained that the state would finish the biennium with a $3.9 million surplus.

Huber and Obey asserted that annual budgeting sessions, replacing the existing two-year budget cycle, would prevent such problems in the future.

Pressure Needed
No governor would attempt to claim a balanced budget in the face of deficits which could be discovered within months of its passage they claimed.

The existing budget cleared the 1967 Legislature in the summer of 1967. The Democratic chieftains said that they hoped to pick up enough Republican votes to add to their 47 man caucus to shift the state to an annual financing base. Public pressure is needed, they suggested.

In other Assembly developments, Assembly Speaker Harold V. Froehlich, R-Appleton, reported that a new lower house committee on tourism will be created by the 1969 Legislature and George Simon, Third Ward alderman. Also taking out the state. It will be headed by Assemblyman Wesley Packard, also for the First Ward aldermanic post.

State Prison Warden Plans To Retire in Fall

Annual Report Also Shows Decline in Number of Prisoners

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — John C. Burke, for more than 30 years warden of the state prison at Waupun and probably the senior penitentiary chief in the country, has informed the State Board of Health and Social Services that he will retire next fall.

The disclosure came in Burke's annual report to the board, presented as it made one of its periodic inspection tours of the state's major detention facility for adult males.

Burke noted that he has served as warden at Waupun longer than any other man in the history of the institution, and it may be that I have been warden longer than any other warden in the country."

The warden's annual accounting, meanwhile, showed that there has been an appreciable decline in the population of the institution during recent years, which has made possible the closing of an open dormitory at the prison which was a topic of concern to the prison administration for years.

Fewer Prisoners
Average daily population during the last year was 928, which compared with nearly 1,200 only four years earlier.

Highlighting the operations of the prison, Burke said that virtually all of its inmates perform some work, and that the prison school system is also expanding. Sixty per cent of the prison population is involved in the prison school programs to some degree, the supervising board was told.

Burke said that a major problem of the prison administration is the recruitment of security officers, and that it probably won't be resolved until the prison's salary schedule is made competitive with those of law enforcement agencies which now offer higher pay to potential prison guard recruits.

The median age of the Waupun inmates remains almost constant at about 35 years, the largest single group of inmates has been incarcerated less than six months, and only 2.5 per cent of them have been held at the institution more than ten years. The most common offenses leading to imprisonment are burglary, robbery and murder, in that order, the report disclosed.

Mustangs Rap Wrightstown Cage Team

Triumph, 83-41, For Campaign's Fourth Success

LITTLE CHUTE — Capturing a 37-22 lead at halftime, the Little Chute Mustangs went on to trounce Wrightstown, 83-47, in a non-conference tilt Tuesday night.

Little Chute took a 1-0 lead on Bob Hackel's free throw and never trailed. The Mustangs commanded a 14-8 lead after the initial period, increased the margin by six in the second, 15 in the third, and six in the fourth. By the latter part of the third stanza they were able to substitute freely.

Little Chute strangled the Tigers' offense with a three quarters-court defense which they employed in all but the last period. This defense caused numerous turn overs on the part of Wrightstown, many of which were picked up by sophomore guard Ben Penning.

Little Chute edged the Tigers in rebounds, 43-41, with sophomore guard Steve Mollen and forward Mike Fitzpatrick contributing 11 and 10 snags respectively. Tim McDaniel led Wrightstown with 11 rebounds.

Scores 22 Points
McDaniel also was the game's high scorer, as he sank seven from the floor and connected on eight tosses from the line for a total of 22 points. Teammate Tom Ribarchek, usually the team's high scorer, managed only nine.

Meminger's Goal Sinks Loyola, 65-64

By BOB GREENE
MILWAUKEE (AP)—It made no difference who won and who lost as far as the officials were concerned Tuesday night. Both coaches were unhappy.

Marquette, ranked 20th in The Associated Press college basketball poll, edged Loyola of Chicago 65-64 when sophomore guard Dean Meminger sank a 15-foot jumper with three seconds remaining in the game.

The Marquette Warriors had squandered a 10-point lead, 61-51, in the final three minutes before Meminger's heroics pushed them to their seventh consecutive victory and snapped Loyola's win streak at three.

With Loyola ahead 62-61, and less than a minute to play, Rambler coach George Ireland thought Marquette's Ric Cobb, a high-jumping center, was guilty of goal-tending.

After Meminger's game-winning shot, Loyola called time out. But the scoreboard clock showed the game was over. However, the officials ruled there were still two seconds to play, and the Chicago school got one more chance at a victory.

"The turning point," said Ireland, "was the goal-tending call there at the end. That would have given us a three-point lead with—what was it? Less than a minute to go? How many people in the building didn't see it, though?"

Ireland, who led the Ramblers to an NCAA championship a few years ago, shrugged off the defeat and said: "You win or lose them, don't you? At least the people got their money's worth."

Al McGuire, Marquette coach, said he argued with the officials at the end of the game because of the principle of the call.

"They called time out when the clock showed two seconds left. I'm not arguing about that. But when is time really out? When the team calls it, when the officials signal it or when the officials notify the official timekeeper?"

"If you are going to relay the time to a scorer, then it should be relayed to the scorer."

Embry Gets 10,000th Point Bucks Win Second in Row

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two consecutive victories is a laudable winning streak for the last-place Milwaukee Bucks, especially having accomplished it at the expense of mighty Cincinnati.

The National Basketball Association expansion club took a 24-point lead at halftime, and downed the Royals 116-101 Tuesday night, the first time in five games that Cincinnati has lost to Milwaukee.

The Bucks host the New York Knickerbockers tonight in a bid for No. 3 in a row. In their 40-point second period, the Bucks scored 18 consecutive points. The two teams had been tied 26-26.

Len Chappell, ending the game with 30 points, paced the second-period explosion. Also boosting it were Flynn Robinson and Guy Rodgers. All three are former Royals.

Pull Within Six
In the final period, Cincinnati pulled to within six points on three occasions. Of 20 road games this season, Milwaukee has won only two. It is also only Milwaukee's second victory against Eastern Division opponents in 21 games.

The Bucks hit 46 per cent of their shots from the field to Cincinnati's 41 per cent. They also had a 69-49 rebound edge. Wayne Embry, contributing EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Aggressive play should have put Wisconsin's Badgers ahead of Michigan State Tuesday night. It cost them a Big Ten basketball game instead.

Wisconsin got 10 more points from the field than the Spartans, but lost 77-67 because of free shots provided Michigan State in a Badger surge.

Wisconsin trailed 30-11 in the first half, and still was down 42-26 at intermission before holding Michigan State for more than seven scoreless minutes in the second half.

The Badgers closed the gap, and trailed by only four points with five minutes remaining. Yet the Spartans benefited from the charity line, connecting on 29 of 39 opportunities. Wisconsin was given only 14 foul shots, sinking nine.

Second League Loss
The loss makes Wisconsin 0-2 in the Big Ten and 5-6 on the season. Wisconsin's foul problems included a technical for having six men on the floor.

Coach John Powless ordered his five starters—James Johnson, Chuck Nagle, Craig Mayberry, Tom Mitchell and Clarence Sherrod — to the bench when Michigan State led 22-11.

They were replaced by Mel Reddick, his first appearance on the floor since the football season, and by Dave Zink, Ted Voigt, John Schell and Al Henry.

The Spartans weren't impressed, and carried on as usual, eventually leading 41-19 before Sherrod returned to score four points.

The Badgers came out of intermission in a different frame of mind. They held Michigan scoreless until 7:22 was gone in the second half.

Johnson was Wisconsin's top scorer with 18 points. Johnson scored the 10,000th point of his pro career. The game was halted long enough for ceremonial presentation of the ball to Embry, who now has 10,004 points.

Buoyed by its brand new rating as the No. 2 prep basketball team in the state, the Kimberly Papermakers hit the road to Two Rivers Friday night with hopes high for extending their 10-game winning streak and retaining the Mid-Eastern Conference leadership.

Kimberly currently holds down the top spot in the M-E with a 4-0 slate, while the Purple Raiders own third place at 3-2. In other Friday tilts, second-place Clintonville (3-1) entertains Shawano (1-3), and Menasha (2-2) visits New London (1-3).

A league game Saturday night finds Kaukauna (1-4) playing host to Shawano. Non-conference contests the same evening pit New London at Waupaca and Oostburg at Clintonville.

In Two Rivers, the vaunted Papermakers will be facing a team which has jelled recently to win its last two games (one non-conference) and three of its last four. The Raiders' last league start was a 66-56 road victory over Kaukauna.

Two Rivers last saw action Saturday night, when it topped Plymouth, 65-60, in a non-league affair. Encouraging for the Raiders was the improved play of Univ. 5-5 Steve Stoll, who hit 20 points in the triumph. TR's chief guns in conference play to date have been 6-2 Reuben and 3-1 Planteo, seventh with a 13-8 1 average, and 6-1 Barry Dennis.

But he did admit that he is interested in a pro coaching career. "That's what I've always wanted to do," he said. "I figure you spend so many years participating in something that you should stay in it in some capacity and use that experience."

The 37-year-old field general said he thus far has not decided, however, whether he will retire as a player. "I haven't decided at all," Bratkowski reported. "There are a lot of factors in the season's just over and games are still being played."

Could Still Play
"I feel real good physically. I feel like I could still play. I got banged up a little bit, but I have a long time to recover."

Bratkowski had reference to the rib injury he received in the Packers' season finale against the Bears at Chicago, which he had started in place of Bart Starr, also incapacitated by rib injuries.

"I'm going to wait and evaluate everything," Bratkowski said. "There are a lot of things that will influence my decision. Among them, of course, will be talking over the situation with Coach Bengtson and Mr. Lombardi."

"It would be foolish to say it wouldn't be a great opportunity to be coaching here," Bengtson has said. Bratkowski would be "a logical candidate" to replace McCormick, who resigned Jan. 1 to pursue other opportunities in the coaching field.

Shawano, which dropped a 75-63 decision to Bonduel in its last encounter, will be the underdog when it journeys to Clintonville. The Packers have lost only to Kimberly in four league starts. The Chits kept sharp over the

Goldbeck Sets Pace Fox Lutheran Quint Rallies in the Fourth Period to Top Irish

FREEDOM — Led by Beck Goldbeck, the Fox Valley Lutheran Foxes rallied to outscore Freedom, 19-12, in the final period to take a 56-50 non-conference win Tuesday night.

The Foxes held a 11-10 lead after the initial quarter and upped their advantage to 31-25 at halftime. But the Irish came back in the third stanza to outscore FVL, 13-6, to take a 38-37 lead into the fourth frame.

Goldbeck hit six baskets and two free throws in the fourth quarter to account for 14 of his 18 total points. With about three minutes left in the game, Goldbeck hit a basket to put the Foxes ahead, 39-38.

Freedom missed six free throws in the fourth quarter which didn't allow them to catch the Foxes. FVL's Mark Bootz scored 13. Lee Garvey and Mark Romenesko led the Irish with 18 and 16 points respectively.

The Foxes won the game on the free throw line, hitting 20 of 30 tries while Freedom managed only 10 of 22. The Irish held a 20-18 field goal edge.

Zeke Officially Noncommittal On His Future

Packer Quarterback Declares He Has Coaching Ambitions
Post-Crescent News Service
GREEN BAY — Zeke Bratkowski, who has been listed as a "logical candidate" to succeed Tom McCormick as offensive backfield coach of the Packers, is officially noncommittal on the subject.

The veteran Packer quarterback, back in town after a holiday vacation, said Tuesday, "I wasn't here when all this was in the paper — my family and I were visiting in Illinois — so I really couldn't make any comment right now."

But he did admit that he is interested in a pro coaching career. "That's what I've always wanted to do," he said. "I figure you spend so many years participating in something that you should stay in it in some capacity and use that experience."

Hortonville at Omro
Shiocton at Reedsville
Brillion at Hilbert
Freedom at Winnecoonne
Wrightstown at Denmark

The red-hot Little Nine Conference basketball race doesn't figure to cool off any this weekend, when Hortonville and Omro match perfect records in the league's headliner.

In addition to the first of two Polar Bears-Foxes meetings this season, Friday's agenda will offer these attractions: Shiocton at co-leading Reedsville, once-beaten Brillion at Hilbert, Freedom at once-beaten Winnecoonne and Wrightstown at Denmark.

With the conference race almost one third over, five teams are bunched within one game of each other. The winner of the Hortonville-Omro tussle will likely share the lead with Reedsville by 10 p.m. Friday. Reedsville will be heavily favored over winless Shiocton. Brillion and Winnecoonne will be favored to move into a third place tie in their games against second-division opposition.

Becomes Contender

Coach Gus Laemmrich, a member of championship teams in his high school days at Menasha St. Mary, has built Hortonville into a contender in his second year at the helm. Last season the Polar Bears finished with a 5-3 league record. This season, four Hortonville has swept past four league foes, as well as non-conference opponents Seymour, New London and Manawa Tuesday night, the Polar Bears lost to Weyauwega, the same team that has handed Omro its lone setback.

Omro, which shared the league title last season with Winnecoonne, has another powerful coach. The Allen Ennr-coached Foxes have beaten four conference rivals and have taken three of four in non-loop play.

Omro's powerful offense, led by Steve Hoelt and Randy Wade, will be meeting in the conference's toughest defense. Hortonville has permitted an average of only 46.3 points per league game. Omro has zoomed to an 87-point average on the attack.

Tops in Accuracy

Omro is credited with a league-leading field goal pace of 52 per cent (138 out of 264) and a 72 per cent mark on free throws (73 of 108). Hortonville is fifth in league scoring — with a 385-285 point total, while Omro is second to the Polar Bears defensively — with an allowance of 216 points in four games.

Hoelt, the league's No. 2 scorer — with 100 points — has connected on 70 per cent of his floor shots (40 of 57). Wade is third in scoring, with 96 points. Hortonville's Dave Riggles is fourth in the league, with 86 points, while Dennis Nagreen is eighth, with 69.

Brillion's Russ Hansen tops the circuit, with 139 points, a bristling pace of 34.8 per game. He ranks second in field goal accuracy — 62 per cent — and has sunk 92 per cent of his free throws (23 of 25). Hansen also leads the conference in rebounding, with 72 in four games.

An Attempted Steal by Chicago Loyola's Bill Moody (22) failed on this play when he sneaked up on Marquette's Joe Thomas (50) during first-half action of their game in Milwaukee Tuesday night. Moody knocked the ball out of bounds. The Warriors won a squeaker, 65-64, for their seventh straight victory.

Boston Fires Mike Holovak

Coach Will be Offered Another
Job in Organization

BOSTON (AP)—After two seasons of mounting fan discontent it was Goodbye Mike for real today with the announcement that the Boston Patriots had fired their long-time head coach and general manager, Mike Holovak.

The former Boston College star, a fixture with the Pats since the inception of the American Football League in 1960, had an over-all record of 52-46-9 in his nearly eight full seasons at the coaching helm. But he became the target of increasing boos and catcalls as the team slumped in the past two seasons.

The decision to relieve Holovak of his present duties was reached by the 10-man board of directors at a Monday night meeting, but the announcement was withheld until Tuesday so that club President William H. Sullivan Jr. could inform him personally.

5-Year Contract

Holovak is in the midst of a five-year contract which runs through the end of the 1971 season, and the Patriots said he would be offered another job in the organization, the nature of which will be determined soon. Holovak, 48, starred at halfback for three years with Boston and after service in World War II spent three years in the National Football League with the Los Angeles Rams and the Chicago Bears.

He later served for nine years as head coach at BC, compiling a 49-29-3 record, before being tapped by the Patriots as the first executive they hired when the team and the AFL were being formed for their maiden 1960 season.

Starting as Director of player personnel, Holovak succeeded Lou Saban as head coach on Oct. 10, 1961, and at the end of the 1966 season he signed his present five-year pact as coach and general manager.

Kothbauer Hits 246 Line Byron St. Louis Raps 652 in Tri-City Loop

Byron St. Louis slammed a 652 series Tuesday night to pace the Tri-City Men's Bowling League at Sabre Lanes. His best game was a 233. Mike Kothbauer took league singleton honors, with a 246 that earned him the Century award. The 246 is 111 pins over his league average. The session was also highlighted by the 1,070 scratch game posted by the Twin City Liquor Team. The George Ban-Liquor Co. posted a 2,919 series. Ray Crane produced a 644 series for individual runnerup honors. His best line was 225. Wally Jensen's 238 and 643 topped the Metropolitan Men's circuit at Sabre. Dave Thiel was runnerup with a 623.

Hall Gains Fourth
Shutout; Montreal

St. Louis, with still another shutout performance by Glenn Hall, faded its whipping lead atop the West Division while Montreal added to its slim margin in the East in the only two National Hockey League games scheduled Tuesday night.

Hall turned aside 26 shots in St. Louis' 5-0 victory over the Los Angeles Kings, while Montreal blew a two-goal lead, but rallied for a 6-3 decision over the Minnesota North Stars.

St. Louis now leads the West by 14 points, and Montreal increased its edge over Boston, second in the East, to three.

Hall's shutout was his fourth of the season

In 4-Minute Span
St. Louis wrapped it up in a hurry, with Gary Sabourin, Ron Schock and Red Berenson scored in a four-minute span of the first period. Noel Picard and Frank St. Marseille added the other two.

The Canadiens blew a 2-0 lead to the North Stars, fell behind 3-2, then rallied. John Ferguson tied it at 3-3 and Yvan Cournoyer's second goal of the game put Montreal ahead to stay in the middle period, 4-3.

Cournoyer also had an assist to go with his two goals. Ferguson had a goal and three assists and Jean Beliveau had a goal and two assists

HORTONVILLE — Despite a 34-point performance by Dave Riggles, the Hortonville basketball Polar Bears could not keep up with Weyauwega as they dropped a 69-63 decision to the Indians Tuesday night in a non-conference contest.

The Indians upped their margin to eight after three quarters by outscoring Hortonville, 21-16. Again, in the fourth quarter, Riggles scored 12 points as Hortonville cut the final margin to six by outscoring Weyauwega, 19-17.

JIM MURRAY

Jim Quotes Readers on Allen Case

For those of you banging the side of your heads today trying to understand the Ram situation, the answer is to be found on Page 110 of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland. "No, no!" said the Queen. "Sentence first — verdict afterwards."

The cavalry galloped in just in time to cut George Allen down but that figure still, you'll find a lamp post is me. You'll find my predicament outlined on Page 24 of Alice: "I'll be the judge, I'll be the jury," said the cunning old Fury. "I'll try the whole case and condemn you to death."

Okay, readers, you're away!

"Dear Lackey: "Now for Reeves, huh? Why don't you paint the rest of your face to match your nose? To you, only money is sacred. Words sure aren't, not the way you use them. . . . You have had a bad year and I devoutly hope 1969 will be worse for you."

(signed) Gault. Santa Barbara

—What's the matter, Gault, cat got your tongue? "Dear Mr Murray: "On occasion I've found your sports feature . . . colorful and clever. On other occasions it seems to be 'huffing and puffing' in its effort . . . and ended up an insult to the intelligence of anybody that an IQ speaking charitably, your column would hardly qualify. . . ."

(signed) Rodney A. Stetson, M.D., Torrance

—Take what I do for it, Doc, take four aspirin and try to stay off my feet for awhile!"

"Dear Mr Murray: "Well, after picking out and tossing away the usual descriptive and superfluous garbage so indicative of (your) column I was able to gather enough meaning from your remarks to ascertain that you and the rest of the subordinates of human privacy didn't like poor old Allan (sic) . . . Anyhow, when you and Reeves (sic) and the front office get over congratulating yourselves for being so strong and right, could you tell me what the citizens of Los Angeles are going to do for a PROFESSIONAL football team? Or is that important compared to the finer things in life?"

(signed) Jack Christie

—Well, Jack, after picking out and tossing away the superfluous garbage, I would say it's unimportant compared to penicillin, cancer research, schools and colleges and the San Andreas Fault. The citizens have bigger urban problems than their professional football team.

"Re George Allen Matter: "Mr Reeves is in name and in fact the owner of the Los Angeles Rams. The Mona Lisa has a legal owner also, but what happens to either is not the province only of the owner but all interested parties. . . ."

—I get it. We turn the Mona Lisa over to the guy who wipes the glass off every morning.

"Dear Messrs Murray and Reeves: "Lynch won't be back. Up Starway 7, down a little and turn to the left. Say hello to all the guys and sit down. No laughs, just this peculiar kind of fun. He won't be back, Dan. Some of the boys said Ed is acting too hasty. He thought he hadn't acted hastily enough."

(signed) Edward M. Lynch, Walker, Wright, Tyler & Ward

—O.K., Ed. Try to help around the house on Sundays, y'hear?

I'll say one thing for the Rams: they're an exciting team to watch. Particularly during the off-season.

No Report Given on UW Athletic Board's Special Meeting

MADISON (AP)—The University of Wisconsin Athletic Board held a special meeting Tuesday night, presumably to discuss the department's financial woes.

At a board meeting in December, it was reported the department faced a $261,000 deficit, much of it caused by poor attendance at last year's football games.

Prof. Frederick W. Haber, board chairman, said there would be no announcement on the subject of Tuesday night's meeting until the board reports to the Board of Regents Friday.

Colts 18-Point Pick Ewbank and Shula Exchange Praise for Each Other's Team

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — The oddsmakers say the Baltimore Colts are an 18-point better football team than the New York Jets. But you never would guess it from talking with Weeb Ewbank. Neither would you, for that matter, after listening to Don Shula.

The two head coaches, Ewbank of the American League champion Jets and Shula of the National League's kingpin Colts, were troops in praise of each other's troops today as they talked of pro football's Super Bowl in Miami's nearby Orange Bowl Sunday.

"We have come a long way since the start of the season," said Ewbank as he talked of the chance of an AFL team coming out on top in this third clash between the champions of the two leagues. The NFL, represented by the Green Bay Packers, won the first two handily against Kansas City in 1967 and Oakland last year.

"This team, as it now stands, has poise and depth in both offense and defense and is proud to be in the Super Bowl," Ewbank said.

Namath "Greatest" "Joe Namath has to be one of the greatest quarterbacks and he's learning every game I would call Matt Snell (fullback) a complete player while Emerson Boozer is just ready to go. He has reached the peak he obtained early in 1967 before he injured his right knee."

About the time Ewbank was hearing praise on his team, Shula was getting in a good word for the Jets at the Colts' headquarters a half-mile away.

"The Jets have a great front four in their defensive line," said Shula, a one-time player for Ewbank. He was referring to Gerry Philbin, Verlon Biggs, Paul Rochester and John El-lott.

Shula, who also had praise for the Jets' linebackers, likened the New York front wall to the great Packers defense of recent years. "All are quick and agile," he added. "The Jets also have been strong offensively. Now they have added a great defense."

Strange Defense "We don't see many of the types of defense used by the Jets in our league. Yes, we came down here expecting a real football game and I can't see us an 18-point favorite."

Ewbank compared the Colts with Green Bay's great championship team for three years. "They've had a fine football team for three years," he said. "And this year they've had the determination not to let the setbacks of the previous two years distract them."

"But I would add, I think we are the best AFL team to play in the Super Bowl. I wouldn't have said it earlier in the season but I'll say it now."

Higher Auto License Fees

It seems a certainty that one source of additional tax revenues which the legislature will tap at this session is the state automobile licensing fee. At a flat fee of $18 the current Wisconsin fee is among the lowest of all the states.

But the question is to what purposes the additional income will be applied.

The Tarr Task Force is now considering a plan under which such additional revenues would be returned to communities in the state to assist with local fiscal problems. Tax Commissioner James Morgan has suggested a plan under which the state would levy and collect additional auto license fees based upon valuation of the vehicle, and return this income to municipalities which decided they wanted to participate.

C. K. Alexander of the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance has suggested another method of returning such additional revenues to the localities by adding the funds collected to the general highway aids fund and allocating them to municipalities according to density of highway use.

On Doing Something for Others

Robbery involving a purse containing six dollars and chasing of the purse snatcher by a passerby have led to what has been termed making "the ultimate sacrifice for society." When everything was over, 30-year-old Raymond Sansoucie lay dead in a St. Louis alley, shot to death. He had given his life in effort to help a widow regain her purse.

We have said before in these columns that our society too often sadly includes individuals who are so involved with their own lives that they can't spare the time of day for their fellow man. The witnesses who have passively seen murders committed in some of our larger cities and not done anything to stop the deeds have been cited as dramatic examples.

It is tragic that the action by Raymond Sansoucie resulted in his death. The fact that the purse contained only a few dollars emphasizes that the principles involved are

But there is another use to which increased auto license fees could be put which makes considerable practical sense. One of the critical spending needs facing this legislature are greatly increased state aids for long bridge construction. At present the state appropriates only $200,000 a year for this purpose, which is meaningless when the number of expensive bridges so badly needed in areas like the Fox River Valley is considered.

Governor Knowles during his campaign for re-election proposed a state bonding program for the construction of such bridges. Funds derived from an increased auto licensing fee could well be earmarked for the retirement of such bonded indebtedness.

Such a proposition makes sense in that the taxpayers who use the bridges would be paying for them. And most automobile owners would be less inclined to oppose an increase in license fees if they knew they were going to get some new bridges as a result.

what matter in this case. This is why the Grand Jury Association of St. Louis decided to set up a trust fund for Mrs. Sansoucie, her four children and the expected fifth. It is the least which can be done for the family.

But it is not all. Raymond Sansoucie has proven that it will cost each one of us something to become involved with those around us. It may come through participation in church, school or civic organizations. It may take time we would much rather spend on ourselves and our leisure. But whether it is visiting elderly shut-ins, candystripping in a hospital or picking up the litter on College Avenue instead of throwing it down there, there is something each of us can do. We will not be shot to death. And considering that, our efforts will shrink to the smaller beginnings they really are.

Nationalism Is Intense in Asia

The Brookings Institution, a nonpartisan "think tank" in Washington, has come out with a book of advice for President-elect Richard Nixon. The project was supported by a $175,000 Ford Foundation grant. It includes advice on the Vietnamese war by Edwin Reischauer, former American Ambassador to Japan and a recognized expert in Asian affairs.

Mr. Reischauer has never been an exponent of American isolationism. He has written that the American influence in Asia "on balance" was quite good since the end of World War II. Our strength in the area gave some Asian countries a chance to recover from the war, to emerge from colonialism, to resist aggression from various quarters including Red China.

But Mr. Reischauer writes that "in hindsight, it now seems probable that, if we had never become involved in Vietnam, it would have developed into a unified Communist state which would have served as a more effective bar to expansion of Chinese power than the present war torn country. . . but in any case the intense nationalism of the Vietnamese will probably keep Vietnam free of Chinese control or exploitation. . . Asian countries cannot be controlled from abroad, even through Communism or any other ideology. There is no reason to believe that neo-imperialists, whether they be international Communists or Chinese, can dominate other Asian nations any more successfully than we, the Japanese or the French."

This intense nationalism in Asia is a factor that officials of the United States appeared to ignore. We are painfully finding out that the benevolent rule over the Filipinos and our gift of independence are no longer appreciated any more than the special trade relations with the Philippines which are beginning to smack of hidden colonialism to the hot-headed. The ties of Indo China to France were ruthlessly broken by Ho Chi Minh and his Communist affiliation was incidental and irrelevant. The Indonesians tossed out the Dutch and have tried to eradicate all remnants of their presence. No one buckled under to the Japanese except on the surface despite the brutality of the Japanese occupation of some areas. And the Nationalist Chinese on Taiwan are coming to resent the American influence in part because it hasn't put Chiang Kai-shek back in power on the mainland.

So there is good reason for Mr. Reischauer's warning that the United States must find a way out of Vietnam and that there isn't much time. If the war continues or grows, he predicts there would be "a breakdown of our relations with Japan." But a forced withdrawal "would be such a humiliation for the United States as to undermine the confidence of Asian countries in us." The solution must be found along the lines of international guarantees for the security of Laos, Cambodia and Thailand, the growth of political and military power by the government in Saigon and the gradual withdrawal of American troops.

But as Richard Critchfield, former Vietnam correspondent for the Washington Star, suggests, the basic peace terms laid down by President Johnson are just about the same as proposed by Hanoi more than two years ago. They include participation by the Liberation Front. It well may be that all of Vietnam may eventually have that Communist regime which almost thirty thousand American men died to prevent. It's too bad men like Mr. Reischauer were not listened to more carefully in the early days of our involvement in Vietnam.

Fulbright Commitment Resolution Could be Dangerous to Security

BY JOHN P. ROCHE

Senator J. W. Fulbright has emerged from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee with a "sense of the Senate" resolution designed to prevent future Vietnams. In essence it states that before the President commits American power in the world, he must get permission from Congress, thus allegedly restoring the "constitutional balance" intended by the founding fathers when they gave the legislature the war power. There is grave danger that this pious pronouncement will win overwhelming liberal endorsement and pass in a great whoop of isolationist nostalgia. After all, who wants another Vietnam?

In realistic terms, of course, nobody wanted the first Vietnam, except Ho Chi Minh. Presidents Kennedy and Johnson certainly never anticipated what a long savage war would result from American intervention — and neither did Congress. Fulbright is no illiterate and he sponsored the Tonkin Gulf Resolution which expressly approved Presidential action to hold South Vietnam. He has been muttering that he was tricked, but he is no better than the rest of us: we were all tricked — but by Hanoi, not Lyndon Johnson. The North Vietnamese (who according to the scenario accepted by the President, the Pentagon, the State Department, and the Congress were supposed to throw in the towel at the approach of American might) had never been properly programmed.

HAS TO CARRY CAN

Naturally the President has to carry the can — that is part of the job description — but Congress was right in there behind him when the going looked easy. Now, three years later, Capitol Hill and the foreign policy Establishment are populated by Tigers Emeritus. What I find infuriating (though quite human) is that these retired hard-liners have generally managed to assert that the Kennedy-Rusk-McNamara policy was perfectly sound until it was perverted by Johnson-Rusk-McNamara — Johnson for short. If the policy was mistaken, it was just as bad in 1962 as in '66; Johnson did not alter the logic of our involvement, only the scale.

One function of the separation of powers is that Congress can blame the President for anything that goes wrong.

Fulbright's "National Commitments Resolution" is therefore a quite traditional technique by which Senators can sneak off when their feet get bloody from a long, unanticipated march. But the trouble is that while anyone who reflects on the situation recognizes the Resolution as a pious fraud (not unlike the Bricker Amendment which almost passed in the 50s, designed to guarantee the Republic against a traitorous President), its passage would strongly buttress the general mood of isolationism and non-commitment among the American people.

HOW ABOUT REFERENDUM?

In practical terms, then, the Fulbright move is on a par with the proposal that the isolationists (me among them) advanced in the late 1930s, that there should be a national referendum before going to war. Once upon a time it would have been essentially harmless in 1812 Congress debated the Declaration of War with Britain for weeks, and it was over a month after President Madison signed the measure that word of it reached London. In 1969, living with the balance of terror, the need for credible deterrence and the capacity for instantaneous response, the "National Commitments Resolution" is simply preposterous.

But preposterous or not, it is dangerous because it provides superb cover for a Republican Administration which has strong latent isolationist tendencies. I have always been convinced that if John Foster Dulles had been Secretary of State in 1962, he would have founded a Caribbean Security Organization (CASO), denounced atheistic Communism before the American Legion — and left the missiles in Cuba. You can get into "Vietnams" with an activist foreign policy, but the alternative can be the death of a thousand cuts. Right now there is only one other "Vietnam" on the horizon: American inaction in a Middle Eastern crisis, justified by the need for consultation with Congress, could make the "National Commitments Resolution" an epitaph for Israel.

Roche

Fulbright's "National Commitments Resolution" is therefore a quite traditional technique by which Senators can sneak off when their feet get bloody from a long, unanticipated march. But the trouble is that while anyone who reflects on the situation recognizes the Resolution as a pious fraud (not unlike the Bricker Amendment which almost passed in the 50s, designed to guarantee the Republic against a traitorous President), its passage would strongly buttress the general mood of isolationism and non-commitment among the American people.

If, for example, a President took its message seriously, the deterrent aspect of American power would be undermined if not destroyed. Can anyone imagine what would have happened in the Cuban missile crisis of 1962 if John Kennedy had felt obliged to clear with Congress actions that might lead to conflict? Similarly the whole structure of N.A.T.O. (no matter what anyone says about conventional responses and "breathing space") is founded on the tripwire deterrent: if the Soviets go for Western Europe, we go for them. If the Russians knew that Fulbright and his fellow solons were going to put the American response on ice until the Foreign Relations Committee held hearings, they

Publications, Travel Habits of Agencies Could Stand Review

By JOHN WYNGAARD
MADISON — A member of the legislature with considerable experience writes indignantly about the flood of promotion matter distributed at frequent intervals by the large number of state institutions, agencies, departments, bureaus, and whatever.

The legislator is a Democrat. It is perhaps fair to say that if he could lead the legislature he would stand for more spending for some of the major services than the typical Republican would be inclined to permit. But he also abhors waste, and as he aptly says, there is a good deal of waste in the puffery indulged by many of the public services today.

PINCHED FOR MATERIAL
The correspondent encloses a batch of examples. No reasonable reader could seriously disagree with his assertion that the publications are of limited interest and doubtful need. Sometimes, indeed, the editors are so pinched for appropriate or even remotely relevant material that they resort to anthologies and joke books to fill out their pages. Why, demands this man, cannot the department of administration which has such broad powers over the housekeeping operation of the state government as a whole put its foot down and call a halt to such tomfoolery?

Why not, indeed? At intervals over the years newspaper editors have asked this reporter the same question, and the phenomenon has been reviewed in this column.

A reasonable answer is that the typical public agencies are not nearly as closely budgeted or controlled in their spending authorizations or audited after the spending has been achieved as they would have the paying public believe. Another explanation is that the average department head is quite convinced that his work is the most important in the whole family of governmental services, and that the world must hear as much as possible about it.

CONSEQUENCE OF TIMES

These are probably the consequences of the affluent times, in the public services as in many private enterprises. But the fact of the matter is that the state stands on the verge of the most difficult financial dilemma it has faced in its history.

But the awareness of that fact has not filtered down into the bureaucracy, by all appearances.

A candid critic must concede that there are many agencies that need public information services to perform their jobs effectively. The problem is to distinguish between needed and legitimate public information and the vanity products that dominate the publications lists of so many of them, and the flood of "news releases," as they are euphemistically called. These are often written at a leisurely pace by men and women who would be earning substantially less if they worked in the outside world covering "hard news" in competition.

INERTIA IS INVOLVED

Yet there is an inertia involved here that has repeatedly foiled the most determined legislative critics and legislative inquiries. For one thing, many of the agencies classify their publicists under other titles, so that they are virtually immune from identification with respect to their real functions. For another, many of them handle their own printing or other methods of reproduction so that the audit reports, when they are occasionally published, fall considerably short in accounting for the nature for such tax fund spending.

Astronomical View of Man Would be Helpful

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was listening to a lecture by an astronomer last month, and he mentioned the relative size of our world in the universe. He said that the best modern telescope can now see so far into space that if we took the whole United States as our model, the Earth would not even appear on it, when looked at with electron microscopes.

This is a hard image to illustrate with words, so let me try again in another way. If that part of the universe we can already see were the size of the U. S., the size of the Earth in that area would be about as small as a virus compared with the whole country. Is that clearer?

How provincial of us, the astronomer went on, to imagine that our galaxy with 50 million stars as large as our sun, does not have other planets with life on them — especially since there are 150 million other galaxies in the universe, each containing as many millions of stars.

Other stars no doubt have planets. Other planets, somewhere, must have pretty much the same environmental conditions that bred life on Earth; and out of this life must have come what we call "intelligent" life on some of these planets — and possibly millions of years before this planet began to cool off. To believe we are unique is the height of anthropocentric arrogance.

If we could steadily see ourselves in this light — as a tiny speck of dust whirling about in one tiny corner of the universe, with the whole time-span of the Earth no longer than a twinkling — we might be able to reach a saner perspective on human and social problems.

Buckmaster Fuller's old analogy of the Earth as a "spaceship" is another useful concept. We are all riding together in a spaceship that is smaller than the one the astronauts went up in, compared with the size of the cosmos. We are locked into this ship together and forever, and we survive or perish together and forever.

The first and absolute imperative in the spaceship of the Astronauts is cooperation, and the subordination of individual will to the welfare of the ship as a whole. Only after that is there room for idiosyncratic differences. Disharmony among the Astronauts means disaster for all.

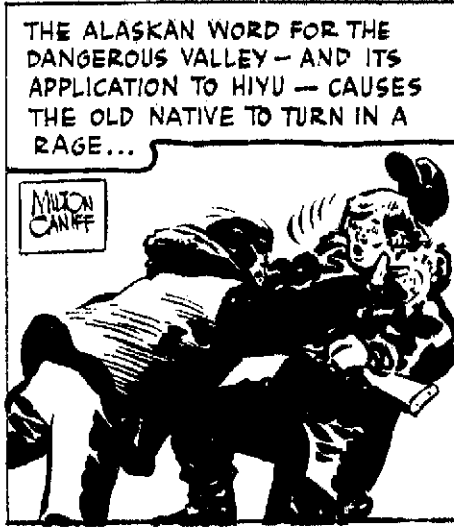

Man must begin to take the "astronomical" view of himself and his world if he is to survive. It is far too late for any parochial view; too late for politics, too late for race, too late for class distinctions. Our ship is now so highly explosive, so charted with incendiaries, that we have only two options: We stay up, or we blow up. Not to see this, clearly and steadily and primarily, is to perish in the universe as obscurely and ignobly as we have lived.

South Wants Added Grid Scholarships

Coaches Bemoaning Recent Setbacks In Bowl Contests

By WILL GRIMSLEY
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Deep South football belt, once the scourge of the bowls, is yelping with pain after the most disastrous major bowl setbacks in its history.

Southeastern Conference coaches are clamoring for more athletic scholarships or, in lieu of that, a national ceiling on grants-in-aid that can be given to fast halfbacks and barrel-chested linemen.

"If we are to compete with schools that have 50 scholarships a year, we should have 50," said Paul "Bear" Bryant, whose Alabama Crimson Tide was mauled by Missouri in the Gator Bowl 32-10.

As members of the Southeastern Conference, Alabama and Georgia are allowed 40 grants-in-aid a year for football talent. Missouri of the Big Eight, gets 45 and Arkansas is permitted 50.

For years, the Southeastern Conference has had a right to boast of its intersectional and bowl prowess. It has established an enviable record down through the years.

Top 3 Lost
However, this season, the Southeastern Conference had one of its most embarrassing post season experiences. The top three powers lost to outsiders although over-all the league finished 3-3. Last season, the Southeastern score was 1-4.

In a period when universities as a whole are pleading poverty over escalating athletic department cost, it is strange to find anyone asking for the privilege of increasing the number of scholarship grants.

Small Chance
Little hope is given for the one-plateau campaign at the meeting of the rules committee next week in Palm Springs. Little more is expected to be done about scholarships, now a conference or individual problem not regulated by the NCAA.

If there should be a national ceiling, what is a reasonable figure?

One suggestion getting popular support—particularly among the financially-pressed athletic directors—is that the number be 90 in a school at one time.

The NCAA convention ends today. The chief issue before delegates is whether to keep the rule permitting freshmen to compete in all varsity sports except football and basketball. The tip is that they will.

Indians Rally for 56-53 Non-League Basketball Win

SHIOCTON — It was too many Indians and not enough Chiefs Tuesday night as Stockbridge fought back from a 4-point half-time deficit to take a 56-53 non-conference basketball victory over Shiocton.

The Stockbridge Indians captured a 14-10 lead in the opening quarter, but were outscored by eight points in the second stanza, so that they left the court at half time trailing, 32-28. They bounced back in the third quarter however to gain a 47-43 advantage over the Chiefs.

The final period was close all the way, the score being tied in the closing minutes at 53-53. Then Shiocton's Schlitzler fouled out, and the Chiefs fouled Jim Mayer who gave the Indians a 1-point advantage with a charity shot. Stockbridge's Hostettler iced the game with a lay-up with 25 seconds left.

Stockbridge made seven of 14 free throw attempts. Shiocton was 11 for 23 from the line. The Indians' Dan Hemauer took scoring honors with 24 points. His teammate Jim Mayer had 10. Center Allen Kettner paced the Chiefs with 12 points, followed by guard Ken Samson with 10.

NHL East, West Standouts Will Clash Jan. 21

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago's Bobby Hull and Detroit's Gordie Howe, 1-2 in the National Hockey League scoring race, and super defenseman Bobby Orr of Boston were unanimous choices among 24 standouts selected today for the NHL's first East-West All-Star Game.

Hockey writers in the 23 NHL cities selected 12 players in each division for the 22nd annual All-Star classic, to be played in Montreal Jan. 21. Stars from the East Division will oppose standouts from the expansion West Division for the first time. The old All-Star format matched the defending Stanley Cup champions against stars from the other clubs in the league.

St. Louis Coach Scotty Bowman, the West pilot, and former Montreal Coach Toe Blake, who will direct the East squad, each will name seven more players later in the week, completing the 19-man All-Star squads.

Draw 90 Points

USHL Team To Play in World Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — A team from the United States League will represent this country in the World Amateur Hockey Tournament. It was announced Monday.

Tom Lockhart, president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States, said the team will be augmented by players from other clubs from various sections of the country. Teams in the U.S. League are Green Bay, Wis., and Marquette, Mich.; Waterloo, Iowa, Duluth and Rochester, Minn. and Saint Ste Marie, Mich.

Lockhart said a five-man committee headed by Jack Riley, Army's hockey coach, and Don Clark of Cumberland, Wis., has been named to select the team and the additional players. The world championships are scheduled to be played in Stockholm, Sweden, March 15-30. Other nations in the top bracket are Canada, the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Finland.

Your Car— Beware Loose Wheels

BY EUGENE B. MILMOE
What causes a front wheel to fly off suddenly, while the car is on the road? Shot bearings or ball joints are the usual reasons — and, incidentally, this is not something which will happen suddenly.

Before a wheel goes, warnings are generally plentiful. Steering wheel shock, loose or erratic steering, road wander or weave, drift or pull toward one side, wheel tramp and shimmy are too lean for prompt engine starts and proper warmups during cold weather.

Q — You advise motorists to check cooking-system hoses frequently for evidence of rotting. Since rotting develops on the inside, doesn't this mean the hoses must be removed for proper inspection? — S.T.
A — This is probably the best way, but the usual method is the "feel" or "squeeze" test, and a lot easier, too. Any hose which seems spongy or soft in spots should be replaced.

A — Absolutely. It would cost you approximately $7.50 for the lock alone.

Q — At highway speeds, my car tends to pull toward one side. Over the past three weeks, I've had tires, steering, front suspension, brakes and alignment checked out but there's been very little improvement. What else can be checked out? — J.C.
A — A shifted rear axle or misaligned frame are about the only other possibilities I can suggest.

Pianist Robert Below In Thursday Recital

Music Professor at Lawrence Returned
Recently From Concert Tour in France

Pianist Robert Below, recent-structed of short, but related ly returned from a European concert tour, will play his first public recital here this season on the National Song, "God Save Lawrence University's Harper Hall.

The Lawrence associate professor toured central France in the fall with violinist Jacob Krachmalnick, concertmaster of the San Francisco Symphony. They performed in a series of concerts sponsored by Jeunesses Musicales de France, an agency which promotes serious music to that country's young audiences. Below's association with Krachmalnick began in California in 1962. The violinist is a former concertmaster of the Philadelphia and Amsterdam Philhartras, and earlier was an assistant concertmaster of the Cleveland Orchestra under George Szell.

Two Seasons Together Below and Krachmalnick performed together for two seasons, both as a violin-piano duo, and in a variety of other chamber groups. Their recent tour took them through a farming and wine-producing region of France to the cities of Vichy, Chateaudun, Clermont-Ferrand, Caen, Le Puy and others. Their disc concerts, often given in small opera houses appearing to date from the 19th century, were inspired by the paintings of Goya, built on works of Brahms, Handel, Faure, Debussy and Ravel.

Beethoven Opener Below's forthcoming recital will include works of Beethoven, compositions. The "Allegro" is Bach, Schumann, Debussy and less exalted, but filled with Granados, most of them com-melodic and rhythmic charm.

WHBY Program Goes to Navymen In Remote Areas

WHBY Radio will be sending a monthly tape of its "Program X" with Scott Howard as a gift to servicemen at both ends of the earth. Station Manager Lewis J. Process announced today.

The one-hour show is being made for cost-free distribution to men stationed in the Arctic and Antarctic regions in answer to a request from the United States Navy. The request was made by PO 1C David Davis, area recruiting officer.

The program was chosen for its appeal to young servicemen. Davis said Process explained that the program to be broadcast live about the 15th of each month will be of special news interest to servicemen from the Fox River Valley. A tape of the program will be made available to the Navy after the broadcast of each program.

Vietnam Vet Goes Berserk, Hawaii Five-O

BY TV SCOUT
9-10 — Channel 2 — McGarrett gets one of his most unusual calls from Hawaii Five-O. The call comes from a Honolulu hospital where a patient, a Vietnam veteran, has gone berserk. He had been on a rest and rehabilitation leave when he was accidentally hit on the head with a baseball bat and knocked unconscious. When he comes to, he believes he is back in the war zone and that everyone in the hospital is an enemy.

6:30-7:30 — Channel 2 — There is a series of rather strange relationships on Daktari. First, there is a Bengal tiger who left the Warner three years ago to return to the bush. She has just had a cub and the little thing isn't doing too well so, puppy-like, she returns to her former home to get Dr. Tracy and leads him to the lair.

6:30-8 Channel 5 — The Virginian is a good study of the effects of fear, with singer Herb Jeffries carrying off his dramatic assignment fairly well. He plays a notorious gunman who comes to town unexpectedly and doesn't say why. His presence immediately stirs imaginations.

7:30-8 — Channel 2 — Joyce Van Patten, as Bert's wife, is quite an eye-fall on The Good Guys. Rufus is the cause for her conversion when he convinces the couple that Claudia should load herself up with sex appeal to attract truck drivers to the diner.

8-9 — Channel 5 — The Kraft Music Hall is low-keyed but rather classy with Nancy Sinatra as hostess. Poet-composer Rod McKuen is her special guest, backed up by Don Ho, the Hawaiian singer, and that very funny man from Brooklyn, Pat Henry.

8:30-9 — Channel 2 — Green Acres has a few very funny scenes, thanks again to the devious machinations of Lisa's little grey matter. It starts with a breakdown in the brooder, currently housing a thousand newly hatched chicks. The little ones are in danger of dying when Lisa gets a brainstorm.

9-10 — Channel 5 — Mariette Hartley plays a naive little "Girl From Missouri" on The Outsider who is in for a rude awakening. Her brother, a club

Reading is still the fastest way to program the human brain.

Man's brain, the human computer, faces a problem. Like man-made computers, the brain can process data with such lightning speed that men are hard-pressed to devise ways of feeding it information fast enough.

In fact, the human brain has been called the world's finest, most expensive computer. By comparison, the largest electronic computer in use today looks like a child's plaything.

But in an era of "information explosion," how do you "program" information to the human brain? Spoken language is far too slow. The average person speaks about 150 words per minute. The mind can think far faster than that.

In fact, man has yet to devise a means of feeding information to his brain that is more efficient than the written word. Fast readers can read up to 1,500 words a minute—ten times the average rate for the spoken word. Scanning can accelerate this rate still more.

Perhaps some day men will devise some electronic system to program their own brains more rapidly. Until they do, no method is as efficient as the written word.

The alphabet, movable type and the printing press are among man's oldest inventions. But as tools for furthering human knowledge they are as modern as the most modern computer.

Perhaps this is the reason more people still get more information from daily newspapers than from any other source.

Fulbright Vows Delay In Nuclear Treaty OK

Approval Will Wait For Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson's one-time base of power—the Senate—has provided him a last and bitter disappointment in the final moments of his public career.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Foreign Relations Committee made official Tuesday what had long been suspected: Despite presidential urgings there will be no immediate action on the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Thus the pact, a New Frontier legacy that became for Johnson something of a personal crusade, probably will bear the signature of a Republican president.

There was no immediate comment from the White House. Nor in the waning days of the delicate transition period to a new administration was one expected.

But for Johnson, a wartime leader who had sought to leave this lasting imprint on efforts to ensure peace, there was ample cause for disappointment.

For one thing, there was his personal devotion to getting it through.

Thus last satisfaction, ironically, was denied him by a Democratic-controlled Senate where less than a decade after gaining legendary power as majority leader he faced as President some of the bitterest opposition to his Vietnam war policies.

Challenges to Job

It also was a Senate that turned in four short years from helping him pass a flood of Great Society social legislation to spawning serious challenges from his own party for a job he finally gave up voluntarily.

The treaty that falls to the Nixon administration to ramrod through the Senate would bar signers from sharing nuclear weaponry and know-how with countries lacking them. It would prohibit have-not nations from

Feb. 28 Set for Apollo 9 Launch

WASHINGTON (AP) — The space agency has set Feb. 28 as the date for the next major step toward its goal of landing an American on the moon this summer.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Tuesday officially announced 10 a.m. CST the last day of February as the "go" time for Apollo 9, a 10-day Earth orbital mission to test the complete three-part spacecraft designed for the moon mission.

If all goes well on Apollo 9, in the spring Apollo 10 will orbit the moon at low altitude. Then, in mid-summer, two Apollo 11 astronauts could be the first men to set foot on the Earth's satellite.

Judge Asked to Quash Indictment Sirhan Trial Under Way

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defense motions to set aside Sirhan Bishara Sirhan's indictment and his plea of innocent came before Judge Herbert V. Walker today as his trial resumes on charges of murdering Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The case of the People vs. Sirhan opened formally Tuesday within minutes, one of Sirhan's attorneys asked for a closed session in Walker's chambers to discuss motions. After an hour in chambers, four motions were introduced in open court and Walker—after ruling against two—directed the defense to submit written requests today on the others.

Sirhan, 24, a Jordanian who came to this country as a boy,

Unarmed Robber Flees From Unarmed Victim

FREEDPORT, Iowa (AP) — The holdup man who entered the Freedport general store was unarmed save for a note demanding money.

Mrs. Jack Tellford, owner of the store, said she pointed a finger at the would-be robber. "Bang! Bang!" she said. The man fled.

was neatly dressed in a gray suit, white, buttoned-down shirt and blue tie. He waved to his attorneys as he entered the heavily guarded, 75-seat courtroom. He sat next to them at the left end of the long counsel table but made no public statements.

The motion to withdraw the plea of innocent is a legal technicality. Under California law, an indictment cannot be quashed while a plea stands.

After a plea is withdrawn, and if another indictment is returned, the original plea may be re-entered.

The motion attacking Sirhan's indictment is based on a contention the grand jury which indicted him was not composed of a proper cross-section of the community, said Russell Parsons, one of three defense lawyers.

Parsons said such juries frequently exclude women, members of minority groups and people of various professions.

Sirhan is charged with shooting Kennedy to death and wounding five bystanders just after the New York senator proclaimed victory in California's Democratic presidential primary.

Bystanders seized Sirhan after shots rang out as Kennedy walked through a crowded kitchen area of the Ambassador Hotel, site of the victory rally.

"Would be Silly"

Another of the defense attorneys, Grant B. Cooper, told newsmen after Tuesday's court session that "it would be silly to deny he did it."

After the Sirhan proceedings adjourned Cooper appeared in U.S. District Court, just across the street. He had been directed to answer 45 questions dealing with how he obtained secret transcripts in another case.

Cooper left the session an hour later, said he had not been ordered to return, but did not elaborate.

Cooper had said earlier in the week that his involvement in the grand jury case might require a postponement of the Sirhan trial. This subject was not mentioned in open court before Walker, however.

The defense also asked Walker for a 30-day delay to prepare the motion on Sirhan's plea and the jury list and requested two new jurors—one to decide Sirhan's guilt or innocence, the other to set the penalty if he is convicted.

Walker ruled against both. Seats in the tiny courtroom were divided about evenly between security officers and newsmen, with only five members of the general public admitted. Sirhan's mother, Mary, 55, and brother, Munir, 21, sat in a back row.

Agnew Confident U.S. Will Come to Realize He's 'Not Neanderthal'

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew decided he had to "develop a little skin" and had no trouble admitting he had been hurt during the presidential campaign by what he said.

Agnew admitted he had been hurt during the presidential campaign by what he said. "I think," he went on, "that I can tell them what kind of person I am."

Agnew said, "I fully feel," Agnew said, "that by the time a year has gone by, and I'll have been functioning in this expanded vice president's role that's been given me, and particularly in regard to intergovernmental relationships with the cities, that what I do and what I stand for is going to be so obvious that it's going to be very difficult for the people who are attempting to cast me in the role of the Neanderthal man to continue to think that way."

Agnew resigned Tuesday as Maryland's governor. Chosen as his successor by the Democratic-controlled General Assembly was Marvin Mandel, 48, speaker of the state House of Delegates.

Agnew said in a television interview he could do nothing consciously to alter his image, adding, "I think the worst mistake I could make would be to attempt to placate and satisfy my critics."

"I think I have enough intelligence to know that I could do this: I could say exactly what certain people wanted me to say with a contrived purpose in making them happy, but I can't do that. I've got myself to live with and my convictions."

Agnew declared it is "a fiction" to say he was "jerked from a zoning board into the vice presidency."

Noting his experience as governor and county executive, he continued, "I don't think it's fair to say that suddenly a yokel has descended upon the national government."

At one point in the campaign, the vice president-elect said, he was so "depressed" by criticism that he wondered if he could get up the next day and go through with it. But, he said, he

Saigon Anxious to Start? Talks Still Mired

PARIS (AP) — A South Vietnamese delegate newly back from Saigon insisted today his government is anxious for peace talks to begin, but he rejected any idea of equality for the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

This appeared to be the latest word from Saigon on the deadlock of the Paris talks, and to quash any American hopes that the conference can get started before the Jan. 20 inauguration of Richard M. Nixon as president of the United States.

The U.S. side, for the record, clung to a hope that something positive might happen before said "We are ready to meet," he said. "But certain principles must be respected, notably that of two sides. The NLF cannot be considered on an equal footing with the legal government of South Vietnam which we represent."

There is no dialogue at the moment with the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong. But there is much for the Americans and their often balking South Vietnamese allies to talk about. The impression is that the Americans are making progress inch by inch toward some formula which can bring the adversaries face to face across some sort of table.

South Vietnam wants no formula suggesting equal status at the table for the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front. The North Vietnamese want no formula suggesting a two-sided rather than a four-party conference. Unless this deadlock is broken, the talks cannot start.

Cyrus R. Vance, deputy chief of the U.S. delegation, met Tuesday with South Vietnam's Pham Dang Lam. Neither gave any indication that they arrived at any new initiative toward getting the talks started.

Lam told newsmen the two "studied" various possibilities for the opening of the new conference. American sources said the two discussed many problems expected to arise when the talks began. Such problems include "awkward for him (O'Brien) to handle a presidential campaign take, arrangements for troop for Sen. Kennedy if he had withdrawn, insurance against North Vietnamese infiltration through Cambodia and Laos, enforcement of the demilitarized status of the buffer zone between North and South Vietnam, and a range of complicated political problems.

O'Brien announced Tuesday night that he will resign as chairman of the Democratic National Committee to take an industrial job.

The prediction of his return to politics by 1972 came from Matthew J. Ryan Jr., district attorney for Hampden and Berkshire counties, who also is a friend of the Kennedy family.

O'Brien, a former Springfield master general will return to politics within four years to head a presidential campaign for U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

the inauguration. Privately it displayed no optimism, and was spending much of its time preparing for the takeover by a new negotiating team.

The latest statement came from Prof. Nguyen Ngoc Huy, a South Vietnamese delegation member who arrived in Paris from consultations in Saigon. He noted in an airport statement that since the halt of the bombing of North Vietnam, the South was bearing much of the weight of the war, and for that reason wanted to see the conference opened.

"We are ready to meet," he said. "But certain principles must be respected, notably that of two sides. The NLF cannot be considered on an equal footing with the legal government of South Vietnam which we represent."

O'Brien Might Run Ted's '72 Campaign

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A close friend of Lawrence F. O'Brien says the former postmaster general will return to politics within four years to head a presidential campaign for U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

O'Brien announced Tuesday night that he will resign as chairman of the Democratic National Committee to take an industrial job.

the inauguration. Privately it displayed no optimism, and was spending much of its time preparing for the takeover by a new negotiating team.

The latest statement came from Prof. Nguyen Ngoc Huy, a South Vietnamese delegation member who arrived in Paris from consultations in Saigon. He noted in an airport statement that since the halt of the bombing of North Vietnam, the South was bearing much of the weight of the war, and for that reason wanted to see the conference opened.

"We are ready to meet," he said. "But certain principles must be respected, notably that of two sides. The NLF cannot be considered on an equal footing with the legal government of South Vietnam which we represent."

There is no dialogue at the moment with the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong. But there is much for the Americans and their often balking South Vietnamese allies to talk about. The impression is that the Americans are making progress inch by inch toward some formula which can bring the adversaries face to face across some sort of table.

South Vietnam wants no formula suggesting equal status at the table for the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front. The North Vietnamese want no formula suggesting a two-sided rather than a four-party conference. Unless this deadlock is broken, the talks cannot start.

Cyrus R. Vance, deputy chief of the U.S. delegation, met Tuesday with South Vietnam's Pham Dang Lam. Neither gave any indication that they arrived at any new initiative toward getting the talks started.

Lam told newsmen the two "studied" various possibilities for the opening of the new conference. American sources said the two discussed many problems expected to arise when the talks began. Such problems include "awkward for him (O'Brien) to handle a presidential campaign take, arrangements for troop for Sen. Kennedy if he had withdrawn, insurance against North Vietnamese infiltration through Cambodia and Laos, enforcement of the demilitarized status of the buffer zone between North and South Vietnam, and a range of complicated political problems.

Australia Sets 2-Inch Rule Americans React to Bikini Restrictions

NEW YORK (AP) — A random survey in American cities today found scant support—especially among men—for an Australian ruling that minibikinis must measure at least two inches at the hip.

"The less the merrier!" commented George Winship, 31, a commercial artist in New York City.

"If they have something to show off, let them go ahead," said Chuck Edmonds, 22, of Los Alamos, N.M., a senior at the University of Utah. "Anybody who complains is probably jealous or fat."

"I think they should raise the limit and force all Australian girls with minibikinis to seek asylum on U.S. beaches," said disc jockey Robert L. Zimmer, 22, in Phoenix, Ariz.

"It sounds like a rule passed by sex-starved beach inspectors," said Reed R. Anderson, 24, a sales representative of Rosemead, Calif.

Actually the ruling made by Sydney, Australia, authorities recently has left both beaches

The inspectors were at first delighted, leaping to their job with zeal, but then learned that if they measured the costume while it is on the girl they could be brought up for technical assault.

Moaned one inspector, "How can we do our duty?"

"No Freedom"

And the Aussie girls, crowding the summertime beaches, were also dismayed. "I think it is dreadful," said Marijka Vos, 20, a 36-24-36 model. "There is no freedom left in the world."

Many American girls shared her antiruling sentiment. "As long as they're wearing a bikini why not go all the way?" asked Margi Vogel, 30, a switchboard operator in Albany, N.Y. "What difference does the two inches make?"

Gail Burns, 23, a very slender, leggy 5-foot-8 Miami girl, said she would stick with the smaller bikinis, adding,

"If they would arrest me for that, I'd have to be a test case."

"If you have the figure for a bikini," said shapely Judi Daniel, 22, a reporter in Dallas, "I don't think the size should make any difference."

"I think a two-inch bikini is too much for a 4-year-old girl and may not be enough for some 24-year-old girls," said Vicki L. Roberts, 22, a nurse in Phoenix.

"It all depends on the size of your hip and the effect you want to create," said Ann Hodgson, 26, a curvaceous computer programmer in New York. "I would certainly want a great deal more than two inches on my hips."

"Like a String,"

Ingrid Meyer, 25, a Chicago secretary, agreed: "Two inches at the hips? You know that's pretty small. That's like a string! Let me measure... That's too small. It has to be three inches."

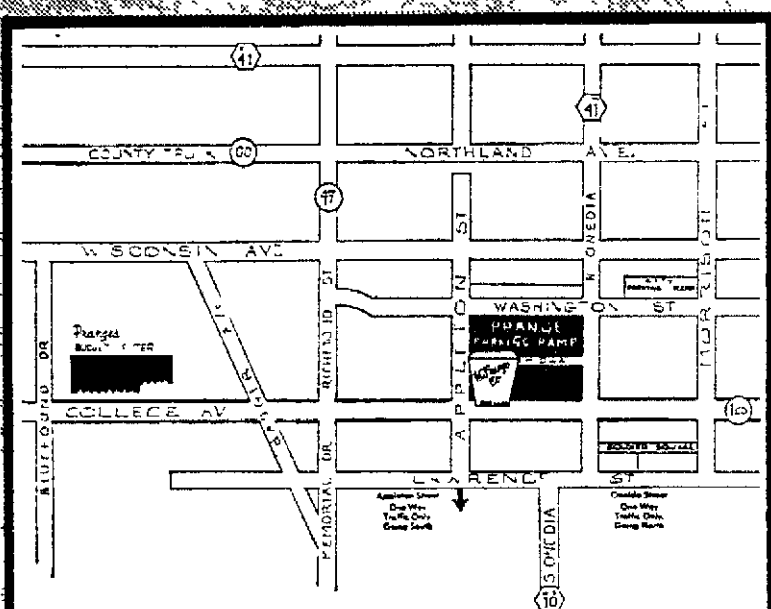

One male was dubious about the whole controversy. "It's pretty small," said Dennis Gardner, 22, a San Jose State College student. "I'd be embarrassed for the girl. I think more of a girl who doesn't wear a bikini. Two inches or a string, it's still too small."

Australian models show the improper, left, and the proper ways to wear minibikinis at Sydney beaches. (AP Wirephotos)

Recurring Storms Push City Crews To Maximum Effort

MARION — Alderman this week authorized the snow removal committee to hire additional help, if necessary, to keep streets and sidewalks open in future snowfalls.

The action comes on the heels of several snowstorms which have clogged city streets and pushed city removal crews to their full extent.

"Because of the heavy snow, our crew is going to be unable to handle future snow storms without additional help," said Mayor William Bertram.

He noted the cost for removing the snow is soaring.

Aldermen indicated they wanted fire hydrants kept clear as well as streets and sidewalks.

In other business, the city council decided that city warrants should be printed for use in filing complaints so that revenues for all minor offenses and light criminal offenses would be kept in the city and be handled by the municipal justice.

Aldermen agreed that the city will house a talk truck to be bought by the Town of Dupont. A written agreement will be prepared.

Bertram appointed the police chief and his assistant as director and assistant director, respectively, of the civil defense program.

Paper Institute Fourth in Filling Executive Posts

The Institute of Paper Chemistry (IPC) ranks fourth in the nation among graduate schools in the number of alumni who are filling chief research and development executive posts in the nation's largest companies, a survey shows.

The statistics, compiled by Heidrick and Struggles, Inc., Chicago, were published in the December issue of "Scan," a periodical of IPC.

Tied with IPC are the universities of California, Michigan, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Princeton.

Leading in the rating was the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of Illinois and Harvard University.

The survey is titled "Profile of a Chief Research and Development Executive." It was compiled from a questionnaire sent to 540 of the nation's largest companies.

21-Day Strike Ends At Central Paper

MENASHA — Strike picket signs were put away Tuesday and Central Paper Company union workers were returning to work following abrupt settlement of the 21-day dispute Monday night.

Only bare details of the agreement were revealed in a joint announcement by W. J. Gerbrick, president of the sealing tape manufacturing firm, and George Kallin Jr., president of Local 727, Sulphite & Paper Mill Workers, AFL-CIO, Tuesday.

The statement said, "Startup activities are beginning immediately with full operations scheduled to resume at 7 a.m. today."

The statement added, "Included in the terms of the settlement are general wage increases, and improvements in group insurance, vacation benefits and shift premiums."

The pact is for 32 months dating from Dec. 1, 1968, through July 31, 1971.

The union and management were called together by a federal mediator about 7:30 p.m. Monday at a location spokesmen declined to identify. The meeting lasted until about 12:30 a.m. Tuesday. Union bargaining representatives had authority to ratify the contract without holding a meeting of the general membership, according to Kallin, and the pact was approved on the spot.

Only one meeting between union and management spokesmen had been held since pickets were posted Dec. 16. That meeting had been described as unproductive. Asked how the set-

New London Commission

Planning Projects Outlined

NEW LONDON — Three projects for completion during the year were outlined briefly for the planning commission at Monday's meeting.

Mayor S. W. Krostue told commissioners that if the three programs are completed in addition to ordinary items coming before the board, this commission will have done an excellent job in 1968.

The projects include completion of a comprehensive development plan for the downtown business area, recertification by July, 1970, with the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and extra-territorial zoning.

Work on all three areas was initiated by the commission during 1968.

Downtown Area
Max Anderson & Associates, Madison, is currently working on the comprehensive proposals for development of the downtown area. Surveys have been taken and a meeting to discuss preliminary ideas completed.

Several modifications in city codes, ordinances and improvement of the city.

ments of public and private facilities are required in the HUD recertification.

The extra-territorial zoning is being worked on in conjunction with the North eastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

A joint meeting of the planning commission and city council was called for 8 p.m. Jan. 13.

Air Wisconsin

Stock Issue Is Sold Out

The last of a 75,000-share Air Wisconsin stock issue was sold out Monday, Karl Baldwin, president of the Fox Cities-based airline, announced Tuesday.

Since sales of the stock were reopened by the airline Dec. 24, 30,000 shares have been sold, and no more stock is available through the airline, Baldwin said.

A total of 19,000 shares were sold Monday at a price of $8 per share.

Proceeds of the recent sales will be used to purchase a fifth aircraft, a 15-passenger turbojet Beech 99, to meet increasing demands for service to O'Hare International airport at Chicago and to Minneapolis and Detroit, Baldwin said.

The airline closed trading in the stock in October after two merger offers were made to Air Wisconsin. The airline said it wanted to prevent undue speculation in the stock. Sales reopened Dec. 24.

The merger offers from Comuter Airlines, Chicago, and Imoco, a small Illinois conglomerate, were turned down.

The company has issued 175,000 shares of stock since its inception in September, 1965.

Baldwin said Appleton State Bank will act as stock transfer agent in all future stock issues.

Lutherans Set Annual Meeting at Amherst

AMHERST — Annual congregation meeting for Peace Lutheran and Nelsonville Lutheran churches have been scheduled.

Nelsonville Lutherans will meet Jan. 20 and Peace Lutheran will meet Jan. 21. Both meetings are scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Amherst church.

The Rev. A. P. Tidemann is pastor of both churches.

by Krostue to allow the two groups, working as a committee of the whole, to develop its final public improvement schedule.

Rezoning Request

No action was taken on an ordinance for rezoning a residential area at 400 E. Quincy St. Commission members debated spot zoning in the city and then decided a policy should be established before giving its recommendation to the city council.

Art Schmidt, owner of the property, requested the rezoning so he could construct a 48 by 80 foot addition to his store. A grocery store has been operated at the site 45 years. Schmidt has run it for 19 years.

After a lengthy discussion, commission members agreed they could find no objection to neighborhood grocery stores.

They, however, discussed the need for controlling such requests in the future and then held the matter over to its February meeting so a study on a policy could be made.

Schmidt requested the one lot on which the addition is to be constructed be rezoned from residential to commercial.

Appleton Man Fined $75 for Beating Wife

A 24-year-old Appleton man who beat up his wife then started to fight with arresting policemen, was fined $74 and costs or 18 days in jail Monday afternoon in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Ronald J. Jansen, 1721 Wilmer St., pleaded guilty of disorderly conduct.

Mrs. Jansen called police about 10:30 p.m. Saturday after her husband came home and started beating her. She said he had left with his suitcase earlier Saturday. He reportedly broke the door lock to gain entry into the house.

She told police her husband threw her against a wall, then hit her several times and choked her. He tore the telephone off the wall when she tried to call police.

When Jansen fell asleep on the floor, his wife went to a neighbor's and summoned police.

Police said Jansen was still sleeping on the floor when they arrived. When they awoke him to question him, he started swinging. One of two patrolmen who subdued him reportedly was kicked in the left arm and left side. Police said they used their small tear gas canisters to help subdue Jansen, who then was taken to the city jail.

New London Looks for a Site for Housing Project

Location Proposal Anticipated

NEW LONDON — A site proposal for the low rental housing development for the elderly will probably be submitted to the planning commission for approval at its Feb. 3 meeting.

Harry S. Emans, executive secretary for the New London Housing Authority (NLHA), appeared before the commission Monday to feel out its ideas on a location for the 60-unit development. He indicated that it was likely a site would be submitted for approval.

Also appearing at the commission meeting was Wayne Dobberstein, representing Don Radtke Realtors, who is working on conjunction with Wendt, Cedarholm and Tipples, Appleton, developers of the project in obtaining a site.

Approval doubtful

Emans told the commission the NLHA presently had a location on the north side of the river, and none on the southside at this time. He indicated it was believed the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) would not approve the northside location of being located in the flood plain.

Dobberstein said it was still possible to obtain the property on Division Street between Beacon Avenue and Cook Street if the commission would approve the site.

The commission late in 1968 turned down the proposed Division Street site.

Emans asked the commission if it had considered rescinding its previous action in turning down the proposed site. Several persons had been in contact with NLHA members since the request for the site had been turned down, Emans added.

He indicated many of these people had suggested a petition as a means of persuading the commission of the need for the development and community approval of the proposed site.

Do Something

"I hope we don't dilly-dally around until we lose the entire project," Emans said. "We have to do something soon as more cities are applying for HUD funding for these developments."

A good deal of time was spent in discussing possible sites for the development and what procedure should be followed in submitting sites for commission approval.

In light of the feeling that a northside location would not be approved by HUD, the commission raised no objections with a site on the south side of the Wolf River.

It is likely the NLHA will submit one site at a time for commission approval or rejection.

Mayor S. W. Krostue said that ample notice should be given in advance of the commission meeting so interested parties may attend and express their views on proposed sites.

Man Draws 5-Day Term On Intoxication Count

Rodney A. Sachs, 35, Wisconsin Rapids, was sentenced to five days in jail Monday after he pleaded guilty to an intoxication charge brought by Outagamie County police.

Authorities said they took Sachs into custody at Ken's Bar in Dale about 9 p.m. Saturday. He told police he had no place to stay and had no money. He appeared in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

Condemnation for Street

Chilton Starts Land Acquisition Action

CHILTON — A resolution for condemnation proceedings to acquire land for street improvement was adopted Tuesday by the city council as the first step in proceedings to acquire 188 square feet of the southwest corner of the intersection of W. Main and S. Madison streets. The land is owned by Standard Oil Co.

The city has been trying for more than a year to reach a settlement with the company. The land originally was donated to the company by the city. A jurisdictional offer of $1,000 will be made to the company.

One other resolution adopted by the council has the city going on record for locating the proposed inter-state freeway between Milwaukee and Green Bay near the present State 57 which runs through the city. The freeway is expected to be located somewhere between Lake Winnebago and Lake Michigan.

Council members feel that if it is not routed close to the present highway, a considerable loss to the city and county could result.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to legislators and people instrumental in the location of the system.

Walter Muehl, director of public works, told council members that an additional six inches of snow will create a snow emergency in that narrow streets that must be cleared, there may be either a parking prohibition or shoveling of the snow out of people's sidewalks.

The matter was left to the discretion of Muehl.

Other Action

In other action the council: —Authorized the purchase of a truck chassis for city use. The truck specifications call for a 19,000 pound rear axle. It will be used for plowing and other city purposes. Cost of the truck will be about $7,400. It is anticipated that later purchase of a box and snow plow for the truck will be authorized.

—Delayed approving of the ambulance contract with Calumet Memorial Hospital pending filing of the financial statement of the hospital on the ambulance operation. No increase of rates in the contract are specified.

—Authorized the purchase of a set of "Legal Encyclopedia" regarding municipal law for the city attorney's use. Cost of the 16 to 12 volumes is about $17.50 per month.

Court Awards

Menasha Firm $1.6 Million

Milwaukee Railroad Ordered to Pay for Damage in 1964 Fire

OSHKOSH — The Menasha Corp. was awarded $1,625,000 Monday for loss sustained in a July, 1964, fire — the settlement representing the second largest in the history of Wisconsin civil actions.

Circuit Judge John G. Bartholomew, Eau Claire, announced his decision after hearing final oral arguments.

Defendant in the action was the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad.

In an eight-day trial last October, a 12-man jury found the railroad guilty of negligence. Testimony established that through the careless use of an acetylene torch, railroad workmen had caused the fire which destroyed the Menasha firm's corrugating plant.

Largest in Circuit

The award announced Monday is the largest for damages ever granted in the 3rd judicial Circuit Court of Winnebago and Calumet counties, and the largest in the operation of the railroad in Wisconsin.

Before a battery of attorneys representing both sides in the major lawsuit, Judge Bartholomew said the award represented "... full and final settlement of all claims of the Menasha Corporation and any subsidiary of that corporation."

A jury trial had been waived by both parties in the second trial set to determine the amount of damages to be awarded the paper firm.

There was no indication whether the railroad would appeal the decision.

No Details

The court and legal counsel declined to divulge details concerning the firm's losses with respect to production time, equipment and court costs.

The fire, July 17, 1964, destroyed most of Menasha's oldest manufacturing firm.

About one-third of the firm's 200 employees were back at work in 10 days, however, in areas of the plant not destroyed by the blaze. Others were farmed out to local corrugating firms.

As result of the fire, the Menasha Corporation decided to construct its new 180,000 square foot, one-story plant in the Town of Menasha, south of Neenah on U.S. 41.

Chilton Wins 2 Overtimes

CHILTON — Steve Bruckner's period. Bruckner scored the only points of the second overtime with a basket with 18 seconds left to play. Hansen missed two free throws for Brillion with 10 seconds left.

The Tigers came out of the halftime break and outscored the Lions, 11-6, to take a 42-37 lead. That 5-point lead was the largest of the game (they also held a 16-11 lead in the first period).

Brillion rallied in the fourth quarter to outscore Chilton, 13-8. Russ Hansen hit a basket with 1:23 left in the game to tie the score, at 50. Neither team scored for rest of the regulation time.

The Lions' Bob Bergelin and Bill Grassell connected for two free throws each to give Chilton a 54-50 lead in the first overtime. Bruckner and Dick Daun then hit baskets to tie the score with 44 seconds left to throw the game into another overtime.

School Board Precedent Bonding Asked for Repairs

A frustrated Appleton Board of Education set a precedent Monday night when it unanimously agreed to ask for bonding of over $100,000 for building and site improvements.

The move comes on the heels of a $500,000 fiscal control board out of requested 1969 school district funds which threatens to once again force deferring of repairs and improvements.

The items proposed for bonding are identical to those suggested for bonding by the Appleton Taxpayers Association at the December budget hearing.

However, the board added $9,362 for an accounting machine because the present equipment is unable to speedily handle the required number of deductions from pay checks.

Except $18,000 All items were recommended for deletion, except the $18,000 for Wilson Junior High roof repair, which the board restored.

Board member Mrs. Helen Heil commented: "It (bonding) has some appeal; doing this now will cost less than later, even with interest payments."

Supt. of Schools William Spears said, "It would succeed in that these items would not appear year after year in the budget request."

Some items have been deferred for several years.

Charles Buchanan, board president, noted that although it would be a precedent for Appleton, other schools have used such bonding practices in the past.

Buchanan was directed to prepare a letter for the fiscal board, asking for action on the bonding request. He said the board hoped for immediate action by the fiscal board, whether approval or rejection.

Major items included are: Einstein Junior High, concrete pavement, $17,000; Johnston Elementary, concrete pavement, $13,367; Franklin Elementary, conversion of heating system, $7,500. Several blacktopping projects, mainly playgrounds, also are being sought.

Blacktopping Spears said the blacktopping for several outlying schools was essential. Some schools have no physical education facilities other than a outside playground, he said.

Kenneth Sager, a board member, questioned why instructional items should not be bonded and also the advisability of items being cut out of the budget and then put in a bond budget request.

The bonding would provide $59,951 for site improvements and $34,980 for building improvements, besides the adding machine.

OK Part-Time Help Feud Over Assistance For Schaefer Settled

The dispute between the Outagamie County Board's personnel committee and County Court Judge Nick Schaefer over additional help in his office apparently has been settled.

The personnel committee reported authorizing Schaefer to hire a second court reporter half-time at an annual salary of $3,600 with the agreement that no other special help would be required in the judge's office.

County Board Chairman Sylvester Esler, Appleton, told the executive committee Tuesday that while Schaefer had not formally replied to the personnel committee's action, he understood the judge was satisfied.

Unresolved Salary Still to be resolved is the salary for special help Schaefer employed in his office for one week in November. Schaefer had submitted a pay voucher for $150 for the salary but the county, by board action which set the salary for such help at $80 per week, issued a check for the smaller amount.

The judge returned the check and asked for the full amount. The county, in turn, reissued the same check for $80.

Supv. Eugene Kloes, Appleton, a member of the executive committee and chairman of the courts and justice committee, objected to the entire proceedings because his committee had not been involved.

Committee Ignored "The committee has been run over," Kloes said. He added that if the committee was going to be bypassed, its jurisdiction 4th Ward alderman has taken over the court should be ended.

The executive committee also recommended, by a 6-3 vote, to hire a deputy emergency government director (civil defense) to be responsible for the setting up of the county office of economic stabilization and then would assist Howard Rathbun, emergency government director, in operating his office.

A salary of $448 per month papers is Jan. 28.

Officials Change Opinions After Quizzing Survivors

After questioning the two survivors of the lake home tragedy that took the lives of four members of an Appleton family, carbon monoxide has re-entered the picture as a possible death cause.

Menominee County authorities Tuesday took statements from Mrs. Robert Christensen, whose husband and three children were found dead Friday in the family's year-round recreation home on Lake Moshawquit, and the babysitter, Miss Sue Seely, 15, 1706 Rogers Ave. Miss Seely was questioned at Appleton Memorial Hospital, according to Chief Deputy Fred Miller, where she was reported in satisfactory condition.

Victims of the tragedy were Robert A. Christensen, 43, vice president of Tschank and Christensen, and his three children, Jeffrey, 8, Lori, 7, and Jeannie, 4.

Treated for Shock

Mrs. Christensen was treated for shock at Appleton Memorial Hospital and released Friday.

Re-establishing carbon monoxide as a possibility was a reversal of a statement Tuesday by the Menominee officials who, at that time, said it had been all but ruled out as factor and food poisoning was strongly suspected.

The investigators are still awaiting word from Madison on tests being conducted at the State Laboratory of Hygiene on blood samples and food specimens taken before a final determination can be made.

Coroner Arnold Corn could not be reached for comment this morning. He said Monday he would continue his investigation after receiving reports from the hygiene lab, which he expected this week.

Corn said Monday that there were indications that food poisoning may have caused the deaths. He noted he did not believe the lake home's furnace was faulty.

Corn and Menominee Sheriff Wilmer Peters have conferred with Shawano County Dist. Atty. Daniel F. Archenbrener. They will confer again after the state lab results are revealed.

Under the state law, the Shawano County district attorney also serves Menominee County.

Babysitter Recalls Family Tragedy

BY MARY WITT

Fifteen-year-old Sue Seely can't remember when the nightmare began.

But Tuesday afternoon, from her bed at Appleton Memorial Hospital, the slender, blue-eyed girl vividly recalled the good times she had with the Robert Christensens before four members of the Appleton family succumbed to a mysterious death leaving her and Mrs. Christensen the only survivors in a post New Year's Eve tragedy.

As the sunshine streamed into her hospital room touching upon flowers from friends and large basket of fruit from Mrs. DeJores Seely, her mother, Sue talked about last summer, when she spent a month babysitting for the Christensens at their Menominee County home on the shore of Lake Moshawquit.

The Christensen children, Jeffrey, 8, Lori, 7, and Jeannie, 4, were more than just familiar faces to Sue, who had been employed as their babysitter for about a year, taking up where her older sister had left off. As for Mr. and Mrs. Christensen, Sue and her mother agreed that they treated their babysitter as a member of the family. During those days at the lake, the couple included Sue in every activity, but best of all — and Sue's face lit up as she remembered — they taught her to water-ski.

Family Invitation

In autumn, there were more requests from the Christensens for Sue's services. Then, in early December, she was asked to accompany the family to the lake for New Year's Eve. Sue accepted, circling off Dec. 30, 31 and Jan. 1 on her calendar in an act that was to permanently and traumatically affect her life.

Ordinarily a 45-minute ride by car, the trip from Appleton to the lake home took two hours Dec. 30, because of the wintery weather. After her arrival, Sue and the children took advantage of the snow by spending most of that afternoon saucerizing, making angels and building castles. By 8:30 p.m., Jeffrey, Lori and Jeannie had been tucked in their bunkbeds, all occupying the same room, and later, Sue was to climb into the bunk above Lori, where she had always slept.

The morning of Dec. 31, Sue recalls helping Mrs. Christensen with housecleaning, while the children played outdoors. The night before, the couple had toyed with the idea of having a New Year's party, but as far as Sue knew, nothing definite resulted until late Tuesday afternoon, when Mr. Christensen got into the snowmobile and drove around the lake inviting neighbors over for the evening.

New Year's Party

The children once again in bed at 8:30 p.m., Sue helped Mrs. Christensen prepare ham and eggrolls for the party which broke up shortly after seeing in the New Year. Jan. 1, the last day Sue remembers before tragedy struck, began for the babysitter at 1:30 p.m., when she arose, ate breakfast and in a moment of fun, she and Mrs. Christensen each took a few sips of champagne in a private celebration of the New Year.

Then Sue and the Christensens went snowmobiling, stopping at a neighbors to warm up before returning home for a snack of eggrolls. Half an hour later, Mrs. Christensen served supper consisting of steak, twice-baked potatoes and salad.

Earlier that afternoon — when, neither Sue nor Mrs. Christensen nor Mrs. Seely remembers — Mrs. Christensen telephoned Mrs. Seely to ask if her husband could drive Sue home the next morning rather than that day as originally planned. The postponement of the trip would eliminate an extra drive for Mr. Christensen, explained his wife, who also promised Sue would be home by 6:45 a.m. in time for the resumption of her ninth grade classes at Wilson Junior High School.

Since her mother had agreed to the change in plans, Sue spent the evening packing and for a final time, prepared the children for bed at 8:30 p.m.

No Memory

Sue went to bed at about 10 p.m. Of one point she is certain: she felt well in every respect and as far as she was able to ascertain, none of the Christensens was ill.

Sue has no memory of Thursday morning, afternoon or evening nor does she know when she first fell out of her upper bunk and vomited on the bedroom floor. She does remember Mr. and Mrs. Christensen appearing in the bedroom, but whatever they might have said she tried to tell Mrs. Christensen something was wrong. That something was indeed very wrong was soon to be a lasted throughout the long nightmare.

She remembers struggling to the bathroom for a drink of water to satisfy the great thirst that accompanied the buzzing. But without Mrs. Christensen's help, she found herself running into walls as "she went one way and her body went the other."

Screams Continue

Meanwhile, Mr. Christensen had seated himself on Jeannie's bed. Sue believes, he, too, was ill. As for the children, none of the three awoke at the sound of Sue's fall or her screams indicating she was ill. Sue recalls only one sign of life in the three: Lori rolled over during her first spell.

After getting a drink for Sue, Mrs. Christensen helped her into Lori's bunk, where Sue was to awaken two more times before Friday morning. During each of the total of three spells, Sue felt neither nausea, fever nor headache. Her vision was unblurred so that she could clearly see Mr. Christensen unblurred beside Jeannie, but her screams continued unabated as she tried to tell Mrs. Christensen something was wrong. That something was indeed very wrong was soon to be a matter of public knowledge when Mr. Christensen, Lori, Jeffrey and Jeannie were found dead Friday morning.

Sue's first memories of that day were the buzzing in her head and the appearance of Mr. Christensen's brother, William, and "a lady," not Mrs. Christensen. Then, says Sue, "They took Lori away and soon I was on a stretcher in the living room. Mrs. Christensen was crying."

Soon to be released from Appleton Memorial Hospital, Sue will take with her the knowledge that she is part of an unsolved mystery. Of the answer, she says helplessly, "I only know what I read in the paper."

Rescue Squad Run

The Appleton Fire Department rescue squad took Charles Hall, 16, 315 E. Atlantic St., to Memorial Hospital about 5:40 p.m. Monday after he cut his forehead when he fell against a refrigerator at his home.

Actor May Seek Laird's Post in 7th District

Dennis Morgan to Sound Out Chances On GOP Slate

Actor Dennis Morgan's name has been added to the list of possible candidates for Wisconsin's 7th District congressional seat being vacated by Defense Secretary-designate Melvin R. Laird, R-Marshfield.

The 58-year-old Prentice native reportedly will return from Los Angeles, Calif., to sound out his chances. Republicans reportedly are urging him to run.

His name brings the list of hopefuls to seven and some Republicans expect that number to more than double. Laird is expected to resign the post after the Senate confirms his appointment to the Nixon cabinet.

Morgan has a summer home at Lac du Flambeau in the neighboring 10th District. Prentice is in the 7th District.

Morgan, who is the former Stanley Morner, attended Marshfield High School, was graduated from Carroll College, Waukesha, and was an announcer - singer on a Milwaukee radio station in the early 1930s.

Although he has not sought public office before, Morgan campaigned for fellow actors Ronald Reagan, California governor, and George Murphy, California senator.

Like unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate Bronson LaFollette, who at one time considered running for Laird's post, Morgan may be subject to "carpetbagging" criticism.

Executive Decision

The 7th District GOP executive committee reportedly will meet next week to decide whether to endorse a candidate. It has not done so in recent past primary battles.

Republicans eying the congressional post are Carl Dretzke, Manawa industrialist, Rick Murray, Fort Atkinson, unsuccessful 2nd District congressional candidate, and Hude H. Murray, Ogdensburg attorney.

Democrats include Assemblyman David Obey, Wausau; Will Sandstrom, a Wausau biochemist, and Robert Hack, Mosinee, a University of Wisconsin graduate student.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles is expected to call a special election after Laird resigns. The election must come between 55 and 70 days after his order, and a primary must precede this by four weeks.

Candidates will have nine to 24 days to gather enough signatures to get on the ballot.

Appleton Woman Hurt in Crash At Intersection

Mary L. Eisner, route 4, Appleton, suffered minor injuries when her car was struck from behind on E. John Street, at E. South River Street, Monday morning.

Appleton police said the woman was westbound, stopped for a stop sign, when her car was struck by an auto driven by Allen S. Goodearle, 21, route 4.

Patrolman Gary L. Ingersoll, 24, route 1, New London, escaped injury when the 1968 Appleton Police Department squad car he was driving struck a parked auto on E. Pacific Street, near N. Drew Street, about 8:25 p.m. Monday.

Police, who said they are still investigating the mishap, said Ingersoll struck a parked auto owned by Marshall Goers, 22, 315 E. Washington St. There was minor damage to the left front of the squad car and the front of the Goers auto.

Myse Returns As Spokesman For Teachers

Attorney to Have Familiar Role in New Contract Talks

Appleton teacher contract bargaining will resume next week but not with the spokesmen who opened the talks in late November.

Appleton attorney Gordon Myse will return as spokesman for the Appleton Education Association (AEA) after serving a short time as the AEA's at-the-table consultant.

Myse was spokesman last year, but the teachers named a teacher as spokesman last fall to, as they explained it, improve the bargaining communications.

However, the board of education several days ago hired a Milwaukee attorney to conduct its bargaining. The board claims it has been at a disadvantage because the AEA was represented by legal counsel.

Informal Meeting

The board's spokesman, Lawrence Gooding, met informally Monday afternoon with Supt. of Schools William Spears; Myse; Richard Pike, AEA negotiations committee chairman, and committee members.

Bargaining sessions were set for the nights of Jan. 15, 22 and 29. One session was held in late November when the sides exchanged proposals, and at the session, Pike and Kenneth Sager, chairman of the board's now dissolved professional improvement committee were spokesmen.

"AEA Flexible"

However, Myse noted, "the AEA is still flexible to respond to the circumstances as they present themselves."

He added the AEA has no objection to the board being represented by an attorney, except that it eliminates the "hoped-for" teacher-board member communications relationship.

"But our only concern is that we have some rapport so that we can discuss educationally-oriented items," Myse said.

At Disadvantage

The board hired Gooding after looking at three professional negotiators. It decided after months of study that it was at a disadvantage on legal and technical aspects of bargaining.

Last year's bargaining ended after 10 months and resulted in accepting a state-appointed fact finder's report calling for more than $1.1 million in negotiated gains for teachers.

Payment for Paving Being Withheld

County Claims Part Of E. John Street Work Uncompleted

Outagamie County is withholding payment from the city of $34,000, representing the county's share of the cost when E. John Street was paved more than a year ago.

"I'm giving up men for my birthday—my 90th!"

Sylvester Esler, Outagamie County Board chairman, has notified city officials the payment has not been made because the work by the city reportedly has not been completed.

A spokesman for the department of public works said today the project is finished, including grading and seeding of properties abutting the new roadway.

He said it appeared the county had $34,000 budgeted but was waiting until this spring "to see if the grass comes up" and would then probably make the payment.

The county was charged for part of the project because a portion of the street within the city falls within the jurisdiction of the county and represents a so-called "island."
